REBELS FORCED BACK IN BATTLE TO WIN JIMENEZ

Mexico City Announces Big Encounter May Be Turning Point.

100 INSURGENTS DIE AT LIMON, SINALOA

Revolutionists in Retreat Toward La Cruz, Capital Told.

THIRD GREAT COMBAT NEAR ON WEST COAST

Capt. Fierro, Government Ace, Returns After Escape From Enemy Area.

Mexico City, April 1 (A.P.).—The federal and rebel armies battled today in what the government believed was likely to be the crisis of the northern campaign and perhaps even the end of the revolution.

Artillery and rifle fire, which began at 1 a. m., just south of the city of Jimenez, Chihuahua, continued throughout the day. Federal troops, numbering 10,000, and commanded by Gen. Juan A. Almazan, stormed positions held by rebel defenders, whose number was estimated at 5,000.

The federal armies, after more than twelve hours of assault, suspended their attack on Jimenez this afternoon, but a definite attack will be resumed at daybreak. This was announced at Chapultepec Castle tonight.

A message was sent tonight by Secretary of War Plutarco Elias Calles to national headquarters summarizing the situation.

"The battle which started this morning around Jimenez," he said, "between the federal expeditionary force under command of Gen. Juan A. Almazan and the main body of rebel troops of the forces of Gens. Escobar, Caraveo, Urbalejo and others entered upon a period of calm this afternoon.

"However, the federal artillery and air force have not ceased action but are bombarding the positions which the enemy still hold in the railroad station and the part of the town of Jimenez which remains in their power."

A message received tonight said that federal forces had defeated insurgents at Limon, Sinaloa, after a furious seven-hour battle today.

Gen. Rodrigo Telamante reported: "I can assure you there are more than 100 enemy dead." Fifty insurgents were captured.

Rebels Forced to Retreat.

Gen. Telamante said that four federal regiments had engaged about 1,000 rebels at 10 a. m. and at 5 p. m. had forced them to flee from their strongly entrenched positions and retreat toward La Cruz, where their man body was located.

The federal losses in dead and wounded were not more than twenty Apparently the insurgents had attempted an advance southward from La Cruz, but Gen. Telamante said that their defeat at Limon had checked the rebel advance and necessitated a radical change in plans for rebel Gens. Ramon F. Iturbe and Roberto Cruz.

"Whatever their intentions," he assured the president, "measures are being taken to give them battle at La Cruz or anywhere else they are found."

One federal regiment pursued the enemy as far as Coystitan, where additional prisoners were captured. The rebels abandoned many horses and arms and munitions as they fled into the forest.

Federal Reinforcements Start.

Information gleaned from rebel prisoners was that they had left La Cruz on Saturday and spent yesterday at the town of Quelite, choosing to take the

CRUISER WILL CARRY AMBASSADOR'S BODY

French to Return Herrick to U. S. on Warship Recently Built.

RITES SET FOR THURSDAY

Paris, April 1 (A.P.).—France has taken the death of American Ambassador Herrick as her own loss and will pay him the same honors she pays to her own distinguished sons at death.

The ambassador's last homegoing will be aboard a ship which is the pride of the French navy, the new swift cruiser Tourville. The premier of France will pronounce the only oration over the body and the French army will render the same honors accorded generals and marshals of France as the procession goes from the American Embassy to the church.

Those honors spring from the sentiment of French people of all classes, who had unbounded faith in Ambassador Herrick and loved him not only for his friendship to France, but also for himself. His genial manners had made him known throughout the country as few other foreign diplomats have ever been known.

The funeral services will begin Thursday morning as an hour to be subsequently fixed. It was decided today after Mrs. Parmely Herrick had talked with her husband in New York by wireless telephone. Ceremonies are to begin at the embassy, where Premier Poincare will pay tribute to Mr. Herrick's memory in the name of the French goverment.

Immediately afterward, the cortege will form at the embassy and proceed to the American procathedral in the Avenue George V, with detachments of French troops rendering honors.

The body of the ambassador probably will be transported at once to Brest, or Cherbourg, where it is to be placed aboard the Tourville. The cruiser will hoist anchor and sail at once for New York. A special guard of honor will be designated by the government to accompany the body to its last resting place.

Although there has been no lying in state, a great number of people have passed along the avenue in front of the embassy to pay their respects in the only way they can, while others stop at the lodge to sign the register. This Annual Easter Egg Rolling Draws 47,217 Through Executive Gates.

A badly battered Humpty Dumpty staggered off the White House lawn under cover of darkness early last night and made his way to the Egg Hospital.

But it is feared that President Hoover and all his Cabinet men can not put Humpty Dumpty together again—such was the success that attended yesterday the annual Easter egg rolling party given the children of Washington.

Boys and girls and eggs rolled about the lawn in great profusion. Forbidding weather of the early hours gave way in the afternoon to bright sunshine. Thousands who had thought they might not came to the party. Attendance, including adult chaperons, was put at 47,317 by the White House police, who served as gatekeepers.

This was said to be as large a crowd as ever attended an Easter egg rolling by First Sergt. C. L. Dalrymple, of the White House police. At the 1927 party, according to the sergeant, there were about 48,000 guests. Of those who attended yesterday, a large number of adults for the concert, about 18,000 were said to have been children.

Of all the children who attended the party, it was said, 71 were lost. The White House police who mingled in the crowds throughout the day, were able to find the parents or chaperons of all these, but it was 6 o'clock before the last three little lost tots left for their homes.

No casualties were reported among the children at the White House, but one little girl, who was at the egg rolling at the Capitol Grounds, fell off a coping to which she had climbed, cut her head and suffered bruises. Her name was Catherie Fiefield, 7 years old, 402 Tenth street northeast. She was treated at the Casualty Hospital by Dr. Millard Ottman.

Mrs. Teresa Davis, 67 years old, 1300 Massachusetts avenue northwest, who had gone to observe the egg-rolling at the White House, suffered lacerations of the head and face when she was

Stuyvesant Fish's Yacht Is Searched

Men Calling Themselves Drys Cover Broker With Pistols.

New York, April 1 (A.P.).—Stuyvesant Fish, wealthy broker and a member of one of New York's oldest families, today said that his yacht, Restless, was stopped by men representing themselves as being prohibition enforcement agents near the Statue of Liberty Saturday night and while he and his family were held at pistol point, the vessel was searched from stem to stern.

Mr. Fish told of the search after saying he had failed to receive any word from any enforcement agency regarding the stopping of his boat.

Although he said he did not hear any shots, Mr. Fish said his captain told him they had been fired on and the agents themselves, during the search, told him he and his family were lucky they didn't get hit by machine gun fire.

Tunney and Queen Marie Checked at Bull Fight

Madrid, April 1 (A.P.).—Queen Marie of Roumania and Gene Tunney, retired heavyweight boxing champion, were costars at the bull ring here yesterday. They remained peacefully in the stands, but were as much applauded as the bull fighters.

Tunney was presented with a gift after the fight, but it was not recorded whether this was one of the bull's tails or ears, or a sword or cape of a toreador. Queen Marie attended the bull fights with her suite.

U.S. OFFICIALS SILENT IN MORGAN RUM QUIZ

Customs Men Testify Before Attorney as Inquiry on Liquor Begins.

HINT GRAND JURY ACTION

New York, April 1 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—An official investigation into charges that Representative William M. Morgan, of Ohio, had four bottles of liquor in his luggage when he landed here from Panama a few days ago was started today by United States Attorney Tuttle, who had a long session with customs heads and one of the two inspectors who spotted the alleged liquor.

Philip Elting, collector of the port; Henry C. Stuart, assistant collector; Louis E. Crawford, inspector; John Taylor, deputy surveyor; Frederick P. Powers, station inspector; Louis Kleinbohl, acting deputy collector, and an agent whose name was given merely as Nolan comprised the group which for nearly two hours told Mr. Tuttle what they knew of the events following the arrival of the steamship Cristobal with the congressional party including Morgan, last Monday.

Today's session, all facts regarding which were withheld by Tuttle, due to the unforeseen absence of James McCabe, the inspector who, with Crawford, discovered the reported contraband, came on the eve of the convening of the April grand jury, which will begin its duties tomorrow morning.

Jones law violations comprise a large part of them.

Inability to locate McCabe, who was taking a day off, prevented a full assemblage of the facts today or any statement from Mr. Tuttle as to whether the case would be presented to the grand jurors.

With the expected appearance of McCabe in his office tomorrow morning, however, Mr. Tuttle promised a full recital of these facts as they have been given to him. The inspector has promised to appear at 11 o'clock.

Violation of the Jones act, for which Representative Morgan voted and worked, carries a possible maximum penalty of five years in the penitentiary and a fine of $10,000. In a case involving transportation as well as importation, the sentence and fine could be doubled. In any event conviction under the new dry law is a felony carrying with it loss of citizenship.

Mr. Tuttle refused to say today whether any woman's name had been brought into the case. Asked if this would make any difference, he replied:

"If a man brings in liquor, he brings it in, doesn't he?"

Of those who told their stories today, that of Crawford was said to be the only one with a direct bearing on the question of the liquor, reported presence of which in the representative's luggage was unknown to customs officials when Morgan telephoned them he had been to Panama on official business and wanted free entry.

It was Crawford, with Inspector McCabe watching him, who opened the first piece of baggage and before opening it asked Morgan, "have you any liquor?"

The representative's answer to this, according to Crawford's version, as repeated today, was, "yes, four bottles." The bottles were then removed from the luggage and placed on a packing case, Crawford said.

There ensued a long squabble with Morgan telephoning to a customs of-

Doran Reforms Dry Force As Police Are Reorganized

12 New Agents to Be Added In This District, Says Commissioner.

A reorganization of the local prohibition office, timed to coincide with the reorganization of the Police Department here, was announced yesterday by Prohibition Commissioner James M. Doran. At the same time it was announced that twelve additional agents and investigators would be put to work in this prohibition district.

William Blandford, who has been assigned here as a prohibition investigator, Commissioner Doran announced, has been named deputy administrator for the District of Columbia, succeeding J. J. Quinn, who goes to the Baltimore office as acting assistant administrator of the Sixth District. Robert Ford will continue as administrator of the district.

The reorganization, Dr. Doran admitted, was ordered on account of the promotion of Henry G. Pratt to succeed

LOOTED LAND BANK'S BACKERS MUST PAY

Kansas City's Stockholders Are Assessed $3,800,000 by U. S. Board.

1,800 PERSONS INVOLVED

Kansas City, Mo., April 1 (A.P.).—Herman M. Langworthy, receiver for the Kansas City Joint Stock Land Bank, announced tonight that a 100 per cent assessment, aggregating $3,800,000, on the institution's 1,800 stockholders has been levied by the United States Farm Loan Board. The assessment was made on the receiver's recommendation. Langworthy said the bank's deficit was $5,498,812.62.

A year ago Walter Cravens, former president, and Miss Alice B. Todd, former secretary of the institution, were sentenced to terms of six years and a year and a day respectively, in Federal prison for misapplication of funds. Appeals are pending.

While scattered holdings of stock are at Salina, Kans., Craven's home town, and elsewhere in the Southwest, the bulk is owned by investors in New England, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, Michigan and California. Some stock buyers paid as high as $180 a share for the stock, par at $100. Today's assessment exacts $100 more on each share.

The farm loan act specifically provides that joint stock land bank shareholders are individually responsible for contracts, debts and engagements of the bank to the par value of stock held, in addition to the amount already paid for the stock. The large capital of the bank permitted the issuance of more than $40,000,000 in mortgage secured bonds.

The assessment announced tonight may be met in four payments, May 1.

INCOME TAX SHOWS RISE OF $80,000,000

Speculation Is Thought Cause of Big Increase in Return Over 1928.

SEE $100,000,000 SURPLUS

(Associated Press.)

Activity in the stock markets through 1928 was said by Terasury Department officials yesterday to account for an $80,000,000 increase in the March income tax returns over that received for the same period a year ago, the total this year having reached $595,000,000.

Such an increase was unexpected. Present indications were said to point to income taxes for the present fiscal year, ending next June 30, being the largest since 1921. It was said further that a Treasury surplus of around $100,000,000 was indicated. The last estimates placed the probable surplus at $26,000,000.

Treasury officials said the increase in income tax payments amazed them and was due chiefly to the fact that on the rising stock market there were few deductions for losses and much profit making because of the low surtax on incomes. The revenue law of 1926, it was explained, reduced the surtax payments from a maximum of 40 per cent to a maximum of 20 per cent. This reduction, it was said, caused many persons to take a profit whereas if the high surtax had been in effect these would not have sold the stock.

While the Treasury was announcing that the income tax collections were exceeding all estimates, the Federal Reserve Board—which has sought to restrain the use of Federal Reserve credit for speculation—was in session as were the governors of the twelve Federal Reserve Banks. The board announced that the governors were holding their semiannual meeting and had

8 Die in 4 States as Storm Does Much Damage in East

Sweeping Out of Midwest, Easter Gale Razes Houses, Destroys Communication Lines and Injures More Than Score in Sweep Toward Canada.

(Associated Press.)

The Eastern storm which swept the Middle West, taking one life and causing heavy property damage, roared into the East yesterday, raising the death toll to six persons and destroying property over a wide territory.

Sweeping through southern Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania into New Jersey and on to Canada, winds of almost tornado force blew down trees, unroofed houses and other buildings and crippled telephone and telegraph communication. Wind velocities above 60 miles an hour were reported in Ohio, winds of diminishing velocity were felt all over the East.

A man was killed at Newark, Ohio, by a tree which was blown down on top of his automobile; at Buffalo, N. Y., a track man was killed in a like accident; a 16-year-old girl was blown into the path of an automobile and fatally injured at Belmore, Ohio; a 10-year-old school girl was fatally injured at Newell, W. Va., by a falling window, blown in by the gale, and a farmer near Polksville, N. J., was killed when struck by a beam blown from a barn.

A two-ton roof was lifted from a building at Rome, N. Y., by the wind, and deposited 300 yards away.

In Canada the high winds were accompanied by sleet and snow, which broke down telephone and telegraph lines and made the roads impassable in places. Eighteen inches of snow was reported in northern sections of Ontario.

Welch, W. Va., April 1 (A.P.).—One child was killed and three other children were injured today when a windstorm ripped a roof from a home at

RUTH BRADLEY, SOUGHT IN ROADHOUSE SLAYING HELD AT FLORENCE, S. C.

Guilt in Death Denied By Suspected Woman

Admits Being Present at Roadhouse When Poutra Was Slain, But Declares Innocence; Did Not See Shooting, She Says.

Ruth (Hot Shot) Bradley, alias Lynn Dalton, in jail at Florence, S. C., The Post learned by telephone last night, denied guilt in the Green Gables murder and declared, in fact, that she knew nothing at all about it.

"Wesley Poutra was a fine young fellow," she told a Florence News-Review interviewer, "and I would be mighty glad to tell the police if I knew who killed him."

Florence police received the first telegram asking them to hold Lynn Dalton on a charge of murder yesterday morning from State's Attorney Frank Parran, of Prince Georges County. Mr. Parran did not describe the person, however, and did not say whether it was a man or woman.

The police went, nevertheless, to an address Mr. Parran gave in his telegram, 513 North Dargan street. They saw the Bradley woman then, but did not realize she was the person wanted until they received the telegram last night from Chief Pratt, who wired:

"We hold United States warrant charging grand larceny for Lynn Dalton, white woman, 27 years of age, red hair, pop eyes, long nose. Said to live at 513 North Dargan street."

After receiving the Pratt telegram, the Florence police went back to the house and arrested the Bradley woman. In the morning they had been looking for a man. The house in question, according to The Post's informant, is owned and occupied by Eugene Boark and his wife, Jeanette Horne, each of whom is under $10,000 bond for appearance in Federal Court on charges of violating the Harrison narcotic act.

The Bradley woman was said to be very "docile and quiet" at the Florence County Jail. She said she went to Green Gables with a party of friends a week ago last Wednesday, and that Wesley Poutra, one of the party, was fatally wounded. She said she did not see the shooting and did not know that Poutra had been shot until someone urged her to jump in an automobile and get away.

The woman went in her own automobile to the roadhouse, she said, but in the confusion of getting away, came back to Washington in another car. She said she left her car, a fur coat, a registration certificate and her driver's permit at Green Gables "and I expect that is the reason they are trying to connect me with the affair. I stayed in Washington for a day or two, but then decided I had better leave and came to Florence."

District Warrant Traps Captive After Mix-up on Two Names.

'LYNN DALTON' ALIAS CAUSE OF CONFUSION

City Police Leave Today to Return Suspect; Seven Now Held.

THREE OTHER WOMEN ARE ALSO IN CUSTODY

Racket Theory Strengthens as Officials Uncover Evidence of Plot.

Arrest last night at Florence, S. C., of Ruth Bradley, alias Lynn Dalton and Hot Shot, brought the total arrests in the Green Gables slaying and shooting to seven.

The arrest of the Bradley woman, who has been sought continuously since the slaying of Wesley Poutra and the shooting of Joe Hauser at the Prince Georges roadhouse, was made on two warrants, one from Maryland charging murder, and the other from the District charging grand larceny in connection with the disposal of furniture valued at $1,300.

In the murder warrant the sex of Lynn Dalton was not specified but in the District warrant, Florence authorities were told to pick up Lynn Dalton, "white woman, 27 years of age, red hair, pop eyes, long nose."

Linked Two by Files.

Shortly after word of the woman's arrest was received at police headquarters and decision had been made to send for her today, detectives who have been aiding the Prince Georges authorities in the investigation of the Green Gables tragedy admitted that they learned Lynn Dalton was a woman through a bit of good fortune.

According to the detectives a message was intercepted signed by Lynn Dalton, supposedly addressed to one of the persons held at the Prince Georges Jail at Marlboro. This message, written from Richmond, Va., mentioned that Ruth Bradley was being sought in the Green Gables case. District detectives then pieced up the rest of the puzzle in identities by going through the records and finding that they wanted Lynn Dalton, a woman, for grand larceny and that her description fitted that of the Bradley woman.

When that fact was determined, the telegram to the Florence authorities asking the arrest of the woman was dispatched.

Believed Suspect Man.

Headquarters detectives frankly admitted that prior to "the lucky break" they believed Lynn Dalton a man. Prince Georges authorities admitted the same idea about Lynn Dalton's sex.

Police headquarters had not decided who would go for the woman, but it was understood that a department detective would be sent to Florence to bring her back, and that upon her arrival in Washington she would be turned over to Maryland authorities. Lieut. Ed Kelly, of the District homicide squad, who has been personally in charge of the department's investigation of the case, said the Bradley woman would be charged as an accessory in the killing.

The arrest of the Bradley woman brought the total number of persons arrested in the case to seven, Lieut. Kelly stated. He listed the others as Louis Behrens, alias John Bunny; John Bremer, Evelyn Metcalf, alias Evelyn Austen; Lucille Grisson, Emile Torre and Joe Hauser.

Four Held in Marlboro.

boro Jail. Hauser is at Emergency Hospital recovering from gunshot wounds but is under guard.

Since the fatal shooting early in the morning of March 20 police have obtained information which, when pieced together, convinces them that the riotous party with the slaying as its aftermath was staged for the purpose of placing the Maryland roadhouse in ill repute and depreciating its sale value.

This information dispels the original theory that the murder and riot, in which the lives of more than twenty persons were endangered, was the chance result of an argument over a "blond woman."

Police were told yesterday that the three racketeers visited the roadhouse in company with a man who had expressed a desire to become its proprietor and that they began "looking for trouble" as soon as they arrived, shortly after midnight. Three hours later, after two arguments with guests apparently had been settled amicably, one of the racketeers struck Behrens over the head with a bottle, another cut him on the head with the butt end of a pistol and then the shooting began.

Dozen Shots Fired.

More than a dozen shots were fired during the melee, in which chairs and tables were overturned and screaming women and shouting men scrambled over the wreckage in a hasty effort to escape. All were successful excepting Poutra and Hauser, who collapsed to the glass-covered floor, one with a bullet in his stomach and the other with one which passed through his left side, coming out at the neck.

Embassy Rum Publicity Results in More Guards

Baltimore, April 1 (A.P.).—Publicity directing attention to liquor shipments for foreign embassies and legations at Washington, resulting from recent interference with one shipment and consequent new arangements for making such shipments through this port, led today to placing a special guard around the Government warehouse here.

In the warehouse are about 200 packages of liquor waiting to be called for by representatives of the Bolivian, Albanian, Costa Rican and Nicaraguan Legations and the Japanese Embassy. Previous shipments through Baltimore had not attracted such wide attention, John A. Janetzke, jr., Government appraiser, said, explaining the posting of the guard.

Garner Is Cleared In Election Frauds

House Campaign Committee Avers Leader, of Texas, Was Entitled to Seat.

(Associated Press.)

The special house campaign committee, which investigated charges of fraud in the Texas primaries and general elections last year has reported that Representative John Garner, the new House Democratic leader, was clearly entitled to his seat in Congress.

The report, prepared by Chairman Lehlbach and made public yesterday at his office, declared there was not a scintilla of evidence to sustain the charge that fraud was practiced at the July primary. Testimony offered by Sid Hardin, Garner's opponent, the report added, showed that Garner defeated him so overwhelmingly "that no possible motive for fraud in his behalf existed."

The report did say, however, that in Hidalgo County, which is in Garner's congressional district, the November general election was "tainted with wholesale fraud in various forms" and recommended that the committee's conclusions be turned over to the Department of Justice, with a request for a rigid investigation by a special assistant Attorney General.

THOUSANDS PERISH IN AFRICAN FAMINE

Missionary Cables London Details of Horrors in Belgian Congo.

HYENAS DEVOUR DYING

London, April 1 (A.P.).—The Daily Express in a dispatch from Nairobi, Kenya, today described "terrible famine conditions" in the Ruanda district of the Belgian Congo. The account was credited to Dr. J. E. Church British missionary working there.

Owing to the successive failure of crops during two or three rainy seasons, the backward state of agriculture, and indifferent state of communications, thousands are dead and dying of starvation, according to the minister.

Since December, when the Uganda government prohibited, exportation of foodstuffs to Ruanda, the natives of the latter district have tried to migrate to the former, but thousands have never reached their goal, an dthe fever stricken district through which the trekked is littered with their corpses, the missionary wrote.

Tracks, he said, are crowded with natives staggering along with failing strength. Women and children have lain helpless by the sides of the roads, and in some cases have been eaten by hyenas, which began their meal before they were dead.

Ruanda itself, he said, was a land of living skeletons." Smallpox and dysentery have followed famine and the government sent help too late to avert the catastrophe, but now is spending much money and taking active steps to remedy the situation.

Fire in Restaurant Menaces Roomers

Premises on Pennsylvania Avenue Scene of Early Morning Blaze.

Fire at an early hour this morning routed the occupants of the rooming houses at 1402 to 1406 Pennsylvania avenue northwest and endangered several thousand gallons of seized liquor in the Internal Revenue Storehouse at 1408 Pennsylvania avenue. The arrival of the fire apparatus attracted nearly 500 spectators.

The fire was discovered by S. J. Isaacs, who observed flames breaking from a grating in the rear of the Congress Restaurant, 1402 Pennsylvania avenue. The damage will not exceed $1,000, police declared.

Mrs. Annie Nicholson, the landlady, was aroused and she awoke Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Abbott and I. Samuelson, all of New York City, roomers, who arrived for the Easter observance in Washington. The rooming houses were damaged by smoke and water.

WINSLOW ALLOWED TO QUIT U. S. BENCH

Hoover Accepts Resignation of New Yorker Who Has Been Under Fire.

JUDGE STATES MOTIVE

(Associated Press.)

The resignation of Federal Judge Francis A. Winslow, of the Southern New York District, was received at the White House yesterday and accepted at once by President Hoover.

New York, April 1 (A.P.).—Federal Judge Francis A. Winslow, against whom articles of impeachment were recently read in Congress, announced his resignation from the Federal bench through his attorney today.

Representative F. H. Laguardia, who read the articles of impeachment against Judge Winslow, charged him on the floor of the House with "grave irregularities" in the administration of justice and demanded a congressional investigation.

A subcommittee was appointed to investigate and the preliminary inquiry was to have begun this afternoon. Before it could get under way, however, Martin Conboy, who had been retained to defend Judge Winslow announced the jurist's resignation.

Bankruptcy Cases Involved.

The "irregularities" with which Judge Winslow was charged had to do in large part with bankruptcy cases. Marcus Helfand, a personal friend of the judge, recently was charged by United States Attorney Charles Tuttle with offering rulings by Winslow in bankruptcy cases for sale. A hearing was held to determine whether Helfand should be barred from further practise in the Federal Courts in this district but just before its completion Helfand resigned from practice both in the Federal and State courts.

Just prior to announcement of Winslow's resignation, Isador J. Kresel, counsel for the Congressional investigating committee, announced that the investigation might not take place, if reports that Winslow would resign proved well founded.

During Helfand's hearing there was testimony that Meyer Kaplan, a man convicted in a bankruptcy case, had been placed on probation after giving Helfand $5,000 to "fix things up" with Judge Winslow. Later, Kaplan said, his probation was revoked and he was sent to Atlanta Penitentiary to serve his term, and he expressed the opinion that this was done by Judge Winslow because Kaplan failed to make a second $5,000 payment.

Judge's Reasons Outlined.

Judge Winslow's reasons for resigning were set forth in a statement issued by Conboy, which said in part:

"Judge Winslow has felt from the time the charges were made against him that his usefulness as a member of the judiciary was thereby impaired, and he has since refrained from appearing as a judge. The same belief is still uppermost in his mind. In the interval the charges directed against him in Congress have been made the subject of inquiry by the grand jury in New York. Also since the presentment of the grand jury was made proceedings have been instituted and concluded against certain of those whose names have been associated with his in the complaints. These several proceedings having ended, Judge Winslow finds that he now has to consider the future of his relations to the bench in the light of his own sense of duty. He can not but realize, notwithstanding the failure to impugn his personal integrity, that the prestige of the court would be impaired should he return to it, and this he could not for himself endure, nor could he allow it to continue as an embarrassment to the other judges."

Shortly after the charges of irregularities were made against him in Congress Judge Winslow issued a statement in which he said that he was conducting an inquiry of his own to determine how and when the "diabolical conspiracy" against him originated.

New British Warship Damaged in Collision

London, April 1 (A.P.).—It is feared that serious damage may have resulted to the new cruiser Devonshire in a collision with a lighter today while being moved out of one of the locks at the Devonport Dockyards. The cruiser's stern was caught by the wind and tide and was swung around against the lighter.

The cruiser, which was commissioned only last Tuesday, will undergo a careful survey.

STIMSON AND BORAH TO DISCUSS POLICIES

PROSPECT OF HARMONY

By ALBERT W. FOX.

A conference of far-reaching importance to the foreign policies of the Hoover administration is to take place between Secretary of State Stimson and Senator Borah, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, within the next few days. It may go a long ways toward determining the extent of helpful cooperation between the State Department and the Senate and thereby initiate an era of teamwork or pave the way for a solution of serious differences during at least the first part of the present administration.

There are prospects of harmony without sacrifice of viewpoint on either side in so far as indicated general policies are concerned, but the World Court problem looms as the one threatening obstacle to genuine cooperation. If Mr. Stimson decides to press for American adherance to the World Court on the basis of the Hurst-Root formula he will encounter determined and uncompromising opposition from Mr. Borah and the effects of an anticipated battle over this issue will extend so far and wide that the Secretary of State and the Senate foreign relations committee will find themselves in opposition on fundamental matters of policy before the Stimson regime has had a fair chance to establish itself.

Mr. Borah conferred with President Hoover on Saturday and has already sought an interview with Mr. Stimson, who was absent from the city. Upon his return yesterday Mr. Stimson expressed regret at not having seen Senator Borah and arrangements are under way to bring about a conference perhaps today or tomorrow.

The Stimson method of handling problems in a practical and direct way, and his demonstrated ability to get results, are understood to have impressed members of the foreign relations committee, Senator Borah included, and there is no reason to believe that Mr. Stimson will not be given genuine and whole-hearted assistance at the Capitol for the carrying out of major policies which require action by the Senate.

Even in cases where honest differences of opinion are apparent, there would be no great difficulty in rallying sufficient support behind the State Department. This would apply to questions affecting the stability of Europe through revision of the Dawes plan, to the Administration's Latin-American policy in general and Mr. Stimson's own Nicaraguan policy in particular. But it will not apply to the World Court.

Hoover Favors Adherence.

It is realized that President Hoover is on record as favoring American adherence to the court with the Senate reservations, and it is assumed that Mr. Stimson entertains the same view and that he would naturally be inclined to favor the Root formula because of his admiration for the work which Mr. Root, his former law partner, has accomplished in this field of international endeavor.

Therefore, neither Mr. Borah nor other members of the foreign relations committee will have cause for complaint if the President and his Secretary of State maintain the position they have so far taken in the World Court matter. But they will strenuously oppose any effort on the part of the President or Secretary Stimson to support more actively the World Court or to endeavor to bring about ratification by the Senate of the new protocol containing the Hurst-Root formula.

So far, neither President Hoover nor Secretary Stimson has made any comment since the Hurst-Root formula was adopted by the League of Nations powers at Geneva. The President has deferred comment in deference to Secretary Stimson, who was on his way to Washington from the Philippines. Mr. Stimson has made no mention of the World Court since assuming his duties.

Neutrality Is Different.

But it will be difficult for Mr. Stimson to remain in a position of neutrality, in view of events scheduled next week. Mr. Root is to arrive in Washington on April 10 in order to confer with senators about the new formula in case the Senate should take the matter up at the special session which opens April 15. The idea of attempting to secure ratification at the coming special session has been abandoned but Mr. Root has not given up his plan to confer with senators about the formula.

The formula which Mr. Root himself outlined in advance was shown to Senator Borah and others before Mr. Root left on his World Court mission to Geneva. It was not regarded as satisfactory but at least it was regarded as a means of preserving intact the important fifth Senate reservation which stipulates that no advisory opinion shall be given by the court on any matter in which the United States has or claims to have an interest unless the United States consents.

The present formula, as amended by Sir Cecil Hurst, abandons the fifth reservation and stipulates that the court may render advisory opinions on matters in which the United States has or claims to have an interest but that the United States in that event may withdraw from the court.

The new formula, with the British amendment, is not acceptable to Senator Borah, Senator Johnson and certain other members of the foreign relations committee. They feel so strongly about the matter that the anticipated pressure for ratification, the expected drive of the internationalists and the apparent desire to force ratification despite objections of men like Borah, Johnson and others forecasts a relentless and uncompromising fight.

Early Skirmish Likely On Root Court Proposal

(Associated Press.)

Prospects for an early skirmish over the new proposal of Elihu Root for American adherence to the World Court were seen yesterday in the suggestion of Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, for consideration of the modified American reservation at the forthcoming extra session of the Senate.

Senator Walsh, one of the sponsors of the reservation now in dispute, places his full approval on the modification worked out by Elihu Root at the recent meeting of international jurists at Geneva.

Senate approval is necessary of the Root proposition which reframed the Senate's original reservation in order to meet the opposition to it of the other powers, but a controversy in the Senate is in prospect, as Senator Johnson (Republican), California, has declared strongly against the Root formula.

LEADS REBELS

MARSHAL CHANG TSUNG-CHANG.

CHINA RIVALS SEEK CASH COMPROMISE

Reign of Terror Exists in Provinces; Many Reported Slain.

72 VILLAGES LIE IN RUINS

Chefoo, Shantung, China (Tuesday), April 2 (A.P.).—The severe fighting of yesterday at Ninghaichow was halted and today the rival commanders were reported in financial negotiations looking for peaceful solution of the struggle for supremacy.

Marshal Chang Tsung-Chang, who last week captured this city from the Nationalists defenders, yesterday was reported to have lost more than 2,000 of his men in an attempt to storm the walls of Ninghaichow. Today it was said that he had offered $50,000 (gold) to the Nationalist's commander, Gen. Liu Chen-Nien, for his surrender, but the latter was reputed to be holding out for $250,000.

Marshal Chang has demanded of the Chefoo Chamber of Commerce $500,000 for his war chest. He has promised to maintain order in the city and thousands of villagers are flocking to it to escape troop and labor levies.

Country Folk Fleeing.

While this city is unharmed, although the situation is tense, missionaries report that a virtual reign of terror exists throughout the countryside from Lungkow eastward almost to Chefoo. Numerous villages have been looted and burned and the country folk, fleeing to the ports to seek a refuge in Manchuria, have forsaken their homesteads and all of their possessions except those they can carry.

A Christian Chinese, arriving from Choyuan in north central Shantung, stated that within an area of less than 400 square miles 72 villages have been burned, 9,000 buildings destroyed, 2,000 families made homeless and 318 persons slain. Other districts were said to have been similarly treated.

Shanghai, April 1 (A.P.).—Dispatches of war developments upriver, where the Nationalists are trying to advance through Hupeh province against Hankow, were conflicting tonight.

Nationalists Advance.

It seemed established that the Nationalists were successfully continuing their advance, with their forces in the northern half of Hupeh meeting stiffer opposition than those on the north bank of the Yanktze River.

Nanking military authorities announced that the head of their forces on the north bank of the Yangtze had reached Yanglo, 25 miles below Hankow, and that Nanking gunboats were bombarding the river shore within 15 miles of the Kwanksi leaders' stronghold.

Although Nanking claims that Hankow will fall by April 6, Hankow dispatches describe the military leaders there as confident of their ability to hold off the attack. Despite this confidence it is said plans for evacuation southward have been drawn up.

Foreign communities and river ports have not been disturbed, but foreign consuls have completed plans for a hasty concentration in case of necessity.

The American consular officials at Hankow and Nanking have requested naval protection. American ships have already arrived at those places and are expected shortly at Kiukiang and Wuhu.

7 Cars of Fast Train Leave Rails in Georgia

Stockbridge, Ga., April 1 (A.P.).—An undetermined number of passengers and members of the train crew were injured in the derailment of several cars of the Ponce de Leon, fast Southern Railway passenger train, two miles south of here today, C. A. Pless, local agent for the road, was advised.

Five Pullmans, an observation car and dining car of the train, which was en route to Jacksonville, Fla., from Cincinnati, left the rails and overturned. The locomotive and three coaches remained on the track.

Doctor, Hugging Wife As He Drives, Arrested

Dr. Leroy Abbott, 32 years old, of 1436 Meridian place northwest, was arrested early yesterday evening and booked at the Tenth Precinct Station on a charge of one-armed driving.

Dr. Abbott, according to precinct policemen, explained that his other arm was encircling his wife. He was forced to post $10 collateral. The arrest was made by Policeman E. C. Moore.

HOOVER'S MESSAGE TO REFLECT CAUTION

IGNORES CENSUS, ORIGINS

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

President Hoover's first message to Congress will reflect the caution that has characterized his first few weeks in office, it is understood. He has completed the first draft of it and is now setting about to put it into final shape.

In the rough draft—and the indications are that it will not be changed in this regard—only two subjects are covered, farm relief and tariff. Any movement looking to repeal of the national origins act or for census reapportionment legislation must be initiated in the Senate. It is doubtful now that there will even be a supplemental message from the President on these subjects.

He has no interest in the census or reapportionment, for that matter, that is not shared by the Capitol Hill leaders in general. National origins repeal is another matter. This was one of Mr. Hoover's issues, so to speak, but there is reason to believe that he does not consider it more of his issue than one of the party and that beyond letting it be well known how he stands on the subject, which he has already done, he will not do anything about it.

In that event it is unlikely that it will be repealed, and the origins basis of immigration quotas will go into effect July 1.

But caution, it is indicated, is to be the keynote of the two subjects which he does discuss in his message. It is not to be so worded that by any stretch of the imagination can he be placed as showing a square jaw to Congress.

The tariff, admittedly, is his greatest problem. The President is against any general upward revision, against the setting up of a free-for-all grab bag. He believes the party would invite disaster by doing so. He is, broadly speaking, for a limited revision to apply to farm schedules and a few others that need to be readjusted.

But no public utterance of his has reflected this view. It has come from House and Senate leaders who have talked with him.

The indications are that it will still be for these leaders to give any forceful expression to this view rather than the President in his forthcoming message or in any subsequent utterances. Some forceful expression of it will be necessary, admittedly, to deal with the spirit on the hill reflected in the aggressive Joseph H. Grundy, Pennsylvania tariff lobbyist extraordinary. It is really, that the obstreperous spirits on the hill reflect Mr. Grundy's desires.

The, are for higher duties all along the line. Mr. Grundy is quite frankly not concerned with any cost the Republican party might have to pay in 1930. He wants his high duties now.

As to his demands being written into law, well, there are 30 members of the House from Pennsylvania alone to whom his word is of serious import.

There is quite a bit of mystery just now as to just what Mr. Grundy has in mind, or as to how he plans to carry it out. A few weeks ago statements issued from his lobbying organization here in a steady stream. And following each flow letters from constituents cascaded down upon members of Congress.

Had Talk With Hoover.

At that time Mr. Grundy wanted, above all, the American valuation plan which, unless tariff duties were scaled downward to meet it, would be just the same as if the duties were boosted in the first instance. But Mr. Grundy went up and had a talk with Mr. Hoover and thereafter for quite a time no statements came from his statement-making mill. About all that could be gotten out of him was that the situation had changed.

In the past few days the statements have begun to appear again and they advocate the United States valuation plan. Unless the duties are scaled down to meet this plan, which is that of assaying imports at the wholesale selling price of similar articles in this country, the tariff increase would be obtained.

Those who profess to know Mr. Hoover's tariff views say it is inconceivable that he told Mr. Grundy anything upon which he might base the hope that the United States plan would be acceptable, unless, of course, the present rates would be proportionately lowered to meet it, in which event it is not believed Mr. Grundy would be so interested.

American Plan Rebuffed.

Mr. Grundy's present attitude may be explained by a reported happening among Republican tariff makers up on the hill. One of the many subcommittees of the House ways and means committee, according to this story, decided to make a test of the American valuation plan by basing all the schedules with which it was dealing on this plan and giving the net result of an increase over present prices. With this draft it went to the full committee where it met with such a cold shoulder as to convince it that the American plan had no chance. It may be that that incident caused Mr. Grundy's switch to the United States plan.

At any rate, Mr. Hoover is not going to say anything in his message, it is understood, that will put him in an open fight with Mr. Grundy, or the bloc that reflects his view in Congress. In line with his stated belief that the constitutional relationship between the legislative and executive branches of the Government must be maintained, it will be for the congressional leaders to lock horns with the Grundy obstructives and subdue them.

Similarly, it is not believed his discussion of farm relief will be any more detailed than it was during the campaign.

Veteran Arrested In Store Holdup

Delicatessen Owner Robbed by Two; Detective Gets Suspect.

Entering the Crystal Delicatessen Store, at 801 Third street northwest, late last night, two holdup men ordered the manager and his 14-year-old brother to lie flat on the floor, and rifled the cash register. Five minutes later Frank Wilford Hicks, 26 years old, war veteran, of 1800 C street northwest, was arrested by Detective James E. Kane, of the Tenth Precinct, who took him to the Sixth Precinct Station House and charged him with robbery.

Kane said he found $38.21 in Hick's pocket. According to Iros J. Gianaris, manager of the store, two men ordered soft drinks, changed 50 cents and started playing with a slot machine. One of the men turned with a gun and ordered Gianaris and his brother, Peter Gianaris, to lie flat on the floor or "they'd get their brains blown out." Gianaris obeyed, but jumped to his feet as soon as the men departed. His cries attracted Detective Kane, who was standing on a corner a block away. Kane chased after a man running down an alley. It was Hicks. Gianaris could not determine the exact amount stolen, but said it was less than $50.

No positive identification of Hicks had been made late last night by Gianaris.

HOWELL SUGGESTS COURT TEST OF FEE

Nebraska Senator Asks Farm Bill Include Levy to Obtain Ruling.

HYDE TALKS TOMORROW

(Associated Press.)

A procession of witnesses with suggestions for solving the farm problem passed before the Senate and House agriculture committees yesterday adding their testimony to the already bulging records of the two committees.

Meanwhile members were looking forward to the appearance tomorrow of Secretary Hyde, of the Agriculture Department, before the Senate committee and his later appearance before the House group.

Most of the farm leaders at the Capitol are of the opinion that Mr. Hyde will stick closely to the general principles of farm relief as laid down in the Republican platform and the campaign speeches of President Hoover. The view is general that he will emphatically declare against an equalization fee or any other form of tax by which the cost of controlling crop surpluses would be placed directly upon the farmer.

Howell Would Test Fee.

The first serious discussion of the equalization fee since the present hearings were begun was heard yesterday before the Senate committee. In spite of the well-known opposition to the fee by the administration, Senator Howell, (Republican), Nebraska, urged that the new bill be so constructed as to permit a test of its constitutionality in the Supreme Court.

The senator prefaced his suggestion with the statement that he assumed "it will be impracticable" to base the new farm bill upon the equalization fee principle.

"Why do you say impracticable?" queried Senator Norbeck (Republican), South Dakota.

Senator Howell started to reply, but hesitated, and Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, said he would be glad to answer for his colleague.

Couldn't Override Veto.

"It would be impracticable," Senator Norris said, "because we haven't the votes in Congress to pass a bill with the fee in it over the President's veto."

Senator Howell suggested that the proposed farm board be authorized to select one crop and apply the fee plan to it.

"Of course," he added, "such action will probably be met by an injunction, thus ending, at least temporarily, the experiment. However, the Supreme Court will thus finally pass upon the equalization fee principle—a result much to be desired.

"Should the decision be adverse, then the equalization fee would be definitely disposed of and the atmosphere cleared to that extent. On the other hand, should the principle of the fee be upheld, its further application, if deemed wise and necessary, will not be delayed several years awaiting a court decision. Of course, any farm legislation adopted will, necessarily, be experimental. What I propose is to conduct, coincidentally, a major and a minor experiment."

Cotton Strike Gaining In Piedmont District

Spartanburg, S. C., April 1 (A.P.).—Protests by employes against so-called efficiency systems recently introduced in cotton mills of the Piedmont section continued today with two more mills added to the list of those at which there have been strikes within the last ten days.

Three hundred employes of the Woodruff Mills, Woodruff, S. C., a branch of the Brandon Corporation, added their voices to those of the 1,750 employes of the corporation at its Greenville mills who went out last week. Two hundred weavers at the Unio Buffalo Mills, located near Union, S. C., left their looms without giving a reason for the walkout.

Walkouts also occurred at the Greenville plants of the Brandon Corporation, the Ware Shoals Mills, the Palmer Mills and the Isaqueena Mills at Central.

Publisher and Farm Expert Speaks to Congress Bodies

Minneapolis Man Tells of Progressive Work In Northwest.

F. E. MURPHY.

Frederick E. Murphy, publisher of The Mineapolis Tribune, noted farmer and breeder of Holstein cattle and Percheron horses, owner of Pemco farms and advocate of "better farming" as a sound means for raising farm profits, addressed the House and Senate agricultural committees at a dinner at the Willard Hotel last night about "farm relief."

Mr. Murphy was mentioned for Secretary of Agriculture in President Hoover's Cabinet.

Accompanied by the Tribune agricultural editor, Charles F. Collisson, the publisher showed how dairying and live stock raising, cow testing and good breeding, diversified farming and the "cow-sow-hen system of agriculture are solving farm problems in the Northwestern wheat country.

They were introduced by Representative August H. Andresen, of Red Wing, Minn.

"Too much emphasis has been put on the marketing end of agriculture," said the publisher, "and not enough on the importance of cutting costs, increasing yields of grains, producing more fertilizer and restoring the fertility of soils exhausted by grain growing.

"Besides exhausting the land, continued wheat raising infects the soil with weeds. In the Northwest we are applying the lessons of Denmark. She was once given over to grain growing. The result was soil exhaustion, which forced the Danes into dairying.

"She is now one of the leading dairy countries of the world; yet Denmark produces more wheat than when she devoted herself to wheat raising exclusively.

"Her cooperative dairying is the model for the world.

"During the past few years industry has speeded up as never before—applied the same methods we are urging for agriculture. The latter will have to speed up considerably if it is to catch up."

The speaker pleaded for increased appropriations for educational and research work, more county agents, boys' and girls' farm clubs, herd improvement associations, college extension work and the educational forces working to make the farmer more efficient and farming more profitable.

"The methods of getting the results of college and governmental agricultural research fall far short of what can be done with your aid," declared Mr. Murphy. "Congress can help a lot by giving them the needed funds."

"All over the Northwest, town and county are getting together, business man and farmer, to help one another solve farm problems," said Mr. Collisson. "Teamwork and the get-together spirit have allayed the old unrest. The Northwest is putting into practice the principle of cooperation."

8 KILLED IN 4 STATES AS STORMS DO GREAT DAMAGE OVER EAST

Farmer Dies in Home.

Stroudsburg, Pa., April 1 (A.P.).—One man was killed and two persons were injured this afternoon in a tornado that cut a path 4 miles wide along the Delaware River.

The storm also caused heavy damage on the New Jersey side of the river, particularly in the vcinity of Columbia, opposite Portland.

Sweeping in from the southwest, the storm carried houses and barns from their foundations, blew off roofs of scores of other buildings and uprooted hundreds of trees.

The man who lost his life was Boyd Titman, of Polkville, about 2½ miles from Portland. He was struck by heavy timbers from the wreckage of his barn. A brother, Charles Titman, and his family narrowly escaped injury or death. They saw the approach of the funnel-shaped cloud and hastened to their cellar a moment before their house was carried from its foundation.

Bridge Is Blocked.

At Vale, N. J., Charles Jones, 33, suffered a possible fracture of the skull when struck by flying timber as his barn was lifted from its foundation. Buildings were damaged in Easton and telephone and electric light wires were put out of commission. A bridge spanning the Delaware River between Portland and Columbia was rocked and closed to all but foot traffic. Nearly every chimney in Portland, a town of about 40,000, was blown down. Scores of houses were unroofed in Portland and Columbia, and the highways were blocked by fallen trees and other debris. The storm lasted only about two minutes.

Columbus, Ohio, April 1 (A.P.).—Taking a toll of three lives, injuring half a dozen persons seriously and causing thousands of dollars property damage, a high wind swept over Ohio today and wasted its fury tonight as it passed into the east.

L. A. Cornett, Newark radio salesman, was killed almost instantly when the high wind blew a large tree down on his automobile, en route from his suburban home to work in Newark. His automobile was demolished.

Girl Hit by Auto.

Loa Bacon, 16, of Belmore, near Limi, was blown into the path of an automobile as she made her way to the country of a broken neck and a fractured skull.

Two Cleveland men, Frank Moore, 70, a hoisting engineer, and Charles Zizka, 74, were injured probably fatally. The wind buried Moore beneath school along Montooth road. She died a heap of debris when it ripped the roof from a building on which he was working.

Zizka was struck by a sign torn loose from its fastenings by the gale.

Mrs. J. C. Kohler, 77, of Wapakoneta, suffered a fractured hip when the wind blew her off her feet.

Margaret Beal, 10, died from a crushed skull suffered when the wind tore out a window frame in the public school at Newell, W. Va., across the Ohio River from East Liverpool, and hurled it against the girl as she sat at her desk. Marion Brooks, 11, and Vernon Cline, 11, fellow pupils, were cut by broken glass.

Orchards Are Damaged.

The wind roared from one end of the State to the other, tearing down signs, breaking windows, ripping light buildings from their foundations, crippling telephone and telegraph communication and doing heavy damage to orchards.

Alliance, Canton, Massilon, Akron and Youngstown reported considerable damage from the wind.

The velocity of the wind varied. At Columbus its highest velocity was 35 miles an hour, while Cleveland reported a speed of 54 miles an hour, and Youngstown a velocity of 58.

Chicago, April 1 (A.P.).—Winter made a return engagement in the Middle West during the Easter weekend, paralyzing many sections and leaving them today to contemplate the seriousness of his April Fool antics.

New Flood Menaces.

The Easter storm not only thwarted fashion parades and demoralized communication lines but created a new flood menace in the upper Mississippi Valley where rain, snow and sleet rushed down into streams already at flood stage.

While the unseasonable storm swept furiously over a wide area of the Middle West, reports from Wisconsin and upper Michigan indicated it struck hardest there with one of the worst blizzards of the year. The extent of the storm in this section could not readily be determined since telegraph and telephone lines were either down or "weather bound."

A young girl was killed in Arkansas, struck by a falling tree. A policeman in St. Louis suffered brain concussion when struck by an awning. Property damage was heavy, buildings destroyed, plate glass windows crashed and telegraph and telephone poles broken.

Injured in Missouri.

Poplar Bluff, Mo., April 1 (A.P.).—Two score persons were injured and property damage that may reach $1,000,000 was caused by a terrific Easter windstorm in southeastern Missouri. No deaths had been reported late today, and it was believed none of the injuries would prove fatal.

Cheered by bright sunshine, people in the storm area began clearing away the debris and removing furniture from damaged buildings in an effort to reduce losses. Albert Over, American Red Cross disaster worker, arrived this afternoon to supervise relief work in the stricken area outside of this (Butler) county, where the local Red Cross chapter will handle the work.

The damage in Butler County was confined to the rural sections known as the Roxie Community, Green Forest Church Community and Marble Hill Community. Twenty to thirty buildings were either wrecked or damaged by the wind that reached almost tornado proportions.

French Tug Rescues 90 From Damaged Liner

Bordeaux, France, April 1 (A.P.).—The captain of the Commandant Damas, one of four tugs which went to the assistance of the French steamship Ceylon, damaged in a collision yesterday, today notified the harbor master of Verdon that he had 90 passengers aboard and expected to reach La Pallice-La Rochelle late today.

The Ceylon is proceeding to La Pallice in the tow of three tugs. The disabled ship was reported making water rapidly, but the tugs' pumps were managing to keep her afloat.

The British steamship Clodoald, which was in collision with the Ceylon yesterday, continued her voyage after seeing that the French vessel was safely taken in charge by the tugs.

SHAKE-UP CONTINUES AT ATLANTA PRISON

Four Key Officers Reduced, Is Report, as Snook Quits Wardenship.

PROTEST SENT MITCHELL

Atlanta, Ga., April 1 (A.P.).—The Journal said today that four "key" officers of the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary are reported to have been demoted to guard duty on the prison walls on orders from Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Assistant Attorney General, in the process of a personnel shake-up growing out of the dismissal of Warden John W. Snook.

Snook left the institution last night after his resignation had been demanded following his criticism of the espionage system established in the prison by the Department of Justice.

The four officials, all veterans, who were said to have enjoyed the confidence of the former warden, are: Capt. Clarence L. Parker, yard captain of the day watch; Lieut. Grover C. Hopkins, Parker's assistant; John Grider, assistat record clerk; L. M. Walker, in control of the entrance gates.

The newspaper's report of the reduction in rank could not be verified at the prison because of the departmental "gag" rule forbidding the issuance of any information.

Pending the appointment of a successor to Snook, the penitentiary is in charge of Deputy Warden A. C. Aderhold.

Several special agents of the Justice Department were reported in Atlanta to make an investigation of the prison.

On his departure last night, Snook made public a copy of a letter he had written Attorney General Mitchell in which he dubbed as "insulting" a telegram which he said was sent by Mrs. Willebrandt over Mitchell's name reprimanding him for permitting newspaper men to inspect the prison and demanding that he carry away no copies of data or records.

In the midst of protest by prisoners, who beat upon their cell doors, whistled and shouted, Snook left his post as warden late last night, carrying with him a "receipt in full" for all inmates, records and Government property at the institution.

Snook had been popular with the prisoners, and as the time of his retirement arrived under the terms of his resignation, effective at midnight last night, the men set up a noisy protest. Jailers threatened force before they were quieted.

On his last day in office, the warden made public a letter he had written Attorney General Mitchell, in which he defended his administration and expressed the hope that the practice of "planting Department of Justice agents in the prison be abolished.

(Associated Press.)

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Assistant Attorney General, declared last night that she knew nothing of any changes in the personnel at the Atlanta Penitentiary. She said that Acting Warden A. C. Aderhold had the full authority of the Department of Justice to make whatever changes in personnel he believed necessary.

Nothing could be learned at the Department of Justice as to whether agents of the Bureau of Investigation were in Atlanta.

Status of I'm Alone Subject of Parley

Stimson and Mitchell Try to Determine U. S. Attitude.

(United Press.)

Secretary of State Stimson and Attorney General Mitchell conferred at the State Department for almost an hour yesterday in an effort to determine exactly the position of the United States in the controversy with Canada over the sinking of the Canadian rum smuggler I'm Alone.

Pending his decision on the incident, Stimson has forbidden department officers to comment on the examination of the question which is now in progress. Although State Department officials refused to confirm or deny the report, it was understood Mitchell discussed with Stimson the Department of Justice report on the legal aspects of the I'm Alone case.

The whole matter still depends, the United Press was informed, upon action by Canadian authorities. It is understood Stimson will not comment on the incident nor make any of the reports public until he has heard from Ottawa.

Slain Youth Found Burned in Log Hut

Wrists of Victim Bound With Wire—Identification Balked.

Spring Valley, N. Y., April 1 (U.P.).—A badly burned body, found in the remains of a log cabin, lay unclaimed in an undertaking establishment here tonight while officers attempted to solve what appeared to be a murder.

The body was found Sunday by four Boy Scouts and appeared to be that of a young man. It was so badly burned that identification probably will be impossible, but officers said that no missing person answering to the measurements of the body had been reported.

The hands were folded across the chest and they were tied with a wire. There were no identifying marks in the cabin.

April Fool Alarm Fatal for Fireman

Three Others Are Hurt as Truck Crashes Into Auto.

Johnson City, Tenn., April 1 (A.P.).—An April fool's joke became a grewsome tragedy here tonight, when a fireman was killed and two of his comrades injured while answering a false alarm.

F. C. Puckett, driver of Engine Company No. 2, was killed instantly and Assistant Chief George Wilson and Fireman Marion Hale were severely hurt in a collision between their fire truck and an automobile.

The fire truck and the automobile came together at a street intersection with terrific impact, the truck turning over twice, crushing Puckett. John Kelly, salesman, driver of the automobile was badly bruised.

Puckett tried to avoid hitting the car, but in swerving the big truck caused it to strike the curbing and turn over after glancing off the lighter machine.

An alarm, turned in by an unknown party, presumably as a prank, already had drawn another engine to the vicinity and a crowd which witnessed the fatality.

REBEL ASPIRATIONS OUTLINED BY UGARTE

Agent Here Accuses Morrow of Using Office to Aid Calles Regime.

CALLS GIL LATTER'S TOOL

(Associated Press.)

Gerzayn Ugarte, head of the diplomatic mission sent to Washington by Mexican rebel forces, declared in a prepared statement yesterday that the present insurgent movement in his country was a public effort to "oppose the despotic regime which had imposed itself on the people against their will."

He indorsed the statement credited to Gen. Escobar, commander in chief of the rebel armies, charging that Ambassador Morrow was using his office to further the cause of the "Calles administration" in Mexico, and expressed surprise that it should have offended the State Department. Disclaiming any desire "to enter into a controversy with the State Department," Ugarte said, "Our purpose is to expose to the American people our cause, and to disclose to them the antecedents and aspirations of the revolutionary party."

Former President Calles was charged in the statement with "continuing to weild his power through the provisional president, Portes Gil, his instrument," after having "promised faithfully" to withdraw from public affairs at the expiration of his "term" as president.

Ugarte asserted that the revolution was not a "military mutiny," but was "that upon the fact that the constitutional state governments of Sonora, Chihuahua, Durango and Sinaloa seceded from the federal pact and broke their alliance with the central government, delegating their power and their representation to Gen. Escobar."

Claiming "many military successes against the federal army" for the insurgent movement, Ugarte concluded his statement with the charge that the "Calles regime can not sustain itself in power without the moral and material support of the United States Government."

Law Firm Prints Notice Of Stimson Retirement

New York, April 1 (A.P.).—Through the medium of a newspaper advertisement, the law firm of Winthrop, Stimson, Putnam & Roberts today announced the retirement of Henry L. Stimson, who withdrew to become Secretary of State under President Hoover.

Mr. Stimson presented his formal resignation last Thursday when he was sworn in as Secretary of State. The advertisement announced that his name would continue to be a part of the firm name, although he no longer is connected with it.

Thieves Again Rob Mail on Leviathan

Registered Bag Is Slit and Small Package Abstracted.

London, April 1 (A.P.).—The steamship Leviathan's mail has suffered from thieves again.

When the mail for the ship from London arrived at Southampton Saturday morning one of the registered mail bags was found to have been slit open and a small package taken. The exact description could not be obtained.

It was reported, also, that several registered letters were taken. Some said the package taken was consigned from a London diamond merchant to a firm in Bogota, Colombia. It was assumed the theft took place in London.

Bonds, jewelry and money estimated in some advices at $100,000 to $500,000 but said by the government to be not more than $12,000 were stolen from the mail of the Leviathan while it was at sea between New York and Southampton and Cherbourg last June. There were three arrests, two of them of members of the crew.

considered routine business during the day.

Secretary Mellon, who attended the meeting of the Reserve Board, declared that neither the subject of discount rates, the New York situation, nor the action of Charles Mitchell, of the National City Bank, in lending $25,000,000 on the New York Stock Exchange last week, was mentioned. The New York situation had been discussed by the board previously, he said.

During the meeting of the board, several of the governors stopped by the room, but it was said that only routine matters were discussed. There was no joint session.

The governors met in the board's regular meeting room while the board held its session in the office of Gov. Young of the Reserve Board.

In announcing that the individual income tax had increased and exceeded the corporation tax collected, the Treasury did not make public the amount under each division. It was said that the corporation tax this year about equaled Treasury estimates and from present indications would fall below the individual collections for the calendar year for the first time. The corporation tax this year was 1½ per cent less than in previous years, having been reduced to 12 per cent by the 1928 revenue act.

MEXICAN FEDERALS FORCE REBELS BACK offensive instead of waiting for the federal attack on La Cruz.

Gen. Carillo, with the Twelfth Federal Regiment, now is en route to Limon to reinforce the federal column.

Meanwhile another battle of major proportions was impending on the Pacific Coast where Gen. Lazaro Cardenas' column of 8,000 federals was drawing close to La Cruz, about 64 miles north of Mazatlan. It was estimated that about 4,000 insurgents under Gens. Ramon F. Iturbe and Roberto Cruz had concentrated there and were prepared to make a stand. The federal advance guard came in contact with enemy outposts at several points today and drove them back after brief skirmishes.

Secretary of War Plutarco Elias Calles, from his headquarters at Bermejillo, 100 miles southeast of Jimenez, reported to the Chapultepec Castle that the struggle for possession of Jimenez was proceeding along a two-mile front with cavalry, infantry, artillery and air forces engaged.

Rebels Strongly Entrenched.

The federals had found the insurgents strongly entrenched about a mile south of Jimenez, their lines describing a semicircle around the southern approaches of the city. Federal artillery was flung into place and began a bombardment of the enemy trenches at 1 o'clock this morning. The infantry and cavalry got into action soon afterward, but, despite constant fighting, the federals had made a noteworthy advance at only one point up to noon.

That was on the right flank of the enemy, which at one place was pushed back into the city itself, where street fighting followed.

Judging from the report of Gen. Calles, however, a small body of troops succeeded in skirting the rebel position and destroyed several railroad bridges to the north on the road to Chihauhua City, cutting off means of retreat of the insurgents.

No mention of casualties was made by Gen. Calles, but he claimed that a rebel captain and 83 men had surrendered. The captured captain was quoted as saying that the rebel ranks were demoralized.

The insurgents were believed to be under the personal command of Gen. Francisco Urbalejo and Gen. Jose Gonzalo Escobar, the rebel commander in chief. They have several airplanes, one of which bombed the federal lines during the morning, but was forced by federal aviators to return to rebel territory.

The tone of the report of the secretary of war was decidedly optimistic. He several times assured the president that the federals would win and even expressed belief that Gen. Almazan would bottle up the rebels so that their defeat would mean the surrender or annihilation of the entire insurgent army.

Capt. Robert Fierro, who achieved fame by his flights to Havana and Central America last year, returned to the federal lines on foot today after abandoning his plane which was forced down in rebel territory yesterday by motor trouble.

Monterey Hears of Battle.

Monterey, Nuevo Leon, Mexico, April 1 (A. P.).—Official reports received here late this afternoon said that federal troops had occupied the railroad station and the northern part of the city of Jimenez, Chihuahua. A major battle was in progress.

It also was said that a rebel troop train had retreated northward late today. Col. Garcia de Alba declared that rebel reports of successes against the federals received at the American border were untrue and that Gen. Almazan was pressing the attack.

Naco, Sonora, Mexico, April 1 (A.P.).—A battle in this vicinity between rebel and federal troops within the next 24 hours appeared inevitable today as Gen. Fausto Topete commenced to deploy his forces in skirmish formation to the southeast of the federal entrenchments. Meanwhile the rebel general made another attempt to lower the morale of the defenders with a third rain of bombs from the air.

No deaths resulted from the air raid which came without warning a few minutes before 10 o'clock this morning.

A federal soldier was wounded this afternoon in the second aerial bombardment of the fortifications by rebel planes today. Four bombs were dropped, all falling inside the entrenchments, but only two exploded.

Bombing Follows Funeral.

A bombing following closely the funeral in a litite cemetery outside the wire entanglements of the two federal captains who were killed by an air bomb yesterday afternoon.

Three of today's bombs fell within the fortifications of the town but failed to strike in the trenches. One missle knocked down a Mexican civilian and another civilian was struck in the heel by a flying steel fragment. Another bomb fell in the back yard of a house in which a Mexican woman was bathing a child. Fragments of the shell riddled a washtutb hanging on the wall over their heads but injured neither. Soldiers fled to shelter.

In the raid the rebels sent a second plane aloft to protect the bomber against possible attack by federal aviators. Two federal planes armed with submachine guns, hovered along the international line during the attack while Mexican officials strove to expedite permission from Washington for the planes to enter Mexico.

Activity inside the trenches was feverish. New machine gun emplacements were thrown up in the southeast sector as it began to appear that that section of the trenches might be called upon to withstand the brunt of the attack and all small buildings near the line of trenches were being knocked down.

Federal Ace Reported Killed.

Juarez, Chihuahua, April 1 (A.P.).—Official rebel bulletins today declared that Maj. Roberto Fierro, ace of the Mexican federal air forces, had been killed in a crash at Torreon after being wounded by a rifle bullet in an air raid on Jimenez. It was asserted the death had been confirmed. (This conflicted with Mexico City advices which reported that Maj. Fierro was forced down in rebel territory but had reached the federal lines safely on foot.)

The rebels claimed that after Fierro was wounded his assistant took the controls and the machine crashed because of the latter's inability to handle it. Both men were declared to have been killed.

Maj. Fierro made a good will flight to Central America last August and September. He made a nonstop hop from Mexico City to Havana on August 11, taking off secretly from Valbuena Flying Field and bringing his plane down in Havana 3 hours and 40 minutes later.

On August 21, he started his Central American tour, visiting Guatemala, Honduras, San Salvador, Costa Rica and Panama. He completed the trip on September 20.

For some time previous to making the Central American trip he had planned to fly from Havana to New York, but gave this idea up.

Brazil-New York Bike Jaunt Ended

Youth Is Certain, However, He'll Not Pedal Way Home.

New York, April 1 (A.P.).—Outdoing the best achievement of the Rover Boys of fiction, Ruben Pinheiro Costa arrived in New York today on a bicycle from Brazil.

It is 11,000 miles from Bahia, Brazil, to the city hall steps, and Costa's first act after letting go the handlebars was to dispel any rumors that he planned to go home on a bicycle.

Exactly three years and fifteen days ago, Costa's friends in Bahia laughed when he said he could ride a bicycle to New York. They received a cablegram today that made them laugh out of the other side of their mouths.

"But then," said Costa, "I did not dream of how long it would take or what thousands of difficulties would be encountered. A hundred times I wanted to quit, but I could not have faced my friends in Bahia if I had. That was the only thing that kept me on the road."

The trip was tough on tires. He wore out 26 sets.

MICHAELSON MAKES BOND IN LIQUOR CASE

Illinois Member of Congress Surrenders in Chicago on Florida Charge.

DENIES RUM POSSESSION

Chicago, April 1 (United Press).—Representative M. Alfred Michaelson, of Illinois, a dry advocate, who had been sought for three days on charges of violating the prohibition act, surrendered himself at the Federal building today.

Michaelson was charged in an indictment returned last October at Jacksonville, Fla., with smuggling liquor into the United States from Cuba. Details of the indictment were not disclosed until last week.

A warrant was issued for his arrest last Friday and the representative was given 24 hours to surrender. When he did not appear voluntarily last Saturday, it was reported that he had gone to Florida, where search was made for him.

Says Charges Unfounded.

Michaelson was not recognized when he appeared today at the office of Assistant District Attorney Eugene A. Tappy.

"I would like to see Mr. Tappy," he said.

"What did you wish to see him about?" an assistant in Tappy's office inquired.

Tappy appeared at his door and, recognizing the representative, asked him to come to his private office.

Michaelson denied the charges made in the Jacksonville indictment, terming them "absolutely unfounded."

"Why didn't you surrender Saturday? Where have you been?" A reporter asked.

"I have been back East and just got in town this morning," Michaelson said. "All I want to say now is that I hope the public will withhold its judgment until the facts are known. There was no liquor in this case at all."

Plan Removal to Florida.

Michaelson and Tappy were in conference a few minutes before the representative was taken into the office of Edwin K. Walker, United States Commissioner, who set his bond at $2,000 pending proceedings to remove him to Jacksonville, Fla.

The entire proceedings in the Federal Buildinz lasted less than ten minutes. Michaelson, who served three terms in Congress, appeared obviously worried over the charges against him. After making bond, he hurried away, granting only a short interview to newspaper men.

"My office will have a more detailed statement to give out later," he said.

Trial Planned in May.

Jacksonville, Fla., April 1 (A.P.).—Representative M. A. Michaelson, of Chicago, indicted here some months ago on a charge of violating the national prohibition law, will go on trial at the term of Federal Court beginning at Key West May 6, it was announced here today at the office of the United States district attorney.

The special session of Congress is expected to still be in session during the May term of court at Key West. There was no information here, however, whether or not Mr. Michaelson will claim congressional immunity from trial at that time. The next regular term of court would be in November, and should his case be postponed until that time, the regular term of Congress would be in session.

The value of the estate was not given.

MORGAN RUM QUIZ OPENS IN NEW YORK

ficial—presumably one of those at the session today—after which the bottles were put back in the luggage and free entry granted. The customs official is said to have been unaware that liquor was under discussion.

No Evidence Retained.

Crawford is understood to have told Mr. Tuttle today that he thought "free entry" applied to everything which the Congressman might have in his possession, for which reason he made no further attempt to examine the baggage.

An unusual situation is presented in the Morgan investigation through the fact that the inspectors failed to impound the bottles as evidence, the question of whether or not Mr. Morgan brought in any liquor apparently hinging on his alleged admission to the inspectors that the four bottles contained liquor.

(Associated Press.)

Representative Morgan, of Ohio, who regards as a closed incident the alleged finding of four bottles of liquor in his baggage when he returned recently from Panama, emphasized his position yesterday by putting this notice on his office door:

"To press reporters—Nothing more to say."

Morgan has denied that liquor was found in his luggage and customs inspectors at New York have declared with equal emphasis that four bottles were found and were returned to the Ohioan.

No Curtailment Seen.

Under Treasury Department regulations, congressmen returning from official foreign trips can obtain freedom of the port, and that is a privilege which Secretary Mellon said today he had never utilized himself. On all his returns from trips, he said, a declaration had been made of what he brought back and his baggage had been examined by inspectors.

The information was volunteered by the Treasury head in the course of a discussion of the freedom of the port regulations. He said his attention had been called to allegations that a member of Congress, enjoying freedom of the port, had brought liquor into the United States. Mr. Mellon expressed the opinion that such courtesies extended to members of Congress had not been abused and said the Treasury was not planning any steps toward curtailment of the freedom of the port privilege.

Archbishop of Canterbury Recovering.

Lodon, April 1 (A.P.).—The Archbishop of Canterbury today completed a period of recuperation at Bognor and left for Paris en route for the Mediterranean. He was still pale from his recent illness. It is understood that the archbishop will take a cruise in J. P. Morgan's yacht, Corsair, visiting Athens, Alexandria and Jerusalem.

FRENCH SHIP TO BRING HERRICK'S BODY HOME

register now contains the names of all the members of the government, the whole of the diplomatic corps and a vast number of French people and members of the American colony.

New York, April 1 (A.P.).—Parmely Herrick said today that he would be unable to reach Paris in time to escort the body of his father, the late Ambassador to France, back to the United States. Mr. Herrick left New York this afternoon for Philadelphia, where he will remain until the French cruiser bringing his father's body arrives.

Mr. Herrick found on his arrival here from Cleveland today that he could not get a boat to France before Friday. He talked with Mrs. Herrick over the transatlantic telephone this afternoon and learned that the funeral service in Paris would take place Thursday morning, in the American procathedral.

"As soon as possible after the funeral my father's body will be placed aboard a French cruiser and will start for home," he said. "We do not know yet when the cruiser will leave, when she will arrive here or whether she will dock in New York or in Washington. Mrs. Herrick will sail for home Saturday on the Aquitania."

Simple Service Planned.

So far as possible the funeral services in this country will be simple, Mr. Herrick said. Present plans are to take the ambassador's body directly to Cleveland, without any ceremony here or in Washington. The date of the funeral in Cleveland can not be decided until the date of the French cruiser's arrival is known.

Mr. Herrick was accompanied to Philadelphia by his son Parmley Herrick, jr., the late ambassador's only grandson. Until the French cruiser arrives, they will be guests of A. J. Drexel Paul, on his estate near Philadelphia. Mr. Herrick arrived here on the Ile de France last week to spend the Easter holidays with his son, who is a student at St. Paul's School at Concord, N. H.

SHAKE-UP LOOMING IN POSTAL SERVICE

Postmaster General Brown to Reorganize Department on Business Lines.

GLOVER TO RETAIN POST

(Associated Press.)

The Postoffice Department is on the verge of a general reorganization which will include a large part of the administrative branches and extend on down through the entire postal service.

Postmaster General Brown has determined not only to bring the postoffice nearer a paying basis but also to raise the standard of character and ability in the tremendous personnel of the postal service.

If the present plans of Mr. Brown are carried out, and it is understood that he has submitted them to President Hoover and received from him the promise of hearty support, the only Assistant Postmaster General to remain will be W. Irving Glover, now Second Assistant in Charge of Air Mail.

First Assistant Postmaster General Bartlett is to be replaced and the duties of that office so remodeled that instead of spending time settling personnel disputes and studying postoffice sites the First Assistant will become the right-hand of the Postmaster General in the formulating of policies and their execution. No one has been selected to succeed Mr. Bartlett.

The Third Assistant, Robert S. Regar, is to be replaced by a certified public accountant if one can be found who has what Mr. Brown terms "a knowledge of the broader phases of business." Mr. Regar, under the present plans, will be retained in the department in another capacity, as the new Postmaster General has a high regard for his ability. Under the Third Assistant at present almost the entire financial policy of the department is carried out.

4 in Southern Cross Are Reported Safe

London, April 1 (A.P.).—A Sydney dispatch to the Evening News says that Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith and his companions, who made a forced landing on the northwest coast of Australia, while on a flight from Sydney to England, were reported safe today. Their machine was not damaged.

The airmen were lost in a blinding rainstorm and when their gasoline was exhausted were forced to land near the Drysdale Mission Station in the Cambridge Gulf country. The natives in this district were stated to be friendly, but the place is extremely isolated, and supplies will have to be sent to the plane 200 miles by launch.

Dickey will be the violinist and Louis Potter, jr., will play the cello. Miss Mary Apple and Mr. William P. Shanahan will sing a duet. The concert is open to the public.

INSTEAD of exercise

If you haven't time for regular exercise, better learn the secret millions already know—the secret of the exerciser in the vest-pocket box for a dime.

Leading physicians say Cascarets give your bowels as much real exercise as you get from an hour in the water.

Cascarets are made from Cascara Sagrada, which stimulates the peristaltic action and exercises the bowel muscles. Oils, salts and ordinary laxatives don't act like Cascarets. These things only produce mechanical or chemical action. They weaken your bowels whenever you resort to them.

Every time you take Cascarets your bowels become stronger. That's the reason they give lasting relief from constipation, biliousness, headaches, indigestion, bloating, etc. That's why 20 million boxes are used yearly.

He shut out the roar of the Street . . . but he shut in a more deadly din

There has been a great awakening in American Business to the devastating cost of noise. Millions are spent in office building construction to shut out the thunder of the street by insulating walls and ceilings. But in closing out the noisy distractions of the outside world, many business men are overlooking the vital importance of suppressing the inside noise manufactured right within the office itself!

The biggest factor in creating office noise is typewriter clatter. For the typewriter regulates the pitch of the office.

The one and only remedy for typewriter clatter is the REMINGTON NOISELESS Typewriter. With one of these machines, your secretary can type your letters within whispering distance of your desk and you will scarcely be conscious of her presence.

"Among these the most famous is the Palmolive Soap treatment. You take this soap which is made from the oils of the Palm tree and the Olive tree. You massage it gently into the face—so (with some warm water, of course), until you see the skin is clean. Then wash it off, still with gently warm water following with cold. There you have a beauty treatment used by famous beauties throughout Europe."

Dozens of experts in Hollywood recommend this famous treatment involving Palmolive Soap! And hundreds—hundreds—of specialists all over the country give their patrons this same advice.

STATE'S ATTORNEY QUITS DE KING CASE

Judge Grants Order Allowing Attorney General to Take Charge of Inquiry.

SABATH DENOUNCES SPIES

Aurora, Ill., April 1 (A.P.).—The Kane County Circuit Court today called upon the attorney general of Illinois to take charge of the investigation of the death of Mrs. Lillian De King, slain last week by dry raiders. The order was issued on the eve of the coroner's inquest after State's Attorney George D. Carbary had petitioned the court to take the matter from his hands.

Under fire from residents of the county as well as the country at large, the State's attorney last week asked Oscar Carlstrom, attorney general, to take charge because of the intense feeling and apparent belief that he would not handle the case impartially. Carlstrom appointed Charles W. Hadley, assistant attorney general, to attend the coroner's inquest at Geneva tomorrow as an observer only, explaining that further participation would not be legal.

State's Attorney Carbary's petition today was to make legal the attorney general's taking charge of the case, although in any event the inquest tomorrow will be in charge of Coroner Herman J. Vierke.

Carlstrom to Be Represented.

If Attorney General Carlstrom declines to take charge of the investigation of the raid on the De King home, in which Joseph De King, a laborer, was struck down from behind and his skull fractured; his wife killed and a deputy sheriff shot, the court next Monday will appoint a special prosecutor and set a date for reconvening of the grand jury, as specified in the court order signed by Judge John E. Newhall.

Carbary's petition stated that he had made a thorough investigation of the tragedy and events leading up to it. Subsequent to this investigation, he said, he had expressed an opinion of the legal phases of the case, involving one of the participants. This, Carbary said he realized, might be charged against him and he might be accused of being unfair and partial.

The attorney after the shooting declared he believed Roy Smith, the deputy sheriff leading the raid, had acted in self-defense when he fired the fatal shot at Mrs. De King, after striking down her husband with the butt of his shotgun. He was quoted as saying he believed Deputy Smith could prove he had acted in the line of duty.

Prosecution Fund Proposed.

Logan, Utah, April 1 (A.P.).—Orman W. Eding, Salt Lake City broker and mining engineer, announced here that he has directed his attorney to solicit $5,000 to assist in the prosecution of officers who killed Mrs. Lillian De King in a liquor raid in Aurora, Ill.

A reply to his offer of the money has been received, indicating that it is needed, he said.

The proposal, Mr. Ewing said, was made "with the consent of other persons in Western States interested in the Association Against Prohibition."

Chicago, April 1 (A.P.).—Resolutions intended to curb what he calls the "unconstitutional" activities of dry agents have been drawn up for presentation to the next session of Congress by Representative A. J. Sabath, of the Fifth Illinois District.

Citing the killing of Mrs. Lillian De King, of Aurora, Ill., which he called "the assassination of a defenseless mother in her own home," Sabath charged that the prohibition law has "made insecure the liberty, homes, even the lives of American citizens."

"Snoopers" Are Denounced.

Congress, under the terms of the resolution, would instruct the Attorney General, Secretary of the Treasury and prohibition director to issue the following orders to all prohibition enforcement officials, "sleuths, spies, snoopers and agents."

"That each and all are subject to all the laws of the United States, and any violation on their part will subject them not only to dismissal, as heretofore, but in the future to prosecution.

"That there is no law giving them or any one the right or privilege to deliberately kill, shoot or murder any American citizen.

"That the expenditure of large sums of money by pleasure seeking sleuths, snoopers, spies or agents no longer will be tolerated.

"That the practice of the use of little children or any juveniles to obtain questionable evidence against any one, as confessed to in Aurora recently, will not be condoned and must be condemned.

"That the searching of persons or private homes without due process of law is in violation of the Constitution and the fundamental principle of the law of our land.

"That the enforcement officials henceforth be restricted to only the enforcement of illegal manufacture, transportation and sale of intoxicating beverages for illegitimate purposes on the part of only professional violators and bootleggers, as originally contemplated by Congress."

LOOTED LAND BANK'S BACKERS MUST PAY

June 1, July 1 and August 1. It is levied against shareholders of record May 4, 1927, date of the receivership, and if unpaid may be collected by suit.

Mr. Langworthy said that while bondholders also are confronted by losses, the bank "has sufficient assets to justify a reorganization, provided a plan can be devised which is sound and can protect the interests of all concerned."

A reorganization plan went to the Federal Farm Loan Board last winter, but discussion was withheld pending the Langworthy report.

The receivers estimated valuation of assets, and, as they were carried on the books of the bank, disclosed a shrinkage of from $50,406,393.44 to $41,544,007.42.

"Closing of the bank was inevitable," the report says in part. "There would seem no doubt that the * * * losses were very largely due to the management under which it was operated."

Original Romney Portrait, Sold to Fisher, Questioned

Authenticity of Painting of Duchess-Countess of Sutherland, Purchased for $150,000, Challenged in Letter From England; Dealer Takes Canvas Back to Gallery.

New York, April 1 (AP.).—The Sun today said that there was dispute as to the authenticity of a portrait bought as an original old master for a price reported to be in the neighborhood of $150,000, by Lawrence P. Fisher, of Detroit, president of the Cadillac Motor Co.

The picture is labeled as an original by George Romney, of Elizabeth, Duchess-Countess of Sutherland, and was sold to Fisher by the Howard Young Galleries, of Fifth avenue. Shortly after publishing a photograph and story about the painting the Sun received a letter from the secretary of the Duke of Sutherland, saying that the original was in the duke's country house in England.

Hearing that the question of authenticity had been raised, the newspaper says, Young went to Detroit and took the portrait back from Fisher, so that in any event there could be no sufferer but the dealer himself.

At the time of the sale to Fisher the American dealer was quoted as saying that he had procured the portrait from a member of the duke's family.

Romney's diary records that he painted his portrait of the duchess-countess in eight sittings, beginning in April, 1872, and extending into June of that year, and there is some difference of opinion as to whether he later painted a replica.

Grand Jury Asked To Halt Gambling

Judge Mattingly Urges Plan for Clean-up in Prince Georges County.

Declaring that the "time has come to pause and survey conditions in the county," Judge Joseph C. Mattingly, of Prince Georges County Circuit Court, yesterday charged the new grand jury to give particular attention to gambling establishments alleged to be operating in the county.

"We are given to understand that there are some institutions in the county which refrain from their business activities while the grand jury is in session," said the judge. "If there be anything you gentlemen can do to make them continue on their good behavior, it will be beneficial to the county."

The judge also warned the jury that there "is some talk of officials receiving bribes" and while expressing the belief that the charge is not applicable to any official of the county, he stated: "Should such a case be brought to light, I ask that you give it your careful attention, for an official who does that is thrice guilty."

Guardsmen Drag River For Kin of Rockefeller

Muskogee, Okla., April 1 (A.P.).—One hundred National Guardsmen dragged the flood swollen Arkansas River today in an effort to recover the body of John D. Rockefeller, 17-year-old Muskogee high school athlete and relative of the oil magnate, for whom he was named.

The youth was drowned yesterday when a motor boat in which he and Dale Decamp were riding overturned and sank in midstream. Rockefeller struck out for shore when he found that an empty 5-gallon can, the only floating thing to which he and his companion might cling, would not support both of them. Decamp was saved.

Sex Quiz Printed By Campus Paper

Suppressed Questionnaire Arouses Police of Austin, Tex.

Austin, Tex., April 1 (U.P.).—The suppressed University of Missouri sex questionnaire today broke into bold-faced print on the startling yellow pages of the April Fool's number of the Blunderbuss, a fly-by-night sheet appearing from time to time on the campus of the University of Texas.

While police were busy gathering up copies of the sheet it was learned tonight that the issue was a complete sell-out. The original price of the Blunderbuss was 25 cents, but tonight $1 was offered for the contraband journal.

Police Chief R. D. Thorp ordered confiscation of all copies found on the streets. No arrests had been made tonight. "It's the rawest thing I have ever seen," said Thorp.

'THRILL' MURDERERS GET LIFE IN PRISON

Former Oglethorpe Students Plead Guilty to Save Life of Harsh.

VICTIM SLAIN IN HOLDUP

Atlanta, Ga., April 1 (A.P.).—The State today permitted George R. Harsh, of Milwaukee, and Richard G. Gallogly, of Atlanta, wealthy former Oglethorpe University students, to plead guilty to the murder of two men in attempted holdups here last fall and sentenced each to imprisonment for life.

Consent verdicts of guilty with recommendations for mercy were entered in both cases on motion of Solicitor General John A. Boykin, who explained that juries twice had failed to agree on a verdict in Gallogly's case and that while Harsh had been convicted and sentenced to death, in the prosecution's opinion they should suffer equal punishment.

Gallogly, in entering his plea first, said he did so to save the life of his classmate, although he was convinced no jury would have convicted him.

The Milwaukee youth acknowledged Gallogly's action with a statement describing it as "magnanimous" and declaring that Gallogly was not guilty of the crimes.

Both judges commended the action of the solicitor general.

Harsh and Gallogly had been tried only for the murder of Willard Smith, a young drug clerk, who was shot down by Harsh when he attempted to resist a robbery of his store. They faced another indictment, however, charging them with the murder of S. H. Meeks, grocery store employe, who was slain in a similar attempt, and both these cases were disposed of in today's proceedings.

Harsh, who confessed and implicated Gallogly as the driver of the holdup car, pleaded mental irresponsibility and said he was actuated by the desire for a "thrill."

Gallogly admitted accompanying Harsh to and from the attempted robbery, but said he sought to dissuade his companion when he announced his intention of holding up Smith's drug store.

Orderly Elections Planned in Chicago

Police Details Assigned to Supervise Balloting in City Today.

Chicago, April 1 (A.P.).—Extraordinary precautions to prevent stealing of ballot boxes, slugging of watchers and casting of illegal votes were ordered by Police Commissioner William Russell today for the run-off elections in eleven wards tomorrow.

The largest police details were prepared for the Forty-second ward, where the fight between Alderman Dorsey Crowe and Richard J. Prendergast has been particularly bitter.

Control of the city council will be decided. The present administration, headed by Mayor William Hale Thompson, now holds a majority of the aldermanic posts, but opponents of the mayor and his "America First" platform could wrest control from him by winning a large proportion of the positions to be decided tomorrow.

Apartment Fire Alarm Systems Are Assailed

Capt. H. A. Chapman, of the No. 18 Engine Company, president of the District Fire Fighters Association, talked on "How to Prevent Fires and How to Turn in an Alarm" last night before the Manor Park Citizens Association at the John Greenleaf Whittier School.

Capt. Chapman pointed out that in a majority of instances the fire alarm boxes in apartment houses do not connect with the Fire Department, but serve only to set off alarms in the apartment house itself. Apartment house owners, he said, should have these alarms connected with the regular fire alarm system.

Club's Mock Trial Postponed.

Edward Muth, chairman of the City Club's entertainment committee, has announced that the mock trial which was to be staged by the City Club Chummers on Friday, April 5, has been postponed until further notice. Several of the actors who were to have taken part have been called out of town.

BEATING HELD CAUSE OF OIL MAN'S DEATH

Inquiry Started by Estranged Wife of McCray Reveals Telephone Threat.

ASSAILANT IS NOT KNOWN

Tulsa, Okla., April 1 (A.P.).—Inquiry into the death of William S. McCray, millionaire oil operator, started by his estranged wife, Mrs. Jeanette McCray, today led county authorities to conclude that he was fatally injured by a man who had threatened him by telephone.

Abdominal injuries inflicted by the unknown assailant caused his death Saturday, authorities said. The assault occurred on the night of March 24 in McCray's hotel room. Shortly after he had received a telephone call from a woman, a man called him and said:

"I'm coming up there and get you for that. I'm going to beat you up."

McCray reported the conversation to a friend, who has divulged it to police.

The oil operator summoned a physician that night, who removed him to a hospital where two operations were performed. The physician said one of his eyes appeared blackened and his face was lacerated. McCray told his nurse he did not know his assailant.

Mrs. McCray, who was separated from her husband, began an investigation of the assault the day before he died. Through Samuel Borston, her attorney, she said she desired that the "mystery of the attack be cleared up."

Borston said Mr. and Mrs. McCray had been near a reconciliation. She had sued for divorce last September asking an equitable division of McCray's million dollar estate.

April Fool Dinner Begins At End, Ends at Beginning

Students of American University were the victims of an April fool jokester yesterday.

Entering the dining room last evening the students found the hall in darkness and the tables bare, without silver or dishes. Finally, a commanding voice speaking out of the darkness instructed them to be seated. Instructions were followed.

Then they were served the following meal, in order:

Toothpicks and water.
Ice cream and cake.
Fruit.
Pork chops.

DORAN ANNOUNCES DRY FORCE CHANGE

Edwin B. Hesse as superintendent of Police here.

"We thought it an opportune time to make a change," Doran said. "Maj. Pratt and I see eye-to-eye on the question of enforcement, and we will cooperate with him 100 per cent. I hope to hold a conference with him in a few days."

The twelve additional agents and investigators will not necessarily work in Washington, but will be assigned to the entire Sixth district, which includes this city, Maryland and Delaware. The investigators are looked upon as the aces in the prohibition unit, and are assigned only to big cases involving serious offenses, such as conspiracies.

The employment of these additional men was made possible by an additional appropriation in the last Congress of $2,730,000.

Dr. Doran said yesterday that he still favored a plan which he laid before the Gibson subcommittee at the last session, a plan under which all members of the local police force would be given power to make arrests for violations of the Volstead act. At present, such power is possessed by only thirty-eight members of the force.

Gibson Named U. S. Arms Parley Head

Ambassador to Belgium Is Again Designated to Geneva Meeting.

(Associated Press.)

The names of the American representation to the sixth meeting of the preparatory commission for the disarmament conference, which began in Geneva April 15, were announced yesterday by Secretary Stimson.

Hugh S. Gibson, Ambassador to Belgium, is designated as the American delegate, a position he held at the last meeting a year ago. He has been in Washington several weeks conferring with President Hoover, former Secretary Kellogg and Secretary Stimson, of the policies to be followed by the American delegation. With the other members he will leave shortly for Geneva.

Hugh R. Wilson, American Minister to Switzerland, was named the member of the representation from the State Department; Maj. John N. Greely, member from the War Department, and Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones, member from the Navy Department. All served on the representation last year. As technical assistants, Jay P. Moffatt, diplomatic secretary at the Berne legation, and Commander Harold C. Train, of the Navy, were named.

DEAREST GENEVIEVE:

The Polo Ball last night was stacks of fun.

There were many lovely gowns. It is always nice to see the new spring evening gowns, which are usually suggestive of flowers and trees in their pretty colorings, and the filmy texture of their materials. Nearly every one wore chiffons or colored laces, although there were numbers of charming taffetas in pastel tints, too.

The Hunt Ball and Breakfast at The Mayflower Hotel on May 17 will be a brilliant affair. The Hunt Clubs from nearby cities are planning to attend. The next big event is the opera season, which opens here April 17. The women all turn out in their best frocks and jewels for that.

With So Many Visitors in Town

—I feel it is important to call attention to the delights of The Iron Gate Inn, 1734 N street.

This is really one of the sights of the town. It is in the beautiful old stable of Gen. Nelson A. Miles (the Federation of Women's Clubs occupies the house), and it has been left with enough identifying marks to make it a most unique place. There is a huge open fireplace and the stalls have been fitted out with tables. Up a narrow stairway there is a loft, which has been done in early American furniture.

The food here is ample and appetizing. You will like the menus and the wide variety of dishes included. Luncheon, tea and dinner.

Vansley's Feature Sweater Suits

—among other things in their distinctive shop at 1728 Connecticut avenue. This shop is outstanding in its showings at all times. Right now it has indescribably lovely models. Their silk ensembles and, as I said, sweater ensembles, and afternoon and evening frocks, are adorable, nothing less.

A white silk frock stitched in black has a black crepe seven-eighths coat, so good-looking. A black and white herring-bone loose knit weave sweater suit has a slip-on jersey of white with black borders. These models were in the window, and shown with them were a black choker of beads and some crystal novelties which were suitable to wear with them.

Wrexham Tower In An Etching

—by Robert Fulton Logan, is on exhibition now at the Gordon Dunthorne Galleries, 1726 Connecticut avenue. The exhibit of Logan's etchings began yesterday. Numbers of interested persons called all day to see them. Harkness Memorial and Johnston Gate are two Harvard plates which are included, too.

He has done some beauties of Notre Dame and of the bridges of the Seine. You know, of course, that Robert Fulton Logan is one of the best architectural etchers America has produced.

Be sure to go to Dunthorne's, 1726 Connecticut avenue.

Charles Gallery Has Etchings

—by Louis Icart suitable for boudoir walls and French schemes of decoration. You are familiar with the delicate fantastic etchings of this French artist. You know he draws these unbelievable girls in tulle and ribbons, with pet cats and dogs and butterflies, usually colored just a little.

In the etchings to be found in the Charles Gallery, 1029 Connecticut avenue, are English hunting scenes, kittens by Meta Fulckebaum, dogs in amusing groups by Eberhard and other subjects of interest.

This shop is brimming over with objects of art, purses, lamps, clocks and innumerable other things. World globes are $8.50 to $140.

If Pasternak's Clothes Charmed You Before

—you will be delighted by the latest arrivals! Never have you seen such exquisite hats as those which were being unpacked yesterday morning. They express the return to femininity which characterizes this season's best models. Some are in felts with lace brims. Straws have brims of lace or open-work straw set in the crown and brim in a design. I saw one close-fitting small black felt with applications and brim of the sheerest horsehair.

A beige satin gown of important simplicity has a coat of brown covert lined in the same satin. Gayly flowered chiffon fashions an afternoon costume which has a quaint cape edged in a wide frill of sapphire blue tulle over flesh tulle. The same flounce edges the skirt. Pasternak's, 1219 Connecticut avenue.

Gayly Colored Tea Tiles

—come in sets of three for $3 a box at Mr. Foster's Remembrance Shop, 1023 Connecticut

—come in sets of three for $3 a box, at Mr. Foster's Remembrance Shop, 1023 Connecticut avenue. This shop is busy with souvenir hunters at this season. People from other cities are familiar with this shop, and naturally look for it as soon as they arrive in town.

They are buying a jade green tray of glass with bottles decorated with leaping gazelles in black silhouette. These are bathroom sets, and most decorative.

A pair of delicately blown Venetian vases of soft coloring would make a sweet gift for some one. The rose vases of pale green, with rows of silver at the top, are pretty too.

Other things which you must see here are hand-painted scarfs, in many varying sizes. Ostrich leather billfolds and purses are in a big assortment here. Leather folds for the new bills which will be out in July (they will be smaller, like French money), are here too. They are priced from $4 up.

As I have told you before, no other shop seems to have quite so many dear little dogs of every kind, as door stops, as decorative groups, of book ends in Royal Dalton, in Copenhagen ware and in bronze and brass, besides pins of many kinds.

Last Night At Wardman Park

—there was a special dinner dance in honor of Easter Monday. The Goodrich Silvertown Chord Orchestra was featured, and I am told that the music was simply wonderful. For this special dinner dance a cover charge was made, but the supper dances which take place nightly do not have a cover charge, nor has the usual Saturday night dinner dance.

You call "Oscar," Columbia 2000, for reservations. You know without being told that it is important to make reservation for Saturday night particularly.

Have you seen the new wing at Wardman? It is imposing and handsome beyond description. This wing makes a complete corner of Wardman Hotel, which, with its landscaped gardens, swimming pool, tennis courts, riding stables and terraces, occupies what looks to me like a solid quarter of a mile of territory.

I never grow tired of telling about this remarkable hotel, which, almost in the heart of the city, retains features of country pleasure, sports and outlook, gorgeous views into Rock Creek Park and the open country. As the hotel commands the site, and such a large space, it will never be any less attractive—not in our generation, at least.

The Junksnuppers Have a Mirror

—genuine Chippendale, which you must see before you look any further for antiques. This delightful shop is located in an old residence just at Dupont Circle. The address is 1338 Nineteenth street. It is full and brimming over with rare finds. Be sure to see a fine little "love seat" in the period which is more and more scarce.

An old tester bed of light maple has such delicate, slender posts. You will want this. A half-round pine table has been restored, and a mahogany drop-leaf should be in condition for you to see by the time this reaches you. Lots of old glass on exhibit now, too.

The New Shade Of Luscious Pink

—as delicate as the blossoms on the trees, is to be found in a crepe Elizabeth ensemble in Nancy Carter's, 1021 Connecticut avenue. The frock has tiers of knife pleatings, and a sweet little seven-eighths coat. There is another ensemble which I must tell you about.

It has a sleeveless frock in flat crepe in that new shade of chartres, and a hip-length coat of printed silk. There seems no end to the lovely models on display in this shop. Worthy of mention is a navy silk with the frock showing graduated stripes in gold.

The favorite in the collection, as far as I am concerned, is a frock of capucine with a three-quarter coat of brown crepe. This has nice tailoring and wonderful style.

I saw a wonderful tweed suit with a cape effect coat which instantly reminded me of the deck of an ocean liner—just exactly what you need for a steamer trip.

You know, of course, that Nancy Carter has riding habits, and wonderful ones, too. There is a lovely one in brown there that you will like, with the right hat and accessories.

If you are interested in prices, you will be glad to know that you may select a suit at Nancy Carter's as low as $39.50.

Gorgeous Pottery In Lovely Blues

—attracted my eye today as I passed the Near East and American Friends of Greece, 1334 Connecticut avenue. There was a wonderful display of it in the window. This fascinating bazaar has so much of rare beauty, things which you can not find in other shops, because everything is imported direct from the Near East, where natives weave and embroider and mold the charming and useful things you see.

Raw silks, beautifully embroidered in mats and table runners and luncheon sets are exceeded in beauty only by the woven linens, embroidered in the old patterns taken from ancient pieces.

Ferruccio Pini 1365 Conn. Ave.

—has such an interesting little shop up one flight at the above address. I carelessly told you the wrong address for this shop in my last letter, so take it down correctly now.

You may see in Pini's sketches of designs for various pieces of Florentine jewelry. I noticed yesterday that Pini was making a handsome piece, in platinum too, which shows that his artistry is not limited to any metals or stones.

A silver repousse which he has done recently is shown there, too. This is a Madonna in silver framed in ebony decorated with silver scrolls.

While Your Easter Clothes Are New

—you'd better go into Underwood & Underwood's and have some pictures, which will be ready to send on Mother's Day. From all indications, this is the accepted thing to do on Mother's Day this year. For a number of years there has been an added interest in sending your portrait to your mother on that day. But this year so many people have already had their pictures taken for this purpose, and Mother's Day still several weeks away.

Families having little children are having spasms of delight over the pictures taken of them in Underwood & Underwood's inside garden studio. This garden effects makes the most wonderful background, and now that Underwood & Underwood have their new patented double exposure camera the results they are obtaining are superior to anything this famous studio has produced heretofore.

But, to return to the subject of Mother's Day, this event gives you a legitimate excuse for having a picture made, if you really feel that you need an excuse.

Affectionately,

Bab

SENATOR JOHNSON'S BLAST.

Efforts are made to minimize the blasting effect of Senator Johnson's exposure of the Root-Hurst "formula" for evading the Senate's fifth reservation, which has kept the United States out of the court set up by the League of Nations. That reservation exempted the United States from any attempt on the part of the league to use the court for political purposes. The "formula" proposes to permit the league to go ahead and use the court for political purposes, with the proviso that if the United States insists upon its objections it can withdraw. It is now suggested that Senator Johnson is so "irreconcilable" that he voted against the court protocol even after the reservations had been made by the Senate. The inference is drawn that every senator who voted for the reservations will support the Root-Hurst formula.

There is no advantage to anybody in misjudging the real sentiment of the Senate concerning the so-called World Court. More than one-third of the senators were opposed to the protocol, and would have defeated it but for the reservations. Some of the "irreconcilables," having satisfied themselves that the reservations would accomplish their purpose, voted for them. But they are as irreconcilable as ever against the use of the court for political purposes in questions affecting the United States. When they analyze the formula and discover that the league is to have power to make the court a political agency on American questions, with or without America's consent, it is not conceivable that they will approve the formula. Yet their votes are necessary if the two-thirds majority is to be obtained.

It should not be forgotten that a former judge of the World Court, John Bassett Moore, drew up the fifth reservation which prevented the court from being used for political purposes on questions affecting the United States. Dr. Moore had discovered this fatal flaw while serving on the World Court bench, and as a patriotic American he cooperated with senators in drawing up a reservation that would safeguard the United States. Senator Johnson does not name Dr. Moore, but he refers to him unmistakably, and all the facts will come out when the Root-Hurst formula comes before the Senate, if it ever does.

Many Americans thought it would do no harm to try out national prohibition by adopting the eighteenth amendment. The argument used in regard to withdrawal from the World Court was used in promoting the eighteenth amendment—"if we don't like it we can withdraw." But the eighteenth amendment is not so easily withdrawn from the Constitution, notwithstanding the fact that a large proportion of voters who favored it are now anxious to cancel it.

It is easy to persuade some voters that the United States ought to join other nations in promoting peace; that the World Court is a genuine court of justice, and nothing else; and that the United States should join it, with the understanding that if the experiment is unsatisfactory, "we can withdraw whenever we like." Let these voters ask themselves whether it is easy to repeal the eighteenth amendment.

REWARD FOR CAREFUL DRIVING.

A new plan of securing greater safety on the highways has been adopted by the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters. The scheme is novel in that it attempts to reward the careful driver, rather than to penalize the reckless one. It would allow to motorists who drive for two years without an accident, without revocation of license or other punishment for violation of traffic regulations, a reduction of 10 per cent in insurance premiums.

Most of the plans for reduction of accident through insurance and fixing of financial responsibility are negative in their operation. It is encouraging to find the problem approached from the positive side, with a reward for intelligent driving. Automobile insurance at best is a penalty upon all for the reckless driving of a few. A scheme which tends to reduce the burden imposed upon the cautious driver is a step in the right direction.

This plan can not be expected to take the place of arrangements for holding drivers financially responsible for the accidents they cause. But it should tend to increase the popularity of automobile accident insurance and to encourage drivers to establish safety records.

CENSUS TAKERS.

Despite the effort to put the census under civil service, the enumeration of 1930 probably will be made as it always has been made, by the party in power, which is held responsible for its success or failure.

The census is taken but once in a decade. If the personnel were placed under the jurisdiction of the Civil Service Commission the cost would be greatly increased. Once every ten years the commission would be required to set up a machine for selecting thousands of supervisors and enumerators through competitive examinations. Those certified as eligible to appointments would be no more capable and would have less experience than those that are selected by members of Congress. The net result would be increased expense with no compensating increase in efficiency.

Supervisors of the 1930 census will receive $2,000 each. Enumerators will be paid from $5 to $8 per day, and it is estimated that their total earnings will amount to no more than $75 to $125. It is apparent that as political plums census appointments are relatively unimportant, although they are helpful in the upbuilding of personal political machines. The party in power is entitled to the privilege of naming census workers. But the minority party has little to fear, for thousands of persons who took the 1920 census will apply for and receive appointments to assist in the taking of the 1930 census. It is better that the enumeration be made by those who have had experience in census-taking rather than by a group that has qualified only by "passing" a civil service examination.

NARCOTIC DRUG PROBLEM.

Various efforts are being made in the United States to cut down the use of narcotic drugs for other than medicinal purposes. Under an act passed at the last session of Congress a narcotic division has been organized in the Public Health Service, and two Federal prison farms for drug addicts are to be established. Criminals with the drug habit will be sentenced to these institutions by the Federal courts. Efforts will be made to cure them, and in the process drug addiction will undergo intensive study.

Since addicts are often criminals or social burdens, this is an important step toward immediate improvement of conditions. But since there are approximately 250,000 addicts in the United States, it would be impossible to rehabilitate any large percentage of them in this way. The prison farm plan must be regarded only as an expedient for reducing the evil among a limited number already afflicted, and, of course, can not take the place of the program to stop illicit traffic in narcotics. If the Government can effect permanent cures in this way, the plan will be highly beneficial. At any rate, the prison farms should take from society a considerable number of addicts who are criminally dangerous.

The Government sought to solve the problem by entering into an international agreement to limit the manufacture of habit-forming drugs to medical needs. Laws are so strict in this country that only a negligible part of the drugs manufactured is diverted to illicit channels. But intermittent seizure of large quantities of drugs smuggled into the country proves the need of international control of narcotics. Limitation of production would be an effective means of curing the evil, if all the drug-manufacturing plants were carefully supervised, since narcotics can be manufactured only in laboratories representing large investments. But in spite of the protests of the United States, this plan is not yet effective.

The problem has long been of interest to science, and the medical profession has not yet despaired of finding some effective substitute for habit-forming drugs. Under direction of the National Research Council scientists are now at work at the University of Virginia trying to segregate the component parts of opium and, through chemical analysis, determine what are the properties which create human craving for the drug. A start has already been made in the use of novocaine, a nonhabit-forming coal tar product which is being substituted for cocaine as an anesthetic. The substitute is not satisfactory in all cases, however, and medical scientists are hopeful that further research will develop a drug with all the advantages and none of the deleterious effects of opium and cocaine. Then there would be no longer need for manufacturing deadly drugs.

Rehabilitation of addicts and limitation of the narcotic supply are immediately essential, but the approach to the problem from the scientific angle will probably prove the most effective in the end.

THE COMING BRITISH ELECTION.

The British and northern Ireland general election is scheduled to take place in less then two months from this date, and, with each of the three major parties—Conservatives, Liberals, and Laborites—bending every energy to secure for itself victory at the polls, the result seems to be extremely doubtful. It might at first blush be thought that the present Conservative administration, with the huge majority that it now commands in the House of Commons, holds a strategic position of decided advantage, and that the attempts so vigorously being made to "turn the rascals out" are foredoomed to failure. In truth, under ordinary circumstances, it would be difficult to envisage so numerically strong a majority changed into a helpless minority.

The circumstances, however, are not ordinary. The Conservative majority, if huge, is also unwieldy. In some respects there is among the rank and file, and especially among that section known as the "die-hards," grave discontent with the Baldwin and Churchill leadership. That discontent is sullen and for the most part smolders under ground, but quite recently it flared up so ominously on the question of the administration's treatment of the loyalists of southern Ireland that, in order to stave off an imminent humiliating hostile vote, Prime Minister Baldwin had perforce to make a clean right-about-face and, in so doing, practically to repudiate a cabinet policy which had been announced a few minutes before by his spokesman, the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Then, again, there is the inevitable swing of the political pendulum which, in Britain at all events, tends almost invariably to militate against the "ins" in favor of the "outs." This adverse movement was plainly shown in five recent by-elections for seats held previously and apparently safely by conservative supporters of the Baldwin regime. Of these five, the Conservatives retained two, but in each case by a heavily reduced majority; the other three they lost, two to the Liberals and one to the Laborites. The last-mentioned victory was gained at North Lanark, in Scotland, by Jenny Lee, a 24-year-old girl, who defeated the Tory, Lord Scone, and the Liberal, Miss E. B. Mitchell. At the last election there the fight was a straight one between a Conservative and a Laborite, and, on a total poll of 25,732 votes, the Conservative secured a majority of 2,028. The Laborites are particularly jubilant over Miss Lee's success, regarding it as a harbinger of what they may expect from 5,250,000 new women voters betwen 21 and 30 years of age added to the register by recent legislation. That calculation may, however, be somewhat premature.

The real surprise of these by-elections was the unexpected strength displayed by the Liberals. The triumph achieved by R. J. Russell over Lieut. Col. R. G. Fenwick Palmer in the scattered agricultural constituency known as the Eddisbury division of Cheshire, hitherto regarded as a Conservative stronghold, must be especially pleasing to David Lloyd George, the Liberal leader, for it is a proof that his proposals for land reform are at length beginning to recommend themselves to the farming interests. These proposals of his, as well as his plans for doing away with unemployment and clearing out slum areas, have been derided by his opponents as visionary and impractical; but it is evidently quite possible that the electorate at large may take a different view. If he goes back to the House of Commons with a solid phalanx of even only 80 or 90 followers out of a total membership of 614, he will probably be in the same position as Parnell was with his 86 supporters in the 80's, and be able to extort concessions to suit him or, failing that, to set up and pull down administrations at will.

The curator of a New York zoo has issued a new, illustrated book on snakes. Another proof of the breakdown of prohibition.

BANANAS AND SUGAR

National City Bank Letter.

The Latin-American countries have lower wages than the United States, because they have a lower industrial development. They have not the capital for manufacturing extensively, or the experienced management or labor for the advanced industries. Their purchasing power exists in foodstuffs and raw materials, some of which are of classes produced in the United States and some are not. The greater part differ from the products of this country in such degree that they are not competitive in the usual sense. A new theory of competition, however, has been developed at Washington at the recent hearings, and offered as the basis for a new tariff upon bananas, the argument being that they are an alternative food product, and that if the people of the United States eat bananas they will eat less of food products grown at home. This will serve as an example of proposed regulation dominated by the single idea of making the country self-sufficient. Banana culture has developed into an important industry in several of the Caribbean countries, whose chief market is the United States. The same countries buy wheat flour, condensed milk and other canned goods, cotton goods, shoes and numerous other goods in this country. The trade is natural, advantageous to both sides, and growing. A blow to the banana industry would be disastrous to those countries, an unneighborly act and affront, and as an act of policy so preposterous that probably there is no danger that it will be committed.

An increase of the duty on sugar would be equally unjustifiable, particularly on account of this country's relations with Cuba. The latter country is almost within sight of our shores. There is every reason why the relations between it and this country should be intimate and mutually beneficial. The United States aided in establishing its political independence, and in doing so earned and has been given the gratitude of the Cuban people. Economically, however, Cuba is dependent upon the United States, and Cuba ranks high in the list of countries as an importer of United States products. Sugar can be produced as cheaply in Cuba as in any part of the world, and confessedly more cheaply than in the United States. If it was politically a part of this country there would be no argument about where at least the greater part of our sugar supply would be produced, and the economic consideration is not affected by the fact that Cuba has a government of its own.

Fair trade relations with the United States mean prosperity for Cuba, and reciprocal trade advantageous to both countries. A policy on the part of the United States which would mean the gradual exclusion of Cuban sugar would result in disaster to Cuba, economically and socially. Sugar is the basis of employment and livelihood in the island, and nothing can readily take its place. It could not turn to any crop for its soil without the assurance of a market in the United States and it can render no other service so great as the production of sugar. Large investments in the sugar industry have been made on the strength of the treaty with the United States now of nearly 30 years standing. It is inconceivable that the people of the United States, with a full knowledge of the mutual interests involved, would favor any policy which would violently disrupt the relations existing between the two countries, or change the policy governing those relations from one of mutual consideration and helpfulness.

Dry but Leaking.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

"The Voice of America."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: E Pluribus Unum proclaims that the resolutions adopted recently in Philadelphia by a handful of busy Methodists "is the voice of America speaking." O-ho, thou pious deceiver! Your reverend thous and thys betray you. We know your game of misrepresentation and tyranny. But thou, O blatant one, take my word for it, the time is not far distant when the "voice of America" will be heard, that the nations of earth may know that we are a people worthy of the price that was paid for our liberty.

E Pluribus Unum would have it appear that the eighteenth amendment was written into our Constitution by the hand of God. Perish the thought! Indeed, many of us, who in former years were strong for prohibition, have changed our views, and now believe that the iniquitous thing was most likely the work of the devil. Our country has become a nation of lawbreaking and crime, notwithstanding the claims of sentimentalists and hypocrites, and when we learn of the outrages and atrocities that are being committed daily in the name of law we, too, cry out—"how long, how long?"

DISILLUSIONED.

In Behalf of Outdoor Beauty.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Please allow me to commend the recent excellent editorial in The Sunday Post on the subject of beautifying landscapes and highways and saving trees.

This matter is one of extreme importance to all communities. We have been slower than other countries to learn that outdoor beauty is of great financial value, although Washington has right now a striking illustration of this fact in the thousands of visitors who have come here to see flowers and trees, not filling stations and billboards or chain stores. The more of the former we can manage to maintain against the short-sighted encroachments of "progress" the longer will the harvest of visitors continue. I am told, for instance, that retail business is falling off in Connecticut avenue since it has been denuded of its trees. Promenaders, who are always potential shoppers, must seek shady side streets or be exposed to the glare of the sun.

Close at hand in Great Falls we have one of the loveliest scenic wonders of this country. It is now virtually inaccessible over an inadequate toll road and when reached is found to be defaced with various tawdry catch-penny devices controlled by a privately owned so-called amusement park.

Let the Government acquire the Falls and their beautiful wooded setting as a national park, build an adequate highway to them from the Nation's Capital, and they will become a shrine and a mecca for thousands of visitors (which means a source of revenue for the community) who now feel that they must go abroad each summer to find natural beauties undefaced and unmarred by the hand of man.

THERESA RUSSELL.

For Sanity and Prosperity.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I tender you my congratulations on the editorial page of The Sunday Post? Nowadays so many pages are printed of which an older newspaper man can not approve, that I can not refrain from commending a page so well done.

The page, as a whole, was written with common sense applied to modern problems. "Dry Law Applies to All," that to me is the basis on which we should all proceed. As you suggest, it should apply to members of Congress and other officers of the Government especially. No law violator can be a good lawmaker or law enforcer.

"The Law of the Sea," applied to the case of the I'm Alone, is excellently stated in your second editorial. A great deal of wanton and maudlin sympathy has already been wasted on an organized band of law violators. Blaine's dictum that "The law of the sea is not lawlessness" was well cited. Smugglers of all kinds and degrees have been steering their vessels toward our coasts, carrying not merely liquors, which are minor evils compared with narcotics and aliens.

Even your article on "Home Farmers First" was most excellent, for so-called urban writers do not always understand rural problems. Your conclusion "to give home producers greater protection" is logically and commercially irresistible.

If all American editors would write by the model of The Sunday Post's editorial page, it would not take us long to achieve national sanity—and go on with prosperity.

Get Busy or Get Out.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Through your columns I wish to call attention to conditions existing in the office of the building inspector where permits of various kinds are issued. It is almost a daily occurrence for me to visit this office, and it is nothing unusual to see as many as 12 people standing at the windows complaining of the poor service, while on the inside you can see three or four clerks engaged in private conversation, telling of last night's show or dance. This actually happened this morning. To call one of them while thus engaged means that you will receive less consideration hereafter than ever before. Do they use this office as the "dumping ground" for the worthless clerks in the employ of the local government? If not, how is it possible to secure such an aggregation in one room who care absolutely nothing for those whom they are being paid to serve?

READER AND TAXPAYER.

All Eat From the Same Dish, and It Isn't Economy to Buy a Small Spoon.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

WHEN Henry Ford says young men should not save their money, he offers sound advice to those whose natural inclination is to save too much.

And when Ralph Barton says young men should save their money, he offers advice equally sound to those who spend too freely.

But no advice is worth while unless it is trimmed to fit the peculiarities of the individual.

The youth who wastes his money may miss an opportunity to buy a partnership worth millions, but another youth who guards his nickels too closely may miss an opportunity equally great because he lacks the social graces he might have acquired among spenders.

The only question to be answered is whether saving or spending will pay the greater dividends in the end.

If the chief aim of life is happiness, then the first business of all save philosophers and poets is to get money.

That may seem sordid to idealists; but those who have known poverty and felt the world's scorn and indifference, and later have acquired wealth and found a smiling world bowing before its opened doors—these know the truth and value money because it wins the world's respect and the world's respect is essential to an abundant life.

The genius and the discoverer of continents are respected, but these are fortune's darlings who travel a royal road.

The ordinary man must get money, for money alone will open doors, receive a salute from the corner policeman, evade the annoyances of the law, win the flattering attention of neighbors and provide liberty.

Defend brains if you will, but the "brainy" man out of a job and broke is scorned the more because he failed in spite of superior equipment.

Get money.

If by saving your earnings you can lay the foundation of independence, then save.

But money spent for books, for travel and for social pleasures that give a return in poise, polish and profitable acquaintanceships is not money wasted but money invested in tools.

To keep a dollar that might give you the equipment to make many dollars is a foolish extravagance.

The penny pinchers end their days as penny earners.

They never learn to think in big figures, and eventually they become slaves to the habit of saving and thus lose the freedom their slaving was designed to win.

To be free, get money; but spend freely to get the tools men use in making money.

The abundant life requires culture, but culture is bought with money and in its turn serves as a tool to make more money to buy a more abundant life.

GINGKO TREES.

Some one has presented to our mayor a handsome gingko tree, says the New York Herald Tribune. He, wisely, has planted the tree in City Hall Park, and the critics are referring to it as "a rare Oriental tree."

This seems an unnecessary insult to one of New York's finest sidewalk trees. The gingko, or "maidenhair tree," is, to begin with, the only survivor of a race of trees which flourished on this continent as well as in Asia several million years ago. Transplanted from China to Japan, thence to England and from England to America, it has a long history here. "Maidenhair trees" were extensively planted in Washington soon after the Civil War, and they have been recommended by the Department of Agriculture for roadside planting. New York has a group of them in Gramercy Park thriving where native trees falter; they are the only trees that have flourished in recent years in Brooklyn Heights; they provide an interesting bit of shade to Perry street, in Greenwich Village, in midsummer, and they are familiar in other parts of the city. For the gingko grows even when thrust into the hard packed and unwatered city soil. Half a century hence it and the ailanthus, the "tree of heaven," which is another exile from China, may be our only city trees, for they alone seem able to survive the urban drought and soot. And every child who has ever picked up one of the tree's strange, fernlike leaves remembers their peculiar veining.

Let's welcome Mayor Walker's new tree, but as an old timer on the sidewalks of New York, not as an unfamiliar visitor from the East.

Got High Hat.

Dallas News: Mr. Hoover went to a store and bought a silk hat for $20, instead of winning it on the election.

Ohio State Journal: Under President Hoover all income tax refunds in excess of $20,000 are to be made matters of public record and we'd like to be in a position to get a little publicity.

New Orleans Times-Picayune: Capt. Lundborg, the Swedish aviator who rescued Nobile, was received by President Hoover last Thursday. Lundborg, we gather, is by way of speaking the Lindbergh of his native land.

Coolidge Economy.

New Orleans Times-Picayune: Ex-President Coolidge, visiting New York the other day, refused to be interviewed by reporters. Not surprising in view of the recent reports that he can get $2 a word and a "by-line" of his own for whatever he cares to say for publication.

A Notable Achievement.

Baltimore Sun: The Grand Trunk airway from Great Britain to India is a notable achievement. The installation of landing fields and special radio apparatus to guard against tragedy in Arabia and Persia has been no light task. Yet, while applauding the achievement, it is interesting to note that the route is but 4,700 miles long, or only about one-half greater than the Atlantic to Pacific airway in the United States. By comparison the way to India seems reasonably short. And it would be short, as airplanes go, if nature had omitted to insert deserts, sand storms, tornadoes and savage men along the route. It is they that guard the road to India.

ASSEMBLY'S CLOSE MARKED BY JOLLITY

Few Bills on Calendar at End of Maryland Law Makers' 1929 Session.

COMMISSIONS ARE NAMED

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., April 1.—The general assembly today passed through the last stages of the session of 1929. The 90-day period of its lawmaking activities expires at midnight and, unless there should be some unforeseen development, the presiding officers of the Senate and House will be able to wield their gavels for the sine die adjournment within the constitutional time limit.

As routine proceedings had been necessarily hampered by the investigation of the State roads scandal, which consumed much time, both houses accomplished the bulk of their work as a result of the "railroading" process of last week, so that the number of bills on the files in either branch were few for final action, compared to former legislative sessions.

Only a few important measures remained to be disposed of in the last rush. One of these was the bill providing for a deputy motor vehicle clerk, to be assigned to the offices of the court clerks in the several county seats; another, repeal of the declaration of intents act, and a third, increasing the pensions of retired judges.

Local Bills Are Hastened.

There were, of course, a number of bills of local interest to the several counties, but they were hurried along. The closing hours of the session were not without the usual amount of hilarity and horseplay.

Factional bitterness among Democrats, especially in the House, where frequent outbursts occurred in course of deliberations as well as party strife over this or that measure, not to mention fiery attacks that developed over various phases in connection with the State roads investigation, all gave way to good humor and everybody seemed disposed to cast decorum aside.

In the Senate, Senator David I. McIntosh, president of the Senate, was given a silver punch bowl by his fellow senators. Presentation addresses were made by Senator Walter J. Mitchell, Democratic floor leader, and Senator William A. Gunter, Republican floor leader. Senators Mitchell and Gunter were in turn presented with silver bowls by their respective party colleagues.

Governor's Mother Remembered.

A basket of flowers was also sent to Mrs. Elizabeth Ritchie, mother of Gov. Ritchie. She has been ill in the executive mansion for some months.

Speaker E. Brooke Lee, of the House of Representatives, was presented with a gold watch. Joseph A. Wilmer, Republican floor leader, and James J. Lindsay, Democratic floor leader, were also given gold watches by their party personnel.

The funmaking began during the early hours of the evening, when it became apparent that the legislative files were in such a state that passage of some bill would not be clocked, and it continued throughout the evening. Bill files, printed journals, waste paper baskets and other movable material were cast into the air and the House chamber soon began to look as though it had been in the path of a cyclone. On the Senate side, the disorder was not as great.

Tax Rate Set at 25 Cents.

Some of the more important measures passed provide:

A State tax rate of 25 cents, the lowest since 1912. Codification of all tax laws of the State.

Model Bank Clerk Admits Big Thefts

Jailed Man Long Regarded as Paragon by His Superiors.

Brooklyn, N. Y., April 1 (U.P.).—Louis Dietz, who for 21 years had been the model pointed to by officials of the Merchants Bank (now a branch of the Brooklyn Trust Co.) to all aspiring new help, was placed in jail tonight after he admitted he had been steadily using bank funds for himself.

District Attorney Charles J. Dodd said that Dietz, 32 years old, had surrendered this afternoon, been questioned for some time and had admitted the peculations. The district attorney would not name the amount of money involved, but it was said to total close to $300,000.

On February 8 the Merchants Bank was taken over by the Brooklyn Trust Co. and George V. McLaughlin, president of the new company, sent word that an examination would be made of each branch as soon as possible.

Dietz was assigned to aid in examination of a branch other than the one where he was assistant manager. But he failed to appear to make the examination and bank officials immediately ordered an investigation of the Broadway-Gates branch. Shortages were found. Dietz appeared voluntarily at the district attorney's office today and admitted responsibility for the irregularities.

WILLIAMS SUGGESTS GLASS RESIGNATION

Banker's Letter Denounces Senator for Attack Upon New York Financier.

CALLS VISION LIMITED

Richmond, Va., April 1 (A.P.).—Langbourne M. Williams, senior member of the banking firm of John L. Williams & Sons, Richmond, today wrote Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, that he considered it more appropriate for the senator to resign as representative of Virginia in the Senate than for Charles E. Mitchell to resign from the directorate of the New York Federal Reserve Bank.

Mr. Williams also announced that he had congratulated Mr. Mitchell, president of the National City Bank, on making available $25,000,000 to break the credit jam that sent call money to 20 per cent and attempting to offset what Williams said many considered the "vicious misconduct of the Federal Reserve Board in attempting to destroy large business in most of the country."

Senator Glass had characterized Mitchell's action as "slapping the Federal Reserve Board in the face," in demanding Mitchell's resignation.

Mr. Williams is a brother of the late John Skelton Williams, comptroller of the currency in 1920, and is also president of the Virginia Central Railroad.

His letter to Senator Glass was as follows:

"Referring to your call on Mr. Charles Mitchell to resign from the Federal Reserve Bank at New York, I believe that it would be far more appropriate that you should resign as senator from Virginia and let some one of broad and clear vision, like Gov. Harry Byrd, who is not drowned in self-conceit and narrow-gauge thinking, take your place in the Senate of the United States as a real, broad-gauge representative of Virginia.

"The scandalous, piratical deflation policy of 1920 seemed to have your cordial approval on the theory that it was necessary to burn down the barn in order to kill a few rats, and now you take the astounding position that 15 per cent money rates can be justified when some of the reserve banks show 80 per cent reserve on hand. This situation, in the opinion of far-sighted, fair-minded, clear-visioned business men, shows utmost lack of grasp of any intelligent and far-sighted handling of the present situation. Some of the Federal Reserve governors and yourself seem to be in a conspiracy to destroy the prosperity of the country for the sake of controlling a few undesirable situations which will remedy themselves by natural laws if not interfered with by political officeholders. I am convinced that you can best serve your country by returning to your native county and running your cattle farm rather than by mixing in big business, whose importance and magnitude you do not seem to be able to grasp.

"Men of narrow vision do not realize that the money center of the world has moved from London to New York, hence trading in New York has necessarily increased, and furthermore, the large bills payable of the giant industrial companies have been converted into stocks that are now used as basis of credit instead of having the big banks carry tremendous bills payable of our modern giant corporations as formerly.

"LANGBOURNE M. WILLIAMS."

HOUSE ADOPTS ROAD REPORT AMID TIRADE

Maryland Delegates Accept Grand Inquest Findings, Assailed by Foes.

IS CALLED "WHITEWASH"

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., April 1.—The final chapter of the investigation by a grand inquest committee of the General Assembly into the scandal of the State roads commission, involving embezzlement of funds amounting to over $376,000, was written in the House of Delegates here today when that body approved the majority report. Like action was taken in the Senate last Saturday.

The investigation also covered alleged irregularities in the award of contracts and general conduct of affairs under the former regime, headed by John N. Mackall, chairman and chief engineer. The report exonerated Mackall and his former associates on the commission and all others whose names had been linked with the scandal in one way or another.

The vote in the House was 76 to 33 and was almost a strictly party line-up. Daniel C. Joseph, of Baltimore City, recognized as spokesman of the insurgent Democrats opposing the Ritchie administration, voted against the report. Delegate Binder, Democrat, also voted with the minority, while Delegate Chaney, Republican, of Calvert County, voted with the majority.

The House action was taken not without a final shot from Delegate Joseph A. Wilmer (Republican), of Charles County, minority floor leader, who reiterated his charge that the entire investigation was a "whitewash" and that the inquest was dominated by the State administration forces headed by Gov. Ritchie.

He also attacked Gov. Ritchie's special investigation commission, known as the Nelligan Commission, and former Chairman Mackall. "Gov. Ritchie usurped the powers of the committee," Mr Wilmer declared. He added that the majority report served only as a "whitewash" and so "removed from the chief executive any blame for the shortage and alleged mismanagement of the funds of the commission." He asserted the whole thing was part of a plan to keep the public from knowing the real truth about the State roads scandal.

Mr. Wilmer denied that he opposed the inquest report for political reasons, and said he had never taken that attitude. Mr. Wilmer referred to matters in his minority report that was turned down by the House. This contained views radically different from the majority report.

Mr. Wilmer's attack on the Nelligan commission was leveled chiefly against Jonathan K. Voshell, a Republican, who, he said, had written him a letter during the last presidential campaign asking him to give his support to Gov. Alfred E. Smith, and questioned his Republicanism on that ground. Wilmer further said, "We have here this whitewash by the grand inquest committee. There will soon be another by the Nelligan committee, which Gov. Ritchie appointed under the pretense of making a nonpartisan committee. As a matter of fact, the only man on the Nelligan committee who can not be accused of partisanship is George M. Shriver."

After the majority report was adopted, Delegate Joseph, who submitted a dissenting report Saturday, made a vain effort to have this report recorded on the journal of the legislature.

Mr. Fix is a handy man to do the little odd jobs you've been putting off doing from day to day. You'll find his address and telephone number among today's advertisements in the "Personals" classification of The Post.

Auto Kills Woman As Driver Sleeps

Injured Man Asserts Car Went Over Cliff as He Slumbered.

Hendersonville, N. C., April 1 (A.P.).—Mrs. Ben Lee Walton, 33, of Toccoa, Ga., was killed last night in an automobile accident on the Greenville-Hendersonville highway when C. M. Welch, of Asheville, according to his version of the accident, went to sleep at the steering wheel of his automobile and drove the machine over a 50-foot embankment.

Mrs. Walton, a stepdaughter of W. G. Browning, of Toccoa, Ga., was believed by Welch to have been killed instantly, who attracted passersby to the spot of the wreck sometime after it happened. He was brought to a hospital here suffering from a broken shoulder, cuts and bruises. He was said to be in a serious condition today.

Edith Walton, 5-year-old daughter of Mrs. Walton, was also in the car and escaped uninjured. She summoned aid also, having crawled out of the wreck and walked to the highway.

Welch, in a hospital here, said this morning that he was en route to Asheville last night so that he could be at work this morning. He remembered getting drowsy and nodding several times and then suddenly realized that his machine was careening down the embankment.

The Return Of OLD KING BRADY

Revived by MERLE W. HERSEY

(Copyright Protected. Reproduction in Whole or in Part Prohibited.)

CHAPTER III.
The Rendezvous at the Old Sawmill.

In the third chapter Old King Brady disguises as the governor and keeps the tryst, at the old sawmill, with the circus fakers. The mill is swept away endangering the lives of Old and Young King Brady. The Bradys raid the circus and Harry narrowly escapes death in the elephant's inclosure.

NEXT morning the old detective sprang a surprise on the governor. When he entered the dining room alone the head waiter showed him to the governor's seat. When the governor appeared a puzzled waiter came up to Old King Brady and said, "Very sorry, sir, but I mistook you for Gov. Strong."

"Naturally," replied Old King Brady coolly. "I am his twin brother." The astonished politician sat down. "Well, what do you think of my make-up?" continued the old detective.

"It has proved its own value. Go ahead with your plan, only, for heaven's sake, be sure to get my granddaughter. You had better take the cash along so as to be prepared."

Old King Brady shook his head. "I most certainly shall not do so. I must manage the matter in my own way." And so it was arranged. Later, Old King Brady and Harry took a train for Springton. Harry, disguised as a mechanic, went to a small hotel near the station in Springton, while Old King Brady registered at the Banner House as Gov. Strong.

Old King Brady located the old sawmill before sundown. It was a large old frame structure, which stood on the bank of Plum Creek, now greatly swollen by the rain. Certainly a most fitting place for such business as these fakers proposed.

At 10 o'clock that night Old King Brady stepped through the side door of the old mill and producing a flashlight, threw it around. No one was in sight. He cleared his throat three times. From the depths of the building a similar sound was heard. "He is here," thought the old detective. "For an efficient working partner, Harry has no equal."

Two men hurriedly entered. Both wore long raincoats and were masked.

"Well, gentlemen, I am here," said Old King Brady quietly.

One of the men turned a flashlight on him. "Yes," he said slowly, "you are certainly Gov. Strong. Have you brought the money?"

"My friend, I have brought no money. The sum you demand is exorbitant, but I am prepared to write a check for whatever amount we may agree upon."

"Look here, old man, you are getting this all wrong," flashed the mask.

Nature Takes a Hand.

He had scarcely finished speaking when the old mill took a tumble into the water, one end tipped up. All three men were thrown together, the masks rolling off of Old King Brady and sliding down the floor. The old detective grasped the leg of an old saw table, holding on like grim death.

"This is certainly a strange beginning!" thought Old King Brady. "It is to be hoped Harry's predicament is no worse than mine."

In a few minutes the old building went all to pieces and Old King Brady found himself going head-first into the water. But the table soon adjusted itself, allowing the detective's head to come up out of the water. He began to cough up some of the water he had swallowed.

"Who's there?" called a voice above him.

"Harry, is it you?" cried the old detective.

"Sure thing. I thought you were a goner. How long can you hang on, governor?"

"Why, indefinitely. I have to hold on. If I let go I'm a dead one."

Just ahead of them the stream divided and the big saw table, with Harry on top and old King Brady clinging to one leg, entangled itself in some bushes. Harry slid off his perch and after struggling through the bushes found himself on firm ground.

"I'm here!" he called. "I'm coming back for you."

In another minute they were both standing on the island in the pelting rain. They were safe now, but there was no telling what dangers they might encounter.

"We can't stay here, governor," said Harry. "There must be a shelter near." They pushed on and soon came to a small farmhouse. Old King Brady knocked on the door. They were received with all friendliness by the occupants.

"It's a terrible experience for an old man like you," said the farmer. "I was out a while ago and think we are safe until morning. Best thing you two can do is to go to bed."

Old King Brady thought so too, and to bed they went.

The next morning, after a good breakfast, the detectives were taken across the channel to a turnpike road which would lead them to Springton. It had been arranged that Alice should meet them at the hotel there in case she had anything to report. And, sure enough, there she was.

"You have done splendidly," said old King Brady when Alice had finished her recital of the night's adventure. "Did they say anything more about the child?"

"One man spoke of it, but the other sat down on him so hard the matter was dropped. I don't think they will harm the child. What shall you do, Mr. Brady?"

"Raid the circus at once. Riffaldi, Tony and Rashleigh are the men we want. I've been looking the matter up and find that Rixley is the county seat. We'll get the sheriff and break in on the afternoon performance."

The Raid.

Directly after dinner the Bradys and Alice rode over to Rixley. The sheriff met them at the station as arranged.

"We will go for them," said Old King Brady, "take them by surprise and we are bound to get them. Better place a guard at the performers' entrance in case of trouble."

"All right," replied the sheriff. "Be at the main entrance at 3 o'clock and I'll be there with my men."

Arrived at the tent all bought tickets and entered. Old King Brady and Alice mingled with a knot of people looking at the animals, while Harry, closely followed by the sheriff, started towards Riffaldi.

"You are Mr. Riffaldi, proprieter of this show?" demanded Young King Brady, walking boldly up to the man.

"Yes, I am. What about it?" was the brusque reply.

"I have a warrant for your arrest for robbing the bank at Spruce Ridge."

Riffaldi jumped away. As he darted past the elephants with Harry in pursuit, one of the elephants swung its trunk forward and caught the young detective around the body and raised him aloft, intending to dash him to death on the ground. Alice screamed. The keeper ran forward crying, "Make no move! I alone can save him." He struck at the huge breast with a sharp goad and the trunk relaxed its hold. Harry fell sprawling on the ground. Alice declared the elephant tried to step on him, but he managed to crawl to safety.

Riffaldi and Tony made their escape from the sheriff and took to the woods. Dick McGuinness, alias Rashleigh, was in his tights in his dressing room when Old King Brady got him.

The old detective interviewed the bareback rider in the jail, but he could get no information on the bank robbery, the letters, or the kidnaped child.

"For absolute failure, commend me to this job," remarked Old King Brady at the breakfast table next morning. "I confess I am at a loss."

"Suppose I tackle this Rashleigh," said Alice.

"You can try it and if you fail we will go back to Chicago and confer with the Governor," said the old detective.

Alice spent a futile hour with Rashleigh. Old King Brady then tried again. "McGuinness," he said, suddenly entering the man's cell, "this is your last chance. Split on these pals of yours and I shall see that you go free. Stick to your purpose and I swear I shall never let up until I have landed you in Joliet."

The fakir seemed to hesitate; then, "Go away and leave me alone."

Old King Brady took him at his word and made out a charge of kidnaping against him. Then he returned to Chicago with his partners.

"I think you have done wonders," said Gov. Strong when he heard the story. "I can't hold you to blame for the escape of the other two fellows."

"They'll probably strike at you again, Governor, very soon."

THE REBEL'S PLIGHT.

("Many Mexican soldiers, found with the rebels, say they did not know they were opposing federal troops."—News item.)

I'm a willing intrepid young soldier—
I care not how hot is the fray;
I love shot and shell,
But I wish I could tell
Which side I'll wind up with today.

With Mexican "Hip, hip, hooray!"
But I am in doubt
Till the papers come out
Which army I fought with all day.

I give all I have to the colors—
I fight till my rifle is hot;
But after each fight
I can not tell quite
My colors from those which are not.

I lead a smart charge up a hillside—
And then turn around and charge back;
I never quite know
When striking a blow
Which army I ought to attack.

I capture a town at one-thirty
And hand it back prompt at three;
I take it once more
At quarter to four—
It's all most confusing to me.

I rush into action unheeding
The bullets about me that spray,
But often I find
By looking behind
I fought the wrong army that day.

I follow my general gladly;
Devotion I loyally show—
Except when he goes
By night to our foes—
Without even letting me know!

It really is sad and confusing
To rush into battle and die
When feeling that you're Not certain or sure
Which army you're with, and just why.

EXTRA!

Bernarr McFadden, rumor says, is to publish a Wall street tabloid. On a bad day the big first-page feature will be, of course, a composite picture of the market collapsing.

Under the black headlines:
MARKET FALLS; MAN HURT; BANKING CULT GRILLED.

Somewhere in the tabloid will appear a photograph of Miss Twentypercent Money (in bathing suit of scanties) and in an oval a likeness of Jonathan K. Sapp on the way to the ambulance. The caption will be: "TRICKED," HE SAYS, "ASKING HEART BALM."

Col. Lindbergh and Miss Morrow will be married at North Haven, Maine. As long as it is to take place in that State, why not at Eagle Lake?

Or Good Will Farm, Somerset County?

Or, for that matter, Hop City, Oxford?

LIQUOR DEFENDANT REQUESTS ANALYSIS

Plea Sets Capital Precedent; Court Records Show Rum Continues Plentiful.

110 ARRESTED AS DRUNK

A move without precedent in liquor trial procedure in the Capital in which the defendant seeks to be given benefit of a chemical analysis of liquid evidence involved in the case, was made yesterday in Police Court.

A motion, filed by Attorneys Robert I. Miller and Cedric Johnson, petitioned the court to require and direct the Government to turn over a sufficient quantity of alleged liquor for the purpose of making an analysis in the case of Anna Mae Reynolds, colored, charged with Jones law offenses of sale and possession.

The attorneys predicated their action on a recent decision made by Federal Judge Soper, of Baltimore, who granted a similar motion in a liquor trial.

Argument in Case Tomorrow.

Arguments in the case are scheduled before Judge Ralph Given tomorrow. The defendant was arrested last week by the police vice squad, commanded by Sergt. O. J. Letterman, and only a half pint of alleged liquor was seized.

Evidence that liquor was plentiful over the week-end was revealed by the court records. Seven charges of dry law violations were filed, while 110 persons were charged with intoxication.

Four persons were held by Judge Given for the grand jury on charges of Jones law violation. They are Robert E. Shipman, 39 years old, and Frank Kane, 30, sale and possession; Jennie Jones, colored, 50, sale and possession, $2,000 bail; John Brown, sale, $2,000 bail.

Possession Charges Filed.

William Moore, colored, and George Curtis, colored, were held in $500 bail each for jury trials on possession charges.

A charge of sale and possession of liquor under the old law was dropped against Edith Johnson, colored, when it was reported the informer in the case could not be located. Frank Brown, colored, pleaded guilty to a charge of possession and was fined $50.

Fines ranging from $10 to $25 were the order in convictions of those charged with intoxication.

Citizen Group Asks Exile Of Congress Heights Pigs

Resolutions calling on the Health Department of the District to prohibit the raising of pigs in Congress Heights were adopted by the Washington Highlands Citizens Association at its meeting last night at the Congress Heights School. The proposed pig ban was given unanimous indorsement.

The association also went on record as protesting against the promiscuous use of firearms by members of the police force.

Recommendation was made that Alabama avenue be closed during school recess from Congress to Fifth streets and that Congress street be closed from Alabama avenue to Nichols street to give the children a playground. A committee composed of M. D. Sheives, D. H. Coles and Miss Bessie Warren was appointed to report to the Assistant Engineer Commissioner on needed street improvements.

EASTER EGG ROLLING DRAWS LARGE CROWD

struck by a taxicab as she was crossing Pennsylvania avenue, after leaving the grounds. The cab was driven by R. T. Fortune, 2433 Eighteenth street northwest, according to the police.

A visitor from White Plains, N. Y., Mrs. John F. Kohler, 75 years old, suffered a broken right wrist when she was overbalanced and knocked to the floor during a jam to get to departing trains at the Union Station. After treatment by Dr. Charles Wilcox, Terminal physician, Mrs. Kohler was able to proceed to White Plains.

From 9 o'clock yesterday morning until 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon the only adults admitted to the grounds in the rear of the White House were those accompanying children. After 3 o'clock the public was invited, and thousands of grown-ups took advantage of the opportunity to hear a concert by the U. S. Marine Band from 3:30 to 5 o'clock. This and a description of the party was radiocast.

Maypole Dance Held.

The children's Easter party was different in some respects from the parties of other years, owing to innovations introduced by Mrs. Hoover. A small plot of the lawn was roped and thereon was held a May pole dance. Another innovation was in the form of music. A quartet of Harvard students visiting here sang two selections of Easter music and the Glee Club of Earlham College sang a humorous number.

Mrs. Hoover, herself, took advantage of the occasion to entertain children of personal friends living or visiting here, as well as Cabinet and congressional children now in the city. The First Lady viewed the party from the south portico of the White House shortly before noon.

She was accompanied by Mrs. James J. Davis, wife of the Secretary of Labor, and standing near her during the songs sung by the quartet and the glee club was Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister of Vice rPesident Curtis. The Senator and Mrs. Capper were also on the portico.

President Views Play.

The President walked to the portico several times during the day to see the children at play.

Mrs. Hoover, accompanied by several friends, also put in her appearance on the portico about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon during the concert by the Marine Band. She viewed and took apparent delight in May pole dances which were staged at this time by children of Friendship House and the Neighborhood House.

All the children who went to the egg rolling carried Easter baskets containing colored eggs, candy rabbits and other Easter toys. One little girl, Harriet Freeman, 10 years old, whose parents live at the Stoneleigh Court Apartments, brought a real live rabbit with her to the White House.

Egg rollings were also held yesterday at the Capitol Grounds, at the Zoological Gardens, Soldiers' Home and Rock Creek Parks. Whoops of joy on the part of the youngsters indicate that fun was being had at all places. The streets were alive with little boys and girls, mostly girls, it seemed, on their way to an Easter egg rolling at one place or another.

Cox, 18 R street northeast. Mass will follow at St. Martin's Church. Burial will be in Congressional Cemetery.

Mr. Cox was employed in the office of displacements of the Southern Railway in Washington for a number of years. He had lived in or near Washington most of his life. He is survived by the widow, Joan Cox, four children, and a brother, Albert Cox, jr., as well as his parents.

Native of Washington, Long Ill, Will Be Buried From St. Stephen's Church.

Funeral services for James W. Fahey, 35 years old, a native of Washington, who died last week after an illness of several years, will be held at 9 o'clock this morning in St. Stephen's Catholic Church, following brief services at the residence, 1139 New Hampshire avenue northwest. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Mr. Fahey completed his education in Washington, but had spent the greater part of his life at health resorts. Most of the last eight years, however, were spent with his parents in this city. Survivors are the parents, William and Julia Fahey, and two brothers, John J. and Edward J. Fahey.

USED CAR PROBLEM SOLUTION OUTLINED

National Authority Asserts Cooperation Measures Not Panacea.

ADDRESSES LOCAL GROUP

Pointing out that solution of the used car problem to a large extent is dependent upon the manner in which the individual dealer handles this phase of his business, and that cooperative measures have not proved a panacea, C. A. Vane, general manager of the National Automobile Dealers Association, last night discussed the question in detail before the Washington Automotive Trade Association at the City Club.

Mr. Vane cited various methods which successful dealers have adopted in handling the problem, and emphasized that the predominant note throughout was the use of sound business measures based upon clear-cut economic principles. Deviation from such measures, Mr. Vane insisted, results only in hazards for the automobile merchant.

Mr. Vane concluded his talk to the local dealers by pointing out that efforts to reach a fuller mutual understanding between dealers and manufacturers are meeting with increasing success.

S. S. Grogan, who recently resigned as assistant secretary of the Washington Automotive Trade Association, was presented with a watch by the association in recognition of his years of service. The presentation was made on behalf of the association by Rudolph Jose.

The final report of the used car committee was made by Fred Haller, its chairman. R. P. Johnson spoke briefly in behalf of the Lee Highway Association.

King George, Stronger, Talks to Beach Crowd

Bognor, England, April 1 (A.P.).—King George is so far improved that he stood bareheaded on the low sea wall of Craigweil House today, the wind ruffling his hair, and waved his hat to a cheering holiday crowd on the beach.

The crowd had heard another concert from the band on the Craigweil House lawn and at its close came cries from the throng, "get well, sir." To this the king responded "I am going to do so." There was more cheering at this and the king responded with a final "good-by" as he turned toward the house.

Chicago Company Cuts Air Fare to Minneapolis

Chicago, April 1 (A.P.).—Airplane travel is getting cheaper. Drastic reduction of fare on its line between Chicago and Minneapolis was announced today by the Northwest Airways, Inc.

One-way passage between Chicago and the Twin Cities now costs $30. The former fare was $45. At the same time the company placed in effect a round-trip rate of $50, with a 30-day stopover privilege.

Rail Commission Leaves Mexico.

Mexico City, April 1 (A.P.).—The commission of railway experts sent by the international bankers committee on Mexico to study the situation of the Mexican National Railways will leave this evening for New York. They have been in Mexico several weeks. The commission is made up of B. G. Maguire, C. N. Colpitts, M. J. Caples, M. D. Ballantine and T. A. Cook.

Bright Colored Gowns Suit Mrs. Longworth's Vivacity

Roosevelt's Daughter Likes Rich Brocades; Sometimes Wears White.

By EMMA PERLEY LINCOLN.

Anything regarding Mrs. Nicholas Longworth is always of interest to the public, so despite the many thousands of words which have been written about her there is always something more to be said of this fascinating daughter of Theodore Roosevelt.

During four years spent in the National Capital it has always pleased this writer to note what Mrs. Longworth wore, what she did, what she said and all about her whenever the opportunity has arisen.

One of the outstanding recollections of this writer's first winter here was a first glimpse of Mrs. Longworth at a diplomatic reception at the White House. She was as usual surrounded by an interested circle of statesmen of the moment, her face glowing with animation as she vivaciously related some amusing incident to their delight. She was wearing a gown of rich brocade in either a wine or purplish color, with gold and silver embroidery in the weave. Since that time we have learned that she has a fondness for handsome brocades and flowered silks, with vivid splashes of color, which suit her brilliant personality especially well.

Sometimes she wears white in the evening. The evening not long ago when she and the Speaker of the House were guests of honor of the Congressional Club, she wore an exquisite white gown, embroidered in brilliants, and carried a torquoise blue shawl. Her jewels on that evening were a diamond necklace and matching bracelets of diamonds.

Mrs. Longworth often wears red and shades of rose in evening gowns too. Her coloring allows her to wear any color she might choose. She seldom if ever wears black, but has brown and beige sport clothes and ensembles for street wear, and trim little hats, usually with brims, which she endures while walking, but which, as the whole world knows, come off the minute she is under cover.

MRS. ALICE LONGWORTH.

Walking on Massachusetts avenue with her active little daughter, Paulina, one morning recently, Mrs. Longworth was attired in a deep green kasha, with a fur collar, and wore a soft green felt hat, her young daughter wearing an exact miniature of her mother's costume. This may have been a coincidence, but at any rate it was a charming effect.

Mrs. Longworth is apparently quite casual about her clothes and is never conscious of her costumes. You always have the feeling that she is wearing the perfect selection and clothes which suggest the free and youthful spirit, which is always associated with America's "Princess Alice."

MAYFLOWER LEAVES TODAY ON LAST TRIP

Former Presidential Yacht Will Be Decommissioned at Philadelphia.

OFFICERS' NEW STATIONS

With the sailing this morning of the Mayflower, long the presidential yacht, for Philadelphia, where it will be decommissioned, the new stations of the commanding officers were announced yesterday.

Capt. Wilson Brown, aid to President Hoover and commander of the Mayflower, will take command of the submarine base at New London, Conn.; Lieut. Comdr. Joel T. Boone, medical officer of the Mayflower, will be stationed in the naval dispensary, while Lieut. Comdr. Leo H. Thebaud, executive officer of the ship, will go to the Naval Academy.

Capt. Brown will take the yacht to Philadelphia, leaving at 6 o'clock this morning. After docking the ship at the naval yard in Philadelphia he will return to Washington to turn over his duties as aid to the President to Commander William R. Munroe.

Capt. Brown has a distinguished record in the Navy. He commanded the destroyer Parker in European waters during the World War, for which he was awarded the Navy Cross. He took over the command of the Mayflower in April, 1926.

Lieut. Comdr. Boone, holder of the Medal of Honor, the French Croix de Guerre and the Italian War Cross, was assigned to the Mayflower as ship physician in May of 1922, after serving with the Sixth Regiment of Marines in France. He entered the service in July, 1914.

Lieut. Comdr. Thebaud, before being stationed on the Mayflower in January, 1928, was commander of the U. S. S. Paulding. During the World War he served on the U. S. S. Paul Jones and the U. S. S. Wickes and was awarded the Navy Cross.

Wisconsin to Vote On Dry Law Today

Repeal of State Act to Be Decided; Hoover's Name Invoked in Fight.

Milwaukee, Wis., April 1 (A.P.).—Wisconsin will vote tomorrow on whether the State's prohibition law should be erased from the statutes. Two separate questions will be decided in the referendum. The first proposes repeal of the Severson act, State enforcement law, and the second would remove penalties for possession and sale of beer of 2.75 per cent alcoholic content.

Women's organizations have urged voters to "stand by President Hoover," as has Warren G. Jones, State superintendent of the Antisaloon League. Gov. Walter J. Kohler has remained silent on the queston, although the referendum move was passed by a Legislature controlled by Republicans, a majority of whom were aligned with his faction.

Both sides tonight expressed confidence in the outcome. J. J. Seelman, State president of the Wisconsin Association Against Prohibition, said the State would "help smash prohibition."

Spring Iceberg Patrol Begun by Coast Guard

Boston, April 1 (A.P.).—With the sailing of the cutter Tampa today the Coast Guard took up its annual humanitarian task of safeguarding the North Atlantic shipping lanes against the lurking menace of icebergs. It will be the duty of the Tampa and the cutter Modoc, which will leave Boston April 15, to chart the great white bergs which come floating down from the Greenland ice cap and to warn shipping by radio against their presence.

The ice patrol was established at a conference of maritime nations after the Titanic disaster in April of 1912, when 1,500 persons lost their lives.

Thief of Trolley Car Taken in Merry Chase

Pittsburgh, April 1 (A.P.).—O. J. Coats, 28 years old, of Carnegie, was held today on a charge of stealing a trolley car. Police said he took it from the yards of the Pittsburgh Railways Co and went joy riding Saturday night.

Employes of the company said the car was driven out of the yards before they could halt it. As it sped away, with the gong clanging merrily, police were notified and gave chase. Officers found the trolley near West View Park and Coats was wandering about nearby. While Coats denied he had taken the car, the police said he was identified as the unauthorized operator. He will be given a hearing tonight.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

With NELSON B. BELL

A side of his nature so little known by the general public has been revealed by former President Coolidge in his writings since leaving the White House that some of us are being given pause as memory reverts to incidents that were accorded little heed at the time of their occurrence. I have in mind particularly a crowded day many years ago when President Harding was the Nation's Chief Executive and Calvin Coolidge presided over the deliberations of the Senate and Joe Morgan, then general manager of the Crandall Theaters; Jack Pegler, an itinerant publicist, and I were called upon to act as hosts to Wesley "Freckles" Barry, in Washington on a rush visit to meet the President.

Considerably more time that day was spent in the Senate wing of the Capitol than in the executive offices of the White House, although we tarried in the latter precincts well beyond our allotted time while Wesley and the President chatted about California oranges, Tarkington's "Penrod" and other topics pertinent at the moment. But while that is all pleasant to remember, it is not getting me anywhere with what I started out to say.

My most vivid recollection of that hectic day is of the intense interest which the then Vice President manifested in the activities of the kid who had, by virtue of more freckles than most boys could find room for on their faces, taken a dominant place among stars of the screen. There was none of the wordlessness, austerity or aloofness so often imputed to him about Calvin Coolidge that day. On the contrary, he betrayed a friendly and companionable nature that made Wesley's moment of occupancy of the Vice President's chair in the Senate chamber a lively frolic rather than an arduous task.

Calvin Coolidge, jr., was then alive and, in the light of subsequent disclosures, I am inclined to believe that that made all the difference. It was never my privilege again to find President Coolidge in a comparable mood.

While any one who has followed the development of the audible screen through the past year can see the handwriting on the wall in "The Broadway Melody" in so far as the continued dominance of the spoken theater is concerned, that sterling example of good boxoffice still embodies glaring faults that never should have been allowed to mar an articulate picture otherwise so well made.

This department has harped away for months on the necessity of restricting sounds emanating from the screen to those which are inherent in the scene. With a visible orchestra in the pit of the theater this requirement is not so stringent.

But I should like to know how the sponsors of the "Melody" can justify the presence of an orchestra in the hotel room where Bessie Love and Anita Page are performing their ablutions immediately after having arrived in New York from the sticks. Dear old Eddie Kerns, in the person of Charlie King, crashes the room, after having left the theater rehearsal, and at once begins to prattle about what a wow of a song hit he has just dashed off for "Zannie." No sooner is the tune mentioned than a full orchestra strikes up from nobody knows where.

If I can find out what hotel it is and they really furnish an orchestra with each room and bath, I mean to stop their on my next trip. It will be a great aid to my bathtub singing!

The percentage of residential theaters in the Capital equipped with sound devices creeps steadily nearer and nearer the 100 mark. On Easter Sunday the Colony and Chevy Chase theaters, both belonging to the Stanley-Crandall chain, joined the ranks of those mechanically perfected for the presentation of sound and dialogue pictures.

I am not sure whether this completes the projected S-C 11 that were to be wired or not, but, if not, it comes dangerously close and makes available the newest type of screen entertainment in every section of the Capital.

One enthusiastic vote is hereby cast for Mr. John Irving Fisher, the new master of ceremonies at the Fox Theater. I have not found it possible to cast my ballot on the affirmative side of this proposition at the Fox with any too great frequency, but Mr. Fisher strikes me as a young man who knows his stuff and possesses the poise to put it over. And he fingers an excessively mean piano, in the bargain.

It is my hope that Mr. Fisher likes our city at least as well as his predecessor, Mr. Frohman, who graciously admitted from the stage that if Washington was good enough for President Hoover it was probably good enough for him!

Perhaps it was my ears, but when I heard Douglas Fairbanks orating from the screen anent the many virtues of his incoming picture, "The Iron Mask," last Saturday afternoon it seemed to me that by reason of having fallen into disuse for so long a time his declamatory style was not quite so vibrant as once it was.

Doug, unfortunately, has compiled an inescapable reputation as a sort of dynamic young Peter Pan who never will grow older than he was in the early days of his camera acrobatics for Triangle, but just the same arteries will harden, I am told, and voices will lose their ring and——

Probably it was my ears.

I tried my darndest to borrow a baby for the egg-rolling, but aren't mothers the persnickity young things!

Air Mail Is Inaugurated In Japan Despite Storm

Tokyo, April 1 (A.P.).—Japan's first air-mail was inaugurated today despite storms which curtailed the service on some routes. The mails were carried successfully, however, between Tokyo, Osaka and Fukuoka and between Dairen and Korea.

During the next few weeks until some foreign passenger planes, which have been ordered, arrive, the service will be limited to mails. With arrival of the new planes a service between Fukuoka and Korea will be started also.

Critics of Radio Board Are Rapped

Caldwell Calls Present Commission Arrangement Triumph of Political Machination — For One-Man Control.

Back in civil life and not hampered by official restrictions of speech, former Radio Commissioner O. H. Caldwell yesterday vigorously paid respects to some of his friends on the hill. Also in advocating that radio revert to one-man control, he added that it is time the commission control idea "be booted out of the window."

"A triumph of political machination at the expense of radio efficiency," Mr. Caldwell declared, "was the amendment cutting the terms of all Radio Commissioners to one year—and later limiting the terms to December 1.

"A public officer safe-guarded with a four or six-year term can be expected to exercise his judgment and convictions in the broad public interest. But as matters now stand, any radio commissioner who wants his job faces daily in his duties the jeopardizing of his whole future, if in serving the national interest he treads ever so lightly on the toes of this or that politician's 'favorite' broadcasting station or radio interest.

"The passage of this short term provision was a threat and warning to the radio commissioners that no constructive progress was wanted during 1929, and that next December the ax would be waiting for any commissioner so rash as to put the general public interest ahead of subservience to demands of the politicians as to how individual cases should be dealt with.

"Rank discrimination against radio principles and radio engineers still persists in the minds of some congressmen, led by men like Ewin Davis and C. C. Dill, and is reflected in harmful radio legislation. For example, an excellent provision in the 1929 act authorizes a chief counsel at $10,000 a year, and several assistants at $7,500. These legal services are, of course, urgently needed to protect radio. But no provision was made for corresponding compensation for a radio engineer and staff, although the legal and engineering functions of the commission run exactly parallel."

After two years experience Mr. Caldwell, who has now resumed his editorial duties in New York, believes it is thoroughly proved that any commission plan is not adapted for handling administrative work in a complex situation like that of radio.

"But when Congress, through incompetent radio leaders," he concludes, "further weakens an already unsound structure, stifles the independent action of the commission, hobbles its membership in personnel and funds, discriminates against engineers and expert radio advisers, and generally seeks to reduce the board's functioning to lowest political levels, with radio considerations ignored—it is time the whole radio commission idea be booted bodily out of the window, and radio administrative authority placed once more in the executive branch of the government, where it functioned so well under the Secretary of Commerce until 1926."

The proceedings of the dinner given in honor of Gen. Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff of the Army to be given in New York City tomorrow night will be broadcast by Stations WJZ, New York and KDKA, Pittsburgh.

The sixth officer in the history of the United States to achieve the rank of full general will greet radio listeners when he speaks from the grand ball room of the Hotel Astor during a congratulatory dinner in his honor.

Fifteen generals head the list of Army, Navy and community leaders who have accepted invitations to attend the Government Club's testimonial banquet and dance. Gen. Summerall, and other distinguished military and civic personages will deliver brief speeches during the one hour broadcast beginning at 10 o'clock, Eastern Standard Time. The regimental band of the Sixteenth U. S. Infantry from Governors Island, where Gen. Summerall was formerly corps area commander, will play. Mrs. George E. Owens, president of the Government Club, will preside.

Prominent persons who will be present include Maj. Gen. Hanson E. Ely, Maj. Gen. Robert Lee Bullard, Maj. Gen. Hugh L. Scott, Maj. Gen. Robert C. Davis, Maj. Gen. William Weigel, Maj. Gen. William R. Smith, Rear Admiral Charles P. Plunkett, Rear Admiral Louis R. de Steiguer, the Hon. Edward I. Edwards, the Hon. William M. Calder, George Ochs Oakes, Brig. Gen. Louis W. Stotesbury, Brig. Gen. William Barclay Parsons, Brig. Gen. Sydney L. Grant, Grig. Gen. Otho B. Rosenbaum, Brig. Gen. J. Phelan, Brig. Gen. John Ross Delafield, Brig. Gen. Brice P. Disque, and Brig. Gen. Oliver B. JELLIES AND JAMS FROM THE STORE

Make the Whole Meal More Enjoyable

Jams, jellies and preserves are marvelous energy foods for children, athletes, and all physically active people. In addition to that, they make the whole meal more delicious. They are appetizing spreads for bread, accompaniments for meats, and tasteful additions to toast, muffins and hot breads.

Another good thing about jams, jellies and preserves, all grocers today carry them. These bought foods are delicious. Their purity can be depended on. They contain appetizing fruit acids, and beneficial minerals and vitamins.

Thousands of women and girls today are permanently injuring their health by dangerous weight reduction. All children should be a little overweight, if anything, as a protection against disease.

It is almost a rule of health that those foods that are made more delicious by sugar are the best for us to eat. Eat daily plenty of cereals, fruits, vegetables and milk, sweetened for perfect enjoyment, and you will go a long way toward health in diet. See that all growing children eat enough regularly. Eat for nutrition and enjoyment. The Sugar Institute.

Orchestra of 90 Plays on Air Tonight

Latin-American Program Will Be Broadcast 8:30. Keith's All-star Bill at 11. Favorite Waltz Will Be Offered by Whiteman.

A program of Latin-American music will be broadcast from the Hall of the Americas in the Pan American Union tonight. Station NAA will carry the program from 8:30 until 10 o'clock when it will be joined by stations of the Columbia Broadcasting System until 11 o'clock. This is the forty-fourth concert in the series held under the auspices of the union.

The United Service Orchestra of 90 pieces will again play some of the outstanding successes from the "Other Americas". This musical organization will be led jointly by Capt. William J. Stannard, leader of the U. S. Army Band, and Lieut. Charles Benter, leader of the U. S. Navy Band. While several numbers, never before rendered in this country appear on the program, two groups of selections represent requests received from quite a wide range of territory. Indigenous music used by the ancient peoples of the New World will be represented by Incan and Mayan compositions, while Alvarado's "Yaqui Dance" will be a featured selection.

The assisting artists will be Margarita Cueto, Mexican soprano, and Ernesto Lecuona, Cuban pianist. Folk songs will also be feature offerings of the famous Hernandez Brothers Trio, Gonzalo, Hector, and Francisco, from the Republic of Colombia, who are making their debut in a Pan American program.

The R-K-O Hour, having completed a nationwide poll to determine the most popular vaudeville artists from the standpoint of the radio listener, will present an all-star program tonight at 11 o'clock in which the entertainers who received the most votes will be starred. Belle Baker and Sophie Tucker tied for first place in the voting. Rudy Vallee and his Connecticut Yankees, one of the most talked about bands in the country, also are on the bill.

Other artists include Van and Schenck, Ted Lewis and his musical clowns, Vincent Lopez and his orchestra, and Nick Lucas. Miss Tucker, Lucas and Ted Lewis are on the Pacific Coast so they will broadcast from an NBC studio in Los Angeles, while the other artists will be heard from a New York studio of the NBC. A second group of entertainers will be presented next Tuesday at the same hour.

Reinald Werrenrath, concert baritone and former star of the Metropolitan Opera, will feature the Eveready Hour at 9 o'clock tonight. Mr. Werrenrath will sing a series of songs familiar to his audiences, including "The Two Grenadiers;" Captain Stratton's "Fancy"; "The Road to Mandalay" and the Neapolitan Love Song from Herbert's operetta, "Princess Pat".

Paul Whiteman will recall old favorites in a waltz medley to be featured in the program that the Old Gold-Paul Whiteman Hour will present from WMAL at 9 o'clock tonight. The complete program follows:

1. "Pale Moon" and "Gypsy." 2. "Moonlight and Roses," "Among My Souvenirs," "My Buddy," and "Ramona." 3. Waltz Medley. "Down by the Old Mill Stream," "Sweet Adeline," "Shade of the Old Apple Tree," and "After the Ball." 4. "When Day Is Done" and "Moonlight on the Ganges." 5. "Spain," a tango, and "Asleep in the Deep." 6. "The Song I Love," "Sam, the Accordion Man," and "Southwind." 7. Medley of "Sleepy Time Gal," "Somebody Stole My Gal," "Mary Lou," and "Things That Were Made for Love." 8. "In a Little Spanish Town," "Wildflower," and "Hallelujah."

A concert by the U. S. Navy Band will be broadcast from 8:15 to 9 o'clock by WMAL. Frederic William Wile will present "The Political Situation in Washington Tonight" at 8 o'clock.

The Columbia Trio and the Silver String Revelers will be presented by WJSV between 9:30 and 11 o'clock tonight. Several other features are to be heard in a program starting at 6 o'clock.

Mrs. Giles Scott Rafter will discuss Parent-Teacher Activities from WOL at 6:20 o'clock for a 10-minute period. Andy Claus will be on at 6:03 o'clock. The regular morning programs, with a household chat by Peggy Clarke and a beauty talk by Bertha Parker are listed.

TODAY'S WOMEN

By EARL MINDERMAN

APRIL 2.

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S favorite actress, Elizabeth Kemble Whitlock, was born this day, 1761. Miss Whitlock was an English actress but frequently appeared in America, usually in Philadelphia, where President Washington often saw her. She was the most popular actress of her day in this country.

The famous screen star, Nita Naldi, was born this day in New York City. She made her first appearance on the stage as a chorus girl in "The Passing Show of 1918" at the New York Winter Garden. Being first cast for a role in the film, "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," Miss Nalhi's beauty and talent won her a role in Rudolph Valentino's "Blood and Sand." The picture made her famous as a screen "vamp." Many of the world's leading artists have chosen Miss Naldi for a model and have recorded permanently her beauty on canvas.

Flora Annie Webster Steele, English author, who wrote "On the Face of the Waters" and other novels, was born this day, 1847.

CLOSING IS ANNOUNCED

Readers Have Been Positively Warned to Lose No Time

At last the Dictionary distribution is to be discontinued—and in a very short time. The exact date has not yet been decided upon, but it will be announced in a few days.

In the meantime, all readers who have not yet taken advantage of this offer should "hustle their stumps," as the old timers used to say, and present their Dictionary coupons before this educational campaign is brought to a close.

There's not a better Dictionary of the kind published—that's sure. Call and look it over—which is the way to prove this statement. Call and see the book. Only three coupons and the small distribution expense are required.

Jane Interprets the Mode

Uncurled ostrich plumes trim this lovely gown of tortoise-shell crepe satin, covering the entire skirt. (Courtesy of Louiseboulanger, Paris).

NEW YORK, April 1, 1929.—This summer will see the greatest popularity of fancy dress materials we have had in a long time. Not only the Scotch plaids and tartans, about which we have told you on recent occasions, but plaids of all sorts, striped materials, flower designs, polka-dots and the like.

In these stripes and polka-dots, black and white will be a strong favorite, but many other combinations will be seen as well—black and yellow, blue and green, green and black, black and gold, red and black, &c.

A particular favorite with the couturiers at the moment for evening gowns and more or less formal wear is a heavy black silk with a polka-dot pattern of gold dots, more or less widely scattered and rather small. Its quiet richness is most effective.

Frequently the polka-dot materials are used in combination with the same fabric in a matching solid color—a black and white polka-dot blouse, for instance, with a black skirt and black jacket of the same fabric. Or in other cases the dots will find their use for incrustations and inserts. Another interesting effect is a pleated flounce over the same polka-dot material used flat, giving a pleasing variety to the design.

One coat in two colors, and one heavy and one light dress to go with it—worn with the same accessories, and two hats, and Little Sister is outfitted for spring and summer! All she needs further is a few dresses for "best" and some school frocks.

Wouldn't you like to see Wee Mamzelle's new spring wardrobe Just as practical and chic as you can imagine—send your stamped self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet, which not only shows you the designs, but tells you how to make them as well.

Coin de Couleur.

Here and there and everywhere comes echoes of purple, in varying shades, to be a smart and popular color for spring and summer. Smart, perhaps, but never popular, simply because it is so difficult to wear.

If you can wear it, do so by all means. It is such a distinctive color, and carries with it something of its original aura of royalty. And if you are sure you can not wear it, don't try. But don't just suppose you can't, either. Study various shades of purple in relation to your own coloring.

We thought it was fringe—but it wasn't. 'Twas uncurled ostrich feathers, all over the skirt, which swayed softly as the wearer walked—with a quiet air of elegance that made one like the gown instantly.

So we illustrated it for you today, even though we must admit it didn't lend itself so well to illustration! Haven't you ever noticed how the loveliest gowns never do, while those that make stunning sketches are so often almost impossible to wear?

L'le Atmosphere.

Well, for instance, the most extraordinary exercises that we are taking morning and afternoon in company with several Japanese officers, one German youth, and a couple of Spaniards—superintended by the Japanese captain of this boat, who claims that these exercises—only 15 minutes twice a day—will do every kind of known and unknown wonder for one. Let you know whether they do, or merely kill us. I can hear Le Secretaire Gallant say, when he reads this—"Any kind of exercise that you could be persuaded to take would be wonderful."

This feature appears exclusively in this territory in The Washington Post. The Fashion letter appears in the Sunday issue.

Au Revoir!

What Today Means to You

APRIL 2

"AIRES."

IF April 2 is your birthday, the best hours for you today are from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m., from 3:15 p. m. to 5 p. m., and from 7:30 p. m. to 8:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:30 a. m. to 10 a. m. and from 5.45 p. m. to 6:50 p. m.

Today promises an unexpected measure of success in business or professional efforts, as the aspects denote that there will be engendered the spirit of perseverance, combined with vision and good sound judgment. On the other hand, impulsiveness must be curbed, and no risks—either physical or financial—should be taken.

Children born today will have cautious and reserved natures, and will display little warmth of feeling. They will be studious, quiet, and will have a poor sense of humor. They will enter into all things with dignity and a serious mind.

No matter how humble the cradle in which you were born, or how great or many your early handicaps, you are going to get a great deal out of life, and you are willing to work and fight for it. You will not be easily satisfied, but will seek for the best and for the highest. You surround yourself with an aura of positive thoughts, which guard you from many enemies to success and happiness.

Your ability to concentrate, more than any natural aptitude or inherited gift, is the one big factor to which you owe your success. You do not scatter your brain forces, but focus your mental energies upon the problem or interest at hand. A keen desire to excel is the strong stimulus which keeps alive your interest in many things and which forces you on, even against great odds, toward the goal of your desire. Worry, the child of Fear, does not torment and harass you. That which is, you take philosophically, and you do not attempt to bridge the future. You never seem disturbed, anxious or flurried, yet you accomplish things. You do not allow your mind or body to go "stale" from lack of diversions. You have your hobbies.

You are an outdoor enthusiast, you love sports, you crave amusements at times and you seek the companionship of a congenial friend or book.

Successful people born April 2:

Thomas Jefferson, third President of United States.

David Ramsey, physician.

Charlemagne, emperor.

Erastus D. Palmer, sculptor.

Alfred H. Littlefield, manufacturer and governor of Rhode Island.

George H. Putnam, publisher.

Visits in South America.

I. BRAZIL

LAST week we paid visits to the sun, moon and stars, and I trust that you enjoyed those regions. This week we have come back to earth and will start a little journey round about our sister continent—South America.

Negro boys in Brazil selling milk by the cupful. One of them blows a horn to attract business.

South America contains 6,851,000 square miles. If it could be placed over North America, it would cover all the land except about one-seventh.

The largest country in South America is Brazil. It is larger than the United States, but not so large as Canada.

Brazil now contains about 30,000,000 people. Most of them speak Portuguese. The early white settlers came mainly from Portugal, and Portugal once owned Brazil as a colony.

The chief city of Brazil is Rio de Janeiro, capital of the republic. It lies in the southern part of the country, beside a bay which is studded with dozens of islands. Behind the city is a mountain range.

Almost 1,500,000 persons make their homes in Rio de Janeiro. Some are of Portuguese blood, a smaller number are Spanish. There are many negroes in the city, and some Indians—though most of Brazil's Indians live in the great stretches of the interior of the country.

Brazil's coffee has done much to make the country famous. The people of the country are heavy coffee drinkers, and they send 60,000 or 70,000 tons of coffee beans to foreign lands each year. There is an estate in Brazil which contains more than 8,000,000 coffee trees. You could get lost in that "forest" without half trying!

We mustn't forget Brazil's mighty river—the Amazon. The Amazon comes down the slope from the Andes Mountains and flows across Brazil to the Atlantic Ocean, for a distance of more than 3,000 miles.

Alongside the Amazon are "tame" Indians who gather rubber for the white men; but there are "wild" Indians in the jungle region, and some of them shoot poisoned arrows from blow guns.

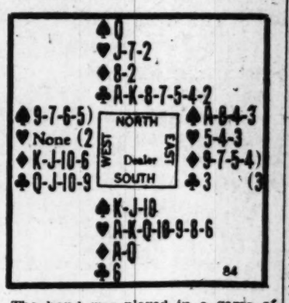
WORK ON BRIDGE

Mr. Work has prepared a booklet giving detailed information concerning the correct way to play Progressive Auction Bridge. This booklet will be sent to all readers without charge. Mr. Work will also answer without charge any Bridge questions. Requests must be accompanied by an addressed, stamped return envelope, and addressed to Mr. Milton C. Work, care of this newspaper.

IN this series of "Misplayed Hands I Have Met," I am giving today one which should be of special interest because the mistake therein is one often made. The cards were distributed as follows:



The hand was played in a game of Auction Bridge. South bid one Heart, North two Clubs, South two Hearts which obtained the contract.

In spite of North's bid, West's opening lead was the Queen of Clubs, which North won and desiring to discard the Queen of Diamonds from the South hand rather than risk the finesse (which would have lost), led the Ace of Clubs. East trumped this trick and South overtrumped. South partially retrieved his error by exhausting East's trumps in two rounds and then leading a Spade. East's Ace of Spades took this trick, and he led a Diamond which South won with the Ace. South then led two good spades. Dummy discarded his remaining Diamond and so was able to ruff South's Diamond Queen with Dummy's remaining trump; consequently Declarer made a Small Slam and was congratulated by his partner for his brilliant play.

Was the Declarer brilliant or dumb?

THE CORRECT PLAY.

After the first trick Declarer could count exactly three Clubs in the adverse hands. He did not know how the Clubs were divided, but he did know that Dummy had two entries in trumps and that by letting the Closed Hand ruff two clubs, that suit must be established in Dummy even if one adversary held all the remaining adverse Clubs. With that suit established, four discards could be obtained by Closed hand and a Grand Slam made.

Consequently Dummy should have led a small Club to trick 2 and Closed Hand should have ruffed with any Heart except the Six, and then put Dummy in with a trump. To trick 4. Dummy should have led a second small club and again Closed Hand should have ruffed with a high trump and led another high trump, followed by another trump which Dummy's Jack would win, taking out East's last trump and leaving Dummy in the lead. As Dummy's four Clubs then would be established, Closed Hand would obtain four discards and Declarer would make a Grand Slam.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

A THINKER LOOKS AT THE SEA.

I saw a man on the ocean's edge
Looking far out to sea,
And watching there from my easy chair
A strange thought came to me:
So still he stands on those golden sands
A thinker that man must be.

Perhaps he dreams of his boyhood days
Or yearns for a sailor's lot,
Perhaps in his mind he has chanced to find
A memory long forgot,
Or has seen revealed a truth concealed
In the dusty streets and hot.

So I ventured out where the stranger stood
And questioned him then and there.
"Do you glimpse a sign of the power divine
In sea and sky and air?
What thought have you, either old or new,
As into that space you stare?"

"What?" said he, with the blankest look
That ever on earth I've met.
"Are you asking me, when I look at the sea
What sort of a thought I get?
If the world goes dry, to myself say I,
The sea will still be wet."

TUNE IN TONIG

MANY STOCK ISSUES BREAK IN REACTION

Drops From 5 to Over 20 Points Made as Money Goes to 15 Per Cent.

BANKS REFUSE SUPPORT

New York, April 1 (A.P.).—The stock market resumed operations after its three-day holiday today only to find itself again enmeshed in the snarls of the credit situation. A secondary reaction of considerable severity developed, a long list of important issues selling off from 5 to more than 20 points.

A reaction after the sharp break and too rapid recovery last week was not surprising, but the continued scarcity of call money, and the disturbing public discussions of the handling of credit during the market holidays, unsettled confidence and greatly augmented the selling arising from the technical condition of the market. The pace of trading fell off, however, only 4,162,830 shares changing hands, in contrast to the 5,000,000 to 8,000,000 share days last week, and in general stocks did not break through the low levels of last Tuesday.

Call money renewed at 10 per cent, in contrast to 8 per cent at Thursday's close, and then mounted successively to 12 and to 15, equaling Thursday's renewal rate. The accumulation of selling orders over the week-end carried prices off sharply in a busy opening. A rather feeble rally around midday was checked by the 12 per cent rate, but a number of issues rallied briskly in the last hour, despite the 15 per cent rate.

Money Remains Tight.

Further adjustments of balances incident to the quarterly settlements, and the fact that it will take until Wednesday to clear the bulk of the quarterly payment checks, served to keep money tight. After the storm of criticism leveled at Charles E. Mitchell, of the National City Bank, for aiding the market last week, bankers were reluctant to help the market today, and the flow of funds from Europe was cut off because of the church holiday there.

The threat of the ordering of a congressional investigation of credit and speculation at the coming special session caused misgivings among the speculative community, as such investigations have invariably been attended by unsettlement of the market. The Federal Reserve Board meeting in Washington caused considerable uneasiness, as usual of late, although Secretary Mellon said afterward that the New York situation was not discussed.

Business news continued favorable. Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck reported record March sales, and the early reports of automobile manufacturers bore out predictions of a record March production. R. G. Dun & Co. reported that commercial failures for the first quarter presented the brightest picture for any like period since 1926. Further evidences of the buoyancy of copper appeared in 1928 earnings, reports of Inspiration, showing $2.93 a share against 62 cents in 1927, and Magma, showing $4.78 against $2.02. Miami Copper stepped up its annual dividend rate to $4 from $2. Zinc was stepped up $3 to $4, the highest in years.

Gains in Late Rally.

The bulk of important shares regained from 1-3 to ½ of their extreme losses of the day in the late rally. International Telephone, which sold up vigorously last week on rumors of a merger with RCA communications, dropped 22½ points on the announcement that no immediate consolidation is under consideration. At the close, however, its net loss was but 13½ points. Radio sold down 11 points, and regained 5. American Telephone regained 4 points of a 9-point drop.

Coppers were sold heavily for a time, Anaconda and Greene Cananea making extreme losses of about 10 and 13 points. Electric Auto Lite sold off 13 points, and closed off more than 9. Such issues as American Can, Allied Chemical, Canadian Pacific, General Electric, Montgomery Ward, New York Central, and U. S. Steel, sold down from 6 to 10 points, but mostly closed up 2 or 3 points from their lows of the day. General Motors yielded 4 points, but closed off 2½ net.

Midland Steel Strong.

Among the scarce strong points, Midland Steel Products preferred sold up 6 points, close to its peak, while Bloomingdale Brothers made a new high in a like gain. Melville Shoe gained more than 4 points, and American Machine & Foundry closed a point higher.

In the commodities, cotton and grain were sharply depressed, in sympathy with the stock market. Cotton futures closed about 60 cents to $1.05 a bale lower, and wheat about 2 cents a bushel lower.

Foreign exchanges were quiet, owing to the holiday abroad, but generally firm, sterling ruling a shade higher. The Canadian dollar, however, dropped to a discount of ¾ of a cent.

CONVERTIBLE BONDS HAVE SHARP BREAK

General List Is Irregular, Market Fearing Increase in Rediscount Rates.

NEW LOWS ARE RECORDED

New York, April 1 (A.P.).—Sharp breaks in a few convertible issues featured an otherwise dull bond market today. The general list was extremely irregular, with about a score issues dropping into new low ground for the year on liquidation inspired by fears of an early increase in Federal reserve rediscount rates. Total sales were only $9,896,000.

Anaconda Copper 7s broke 14 points to 231 in sympathy with a break in the stock and then rallied to 234. The bonds have sold as high as 268 and as low as 187 this year. International Telephone debenture 4½s, which recorded a spectacular advance last week to a new high record of 131, dropped back to 123 and rallied to 124½, or 6 points below last Thursday's final quotation. Trading in these two issues comprised more than one-tenth of the day's entire volume of business.

Although the credit crisis which developed last week when the call money rate soared to 20 per cent was widely regarded as "a closed incident," the flurry in call money from 10 to 15 per cent today and the renewed agitation for an increase in rediscount rates had a disturbing effect on sentiment. Distribution of more than $500,000,000 in dividend and interest payments this month failed to develop any appreciable investment demand. In banking circles it was stated that definite indications of easier money rates are a necessary prelude to a revival of general activity and strength in bond prices.

Foreign bonds presented a few points of strength, namely, Pirelli 7s, which advanced 3 points, to 128; German General Electric 6s, which advanced 2 points, and German Central Agricultural Bank 7s, Paris-Lyons, Mediterranean 7s, Australian Commonwealth 5s of 1955, Berlin City 6 1-3s, Chile Mortgage Bank 6s and Finland Republic 6½s, all of which closed a point or more higher. Uruguay 6s fell back a point on heavy trading and Haiti Republic 6s dropped 1½ to a new low level for the year. Greek Government 6s and Cordova Province 7s also were conspicuously heavy. International Railways of America 6½s fell 2½ points to a new 1929 low, at 93.

Railroad mortgages were mixed. Strength of International Great Northern 5s and adjustment 6s, Wabash first 5s, Pennsylvania 3½s, Pere Marquette 5s and Missouri Pacific refunding 5s of 1965 was offset by the weakness of Delaware & Hudson 5½s, Grand Trunk Railway 6s, Baltimore & Ohio convertible 4½s, Central Pacific first 4s, Washington Terminal 4s and New Orleans, Texas & Mexico 5½s.

Among the many issues to break into new low ground were Federal Light & Traction 5s, Illinois Bell Telephone 5s, American Natural Gas 6½s, California Petroleum 5s, Consumers Power 5s, Crown Cork & Seal 5s and Cuba Cane Sugar debenture 8s.

United States Government issues were mixed.

WASHINGTON: TUESDAY, APRIL 2, 1929. 15

ROOKIES YIELD TAMPA 2 HITS AS NATS WIN, 7-2; TUTTI FRUTTI CHOICE IN BOWIE INAUGURAL TODAY

31 Are Named For $5,000 Handicap

35 Days of Racing to Be Ushered In by Bowie Meeting.

Winter Campaigners to Vie With Horses Rested on Farms.

THOROUGHBRED racing returns to nearby Washington today with an international flavor.

Bowie's eleven-day meeting presents as the opening-day feature the $5,000 Inaugural Handicap and has attracted a field of 31 of the oustanding horses in training. Tutti Frutti, the Chileanbred 5-year-old which scored a senssational string of victories in Havana and Florida, is generally awarded favoritism distinction, but there is much support for Harry Sinclair's crack Mowlee.

The Inaugural race is the fourth on the program. Post time for the first race will be 2:30 p. m.

For 35 days in Maryland, 11 at Bowie and 12 each at Havre de Grace and Pimlico, followers of the sport of kings will witness the first racing of 2-year-olds, of Preakness and Kentucky Derby candidates and the comeback of old favorites for the usual pot of gold awaiting their owners at the finish.

With hundreds of owners, trainers, jockeys and others already making their headquarters in either Washington or Baltimore, the late influx of visitors for the spring season will make their appearance today.

Winter Campaigners to Vie With Rivals Which Rested.

With four stakes at Bowie and an equal number of greater value at Havre de Grace, the grand climax will come with the renewal of the $50,000 Preakness stakes on May 10 at Pimlico.

Patrons of Bowie and Havre de Grace watch with interest the future greats, if any, among the juveniles and the performances of the 3-year-olds for the season's first big stake at Pimlico.

Several of the big stable's colors will be seen in competition at Bowie, more will be seen at Havre de Grace and practically all will be at Pimlico for the various stakes to be run there.

Horses that raced during the winter will vie with those that were given a rest at the three Maryland meets. It is quite possible that those brought up from New Orleans, Havana and Miami may show to advantage over a route until those wintered at home are farther advanced.

There will be no dearth of racing tools at Bowie if quantity means anything. All of the stalls are filled, and the first card bears out the fact that 91 animals, with 18 on the also eligible list, are ready to strut their stuff. Thirty-one are listed in the $5,000 Inaugural, but possibly half of them will be withdrawn 45 minutes before post time.

Track to Be Fastest in History Unless Rain Interferes.

Provided rain does not interfere with the condition of the track, the going will be the fastest in the history of the Southern Maryland course on the opening day. Horses have been turning in splendid workouts, so well conditioned is the strip.

The $5,000 Inaugural, at 6 furlongs, will not bring out Mrs. Charles Minot Armory's Balko, which was given the top impost of 126 pounds. However, her colors are scheduled to be carried by Night Life and Sun Meddler. The former was highly regarded until the Hughes' Triple Breaks Tie, Winning Game by 4-2 Score.

By GARRETT WATERS.

A THREE-BASE drive by a lad named Eddie Hughes, broke up a tightly-played ball game yesterday between the Catholic University and Drexel Institute nines at the Brookland Stadium. Drexel won, 4 to 2, in the ninth by scoring two runs after the teams had battled eight innings to a tie score.

Two were out when this Hughes, Drexel shortstop, came to bat in the ninth. "Big Bill" Marnie, Drexel pitcher, had just singled to open the way for scoring after the small crowd had but a moment before settled itself to witness an extra-inning battle.

Almost the Naked Truth

By JAMES S. COLLINS

NEW YORK, April 1 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Connie Mack, the man of many sorrows, is adding steadily to his collection. They really began to multiply when the Federal League outlaws invaded his happy family in 1914. No more thorough a wrecking job was ever done than the swift process that reduced the Athletics from a championship aggregation to positively the worst team that ever disgraced a major league diamond. Rather than submit to their salary demands, which were reinforced by threats to jump to the outlaws, Mack disposed of his stars one by one, thinking that he would soon replace them. For seven long, lean years his team languished in the American League cellar while the patient Mack tried out hundreds of players, practically all of whom were duds.

Two years ago he thought the sun was breaking through at last. Simmons, Grove, Cochrane and company looked like potential pennant winners. Jubilant over the outlook, Mack dug down deep and engaged Ty Cobb for $65,000 a year to insure success. But Cobb had seen his best days, and neither he nor Speaker, who also was engaged last year at a big salary, was much help to the Athletics. It was not until they had given way to younger men that the team made its pennant bid last year. They overtook the Yanks, but soon folded up, to the bitter disappointment of their manager.

Disappointed, Dismayed and Disgusted and Why Not?

This spring his differences with Cochrane and Bishop over salaries greatly distressed him. The recent ruling of Commissioner Landis punishing the Athletics was another blow. Mack considered that the action implied that he had been guilty of trickery, and the implication hurt. Then Joe Boley, his shortstop, showed up at training camp with a dead arm. Grove, his pitching ace, was injured. None of his players

Jim Maloney Defendant In $10,000 Assault Suit

Boston, April 1 (United Press).—Jimmy Maloney, South Boston heavyweight title contender, has been named in a $10,000 damage suit, it became known here today when the case went to trial in Superior Court.

Maloney is charged by Charles A. McCarthy, of Dorchester, a truck driver, of striking and knocking him down on January 10, 1927, in an altercation following a slight accident.

In the general denial filed with the court Maloney has denied the charges and declared that McCarthy was mistaken over the identity of his assailant.

Under cross-examination by Joseph P. Walsh, attorney for the defendant, McCarthy admitted he had identified a picture of a man named Frank J. Meany in rogues' gallery as his assailant before securing a warrant against Maloney.

Miss Turpie to Enter British Golf Tourney

New Orleans, April 1 (A.P.).—Marion Turpie, Southern women's golf champion, will compete in the British women's championship to be held in May while she is on a two months' tour of Europe. Her absence from New Orleans will leave undefended the Southern title in the annual tournament to be held here in the same month.

Miss Turpie will sail from New York on the Mauretania April 10.

The British women's championship will be held at St. Andrews, Scotland, home of golf and incidentally the Southern golfer's birthplace.

GALLAGHER'S FOE LASTS 2 MINUTES

Weiner Counted Out After D. C. Boxer's Right to Jaw.

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 1.—Herman Weiner lasted almost two minutes in the main go with Marty Gallagher, of Washington, tonight at the 104th Maryland Regiment Armory.

A right hand that looked as big as a balloon then came floating through the air and made a forced landing on Weiner's jaw, and the local heavyweight went down and out for a count of ten.

The large crowd which had been drawn there by the pulse-drawing advertisements regarding Weiner's "improvement," then suddenly remembered that it was April 1.

While Weiner was on his feet only a short time he really covered a lot of ground, back-pedaling at a rate that caused Gallagher to stop for breath several times as he tired from the chase.

Gallagher Starts After Foe From Opening Bell.

Weiner surely was in great condition, for it must have taken a lot of strength to push himself along the floor as he did while he was "out." He went down near the ropes and slid himself to the center of the ring while Referee Mancuso was counting ten.

Gallagher started right after Herman with the opening bell. The Washington

Belgian Now Heads Parade Of Bunion Derby Devotees

TRENTON, N. J., April 1 (A.P.).—Finishing second in today's 46-mile lap, Jule Cools, of Belgium, took the lead today for the first two laps of the 1929 edition of C. C. Pyle's transcontinental bunion derby. Cools, third yesterday, came in behind Paul Simpson, of Burlington, N. C., today.

Simpson won the 46.4-mile jaunt from Elizabeth to Trenton by a good margin, covering the distance in 6 hours 10 minutes 50 seconds. Cools, finishing today in 6:24:20 beat him out by only a few seconds in the two-day total.

Johnny Salo, Passaic, N. J., policeman, finished third today, outrunning Ed Gardner, dusky Seattle, Wash., pavement pounder, who won the first lap. Gardner came in fourth today nearly 6 minutes behind Salo.

Trenton officials refused to allow Pyle to pitch his tents and stage his show here, so the caravan had to proceed across the Delaware River to Morrisville, Pa., from where they will start.

Louis J. Perella, of Albany, N. Y., was unable to start this morning because of an injured ankle.

Merle A. Trapp, of Atchison, Kans., also dropped out. He was struck by an automobile yesterday. He made a game effort to continue today, running 7 miles and walking 10 more before quitting. The first fifteen finishers today with their elapsed time:

1—Paul Simpson, Burlington, N. C., 8:30:05.

Writ Forces 2 Autos Out Of Pyle Bunion Derby

Trenton, N. J., April 1 (U.P.),—"The Jersey Jinx" fell across C. C. Pyle's path again today and before the promoter could get his transcontinental runners over the State line to Morrisville, Pa., a writ of attachment was served on him and two of his flaming red patrol cars were seized.

Thomas A. Deming, who claims he sold Pyle 1,000 camp chairs for Pyle's Follies, and that he received a check for $800 in payment, had the attachment served on the promoter when the check came back marked "no funds."

Pyle's Jersey troubles began in Elizabeth last night when the police prevented him from staging his sideshow because of the Sunday blue laws.

Andy Payne, Oklahoma boy, who won last year's race, was the driver of one of the cars seized by the police.

Baltimoreans Win 2 Court Titles

St. Peter's Saves 145-lb. Class Crown for Washington.

Capital Champions in 100 and Junior Girls' Classes Beaten.

WASHINGTON won one of the three South Atlantic A. A. U. basket ball championships in last night's intercity play-offs with Baltimore fives staged at the George Washington University gymnasium under the auspices of The Washington Post.

The St. Peter's A. C. Quintet, representing the District, carried off the major honors of the program by winning the 145-pound class title and the individual medals and team trophy. In as thrilling a battle as has ever been staged on the G. W. court, the Reliance Club, of Baltimore, was defeated, 33-22.

Manny Goldfarb's Jewish Community Center 100-pounders were unable to cope with the closing attack of the Jewish Educational Alliance Team, and the Baltimore boys took the game, 21 to 16, and the title by virtue of the victory.

The girls' junior championship went to the Baltimore A. C. Sextet, which outclassed the Hyattsville High girls, representing Washington, by a 28-2 score.

Post's Games Drew One of Largest Tourney Crowds.

The games drew one of the largest crowds of the tournament, and, with a large number of Baltimoreans present, the gymnasium fairly rocked with the cheering.

The remainder of the championship games will be played tonight and tomorrow night in Baltimore at the Fourteen Martyrs Hall, located at Pratt and Mount streets. Tonight the Boys Club Optimists of Washington will seek the 115-pound title in a game with the Jewish Educational Alliance Five, while the Eagles, of Washington, meet the Towson All-Stars, of Baltimore, for the senior girls' championship.

Many Washington fans will make the trip tonight and a larger crowd is expected to follow the United Grays tomorrow night in their game for the unlimited title with the Celtics, of Baltimore.

On the same program, the Curtin Wonders, of Washington, will meet the Susquehannock Tribe, of Baltimore, for the 130-pound honors.

St. Peter's in Victory Over Reliance Five, 33-22.

The St. Peter's Quintet, which has developed into one of the best 145-pound teams since The Post first brought the South Atlantic games here in 1927, was given a much harder fight by the Reliance Club than the final score of 33-22 indicates. The Baltimore boys lived up to their reputation for speed, but were against a more rangy group of opponents.

From the start the game was a thriller. The two officials opened by calling a barrage of fouls that took most of the roughness out of the contest. In the parade to the foul line which

Ken Strong's Homer, 3 On, In 8th, Beats Georgetown

Football Hero's Clout Wins Game for New York U., 12-7.

By JACK ESPEY.

THE Violets that bloom in the spring, tra la, need a fellow like Kenneth Strong to keep them from wilting. Strong rose out of the bunch that spotted the Georgetown diamond yesterday and hit a home run with the bases loaded to give New York University a victory over the Hilltop Nine. The final score was 12 to 7.

Kenneth Strong, as you probably have heard, was the big end run and touchdown man for the Violets last fall on the gridiron. Preceding his visit here yesterday with the New York collegians came reports that he was considerable baseball player. The world's champion Yankees, according to rumor, had sought him.

Strong proved himself all the ball player he was said to be, to the satisfaction of the 1,000 fans and his pretty wife who sat in the stands with their eyes glued on his every action. Mrs. Strong, who became Mrs. Strong a few months ago following Kenneth's colorful feats of the football season, came down from Manhattan last Sunday to join him on the return trip from the South of his team.

Mrs. Strong Gets Baseball Bee As Husband Swats Homer.

Mrs. Strong, like quite a few ladies, might not know what baseball is all about, but she certainly got a partial initiation yesterday from viewing what her heroic husband accomplished.

As said before, had it not been for Strong the Violets probably would have faded. He revived them without the aid of water just as the nigh-blazing sun started slipping down below the western horizon.

It was in the eighth inning and New York U. was trailing by one run, the score being 6 to 5. There was one out and every base was bedecked with Purple at the time. Strong then put all of his 200 pounds into a swing and clouted the ball far over Duplin's head in left field. So far did the ball travel that before Duplin had recovered it, the Violet man of the hour was nearing third base. He thundered into home behind his three teammates fully three seconds before the sphere had been returned to the infield.

Former Big Leaguers Watch Ken in Hero Performance.

That, of course, was the climax of Strong's day and the turning point in the game which previously had ap-

Cubs Again Subdue Tigers; Braves Win on Sisler's Clout

BEAUMONT, Tex., April 1 (U.P.).—The Chicago Cubs again proved poison to the Detroit Tigers here today, defeating the American Leaguers, 6 to 1. It was the seventh Cub victory over the Tigers in eight games.

Malone, who pitched the first six innings for Chicago, allowed two hits. Root was hit twice in the last three frames. When the Tigers scored their lone tally on two passes in the fifth inning, it marked the first time the Cubs had been scored on in 23 innings.

The two teams will meet again tomorrow and Wednesday.

Park Unsafe, Jack Hendricks Cancels Reds' Contest.

Macon, Ga., April 1 (U.P.),—Jack Hendricks, manager of the Cincinnati Reds, canceled today's exhibition game with the Macon Club of the Sally League because he thought the ball park, under construction here, was not a safe place in which to let a major league club perform. The Reds caught an early afternoon train for Atlanta and will practice there tomorrow.

Kearns Laying Plans For 45-Round Battle

Albuquerque, N. Mex., April 1 (U.P.).—Jack Kearns, manager of Mickey Walker, stopped here long enough today to announce that preliminary arrangements have been concluded for a finish fight between Walker and Tommy Loughran for the light-heavyweight championship of the world.

Kearns, bound for California, said Loughran would receive $100,000 for his share of the proceeds. He said the fight would be held May 29 at Agua Calientes, Mexico, and the official agreement would call for 45 rounds of boxing.

As no 45-round championship bout has been fought since Battling Nelson and Ad Wolgast clashed in 1910, newspaper men questioned Kearns about the length of the bout.

"It will be a great drawing card," said Kearns. "It has been so long since the public has had a chance to see a finish fight the fans should flock to Mexico for it."

Kearns said he would conclude final arrangements during his stay on the Pacific Coast.

Talent Shown By Campbell And Liska

Hold Minor Leaguers Scoreless After First Inning.

Campbell Aids in Run-Making With Homer, 2 on, in Second.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

TAMPA, Fla., April 1.—In one of the best played games of the Nationals' "Grapefruit League" season, the Washington Club this afternoon rang up its twelfth victory in fifteen starts by downing the Tampa Southeastern Leaguers, 7 to 2. Tampa's Smokers could not solve the offerings of Alex Campbell and Adolph Liska and were held to two hits. Oddly enough, they netted as many runs, while the Nats were also credited with a tally for each of their seven safe blows.

Campbell granted a single to Brady and a triple to Smith, the first two Smokers up in the opening round, and thereafter the home team was retired almost in rapid succession. After McDonald's helpful out had scored Smith with Tampa's second run, none of the Smokers saw base life until two were gone in the ninth. Then Liska hit one and walked one, but both were left.

Lead of First Two Rounds Assures Win for Nats.

The Nationals did not exactly run wild at the expense of the Smoker flingers, "Chief" Sackett and Gus Andrews, although the result was never in doubt after the second round. In the opening session the Nats scored twice as a result of Harris' safe bunt, Myer's single, two sacrifice flies and Bluege's one-baser.

In the second, two bases on balls, a sacrifice fly and Campbell's homer to left put the Nats 3 up, and they simply coasted in. The next five frames were uneventful ones, but the Nats added one run each in the eighth and ninth. Stewart doubled in round eight, took third on Andrews' bad peg to pick him off second and registered after Smith took Barnes' long fly. The tally in the fifth session was molded from a walk to Tate and Liska's long triple.

Myer accounted for two of the Washington hits with Joe Cronin, Stuffy Stewart and Smith furnishing the field-

There are several entries, and among them one furnished by Harry Payne Whitney. The Whitney juveniles always have a large following in the spring racing in Maryland.

The third race is framed for the 3-year-olds and the stock of Preakness and Derby candidates is mediocre.

No change has been made in the official track family, but James F. O'Hara, general manager, owing to illness, will be prevented from attending for the second time in the sixteen years of the existence of the youngest racing association in Maryland.

Markle Upholds Verdict Clearing D. C. Courtmen

Marvin H. Markle, chairman of the South Atlantic A. A. U. registration committee, yesterday upheld the decision of Commissioner Ernest J. Spitzer in refusing to suspend Alfred Macdonald, William Banta and "Dutch" Krumm, members of the United Typewriter Grays Team, whose eligibility to compete in the Washington series of the South Atlantic championship basket ball tournament was protested by the Potomac Boat Club. The trio were charged by the Potomac Boat Club as being professionals or having competed against professionals.

Markle stated that even had the charges been proven Spitzer's decision was justifid. Spitzer ruled that the protested players had not wilfully violatd the amateur rules in entering the series and that they were due leniency. He said that he wished best to serve the interests of amateur athletics in Washington and that in permitting the players to continue in the series he believed he would be furthering those interests.

COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

By BERT S. COLLYER

TUTTI FRUTTI.

Looks like the chewing gum horse is going to mop in the Inaugural Handicap at the Bowie course. Being personally on the ground, I have seen all the 31 eligibles go through their preliminary paces and know their exact condition.

Reeling off 3 furlongs in 0:22 2-5; 0:35 1-5; 0:47 2-5 and 1:15 2-5. This trial was most sensational. Take SOLACE and FALSE PRIDE for what is left.

"Baby" racers perform in the opener. ROUGE KNIGHT, coupled with WILD APPLE, should bring home the kale. SWATTER is dangerous, having worked a half-mile in 0:49 2-5. In this connection I beg to advise the H. P. Whitney juveniles here are not worth a thin dime, while the E. B. McLean racers are as sharp as a tack. Elmer Trueman's horses are also razor sharp.

SUN ALTOS is tuned to concert pitch and will be hard to beat in the second spasm. FRIEDJOF NANSEN and PIGEON WING II have been working well, and are the chief contenders.

In the third heat, STAND BY will take the track when ready and show his field the shortest way home.

SUNNY SAINT is the sleeper to be dragged from the old pickle vat in the fifth. Just run over to the favorite corner store and have the two meggs riding right slam bang on the old beezer. This maverick is ready to run over the moon.

GEORGE DE MAR has been burning up the track since arriving from New Orleans. He is meeting a sharp hide in DOCTOR RANKIN in the sixth, but I think he will trim him.

For the closing dash TAZEWELL is the one the others will have to catch. He has had the old chicken "prep," and also likes the local course. Ye' wekkum.

peared to be won by Georgetown. But throughout Strong's work was showy with the big fellow doing everything in approved style.

Among those whom he impressed were Buck Herzog and Arthur Devlin, famous stars of the New York Giants of other years, and G. Harris "Doc" White, the old White Sox southpaw, who unexpectedly reunited yesterday. White umpired behind the plate, Joe Engel, Washington Nationals scout, also was a spectator.

In the first inning, Strong drove in the Violets' first run with a stinging single to center. In the third, he whipped out a Georgetown runner at the plate from his station in center field, and he handled all but one of his putout chances perfectly with one exception despite the obstacles presented by a gale-like wind.

Poole Proves Master When Things Looked Serious.

Harold Poole, the Georgetown pitcher, had matters well in command until the eighth. His mates had given him fine support and he had pulled out of three ugly looking situations with little harm done.

Georgetown tied the score at 1-1 in its half of the opening round when Leary scored on Scalzi's sacrifice fly. Wholey placed Georgetown one up in the second, making a round trip on a hard single which Kastner let slip through in left field.

Dunn, who was Georgetown's leader on attack and defense, made the first of his two doubles of the fray to open the third. Scalzi singled him home. This blow finished Hecht, the Violet starting pitcher. Buckley supplanted Hecht and walked Duplin, the first to face him Scalzi then stole third and registered on Bozek's Texas leaguer.

There was no more scoring until the sixth when Kelson walked and completed the circuit on singles by Bergen and Buckley. Georgetown came back in its half to count twice again, Donovan and McCarty scoring with the aid of a walk, a sacrifice and two errors.

New York U. put over two runs in the eighth before Strong hit his decisive wallop. The final Georgetown tally was made also in this frame, Dunn doubling home Malone who ran for Poole after the latter's single.

Three unnecessary N. Y. U. runs were scored off Edmonston who replaced Poole in the ninth.

DREXEL RALLY IN 9TH DEFEATS CATHOLIC U.

had twirled excellently throughout for his team, let fly a pitch and Hughes connected solidly and sent a three-base hit screaming into left field to decide the game. Kilpatrick, running for Marnie in the meantime, scored easily before the ball reached the infield. To clinch matters, Robinson singled Hughes over with the second run of the inning, with a liner off of Mansfield's glove.

C. U. Takes Early Lead; Drexel Comes Back.

Catholic U. scored early to take the lead in the first inning. Walsh and Brennon singled in succession and advanced when Giofree laid down a perfect bunt. Walsh counted when Marnie unloosened a wild pitch. After Drexel registered twice in the second inning, the Cardinals tied it up with a marker in the third. Brennen led off with a ponderous triple to left and scored a moment later on a single by Giofree. These offensive measures were the only ones of any consequence by the Cardinals until the seventh, when they crowded the bases with only one out. A double play on an attempted squeeze play checked this rally.

Marnie's pitching played a large part in Drexel's victory. "Big Bill," was forced to work throughout with a sprained foot and came through with flying colors. By agreement, each time he got on base by a hit, a runner was allowed to burn the paths for him. Snyder substituted for him in the seventh and Kilpatrick in the ninth. The latter scored on Hughes' three base hit.

Jack Conlin hurled very impressively for Catholic U. until the ninth. He walked only one batter, struck out three and was exceptionally tight when men were on the bases. Marnie fanned nine and walked two.

H. A. Mihills Is Elected Indian Spring Club Head

Members of the Indian Spring Golf Club met last night in annual meeting and elected officers for the ensuing year as follows:

President, Herbert A. Mihills; vice president, John S. Blick; secretary, W. H. McReynolds; treasurer, James Hill, jr.; members of the board of governors for three years, George F. Foley, W. D. Lockwood, George W. McCarter, F. T. Mitchell, Fred T. Walen; for one year, C. Chester Caywood.

A proposition to amend the constitution of the club so as to give to the board of governors the power to elect the officers was overwhelmingly defeated. There was considerable discussion concerning proposed plans for remodeling or enlarging the clubhouse but the matter was referred to a committee of five to be appointed by the president and to report at a meeting to be held in the near future.

MARYLAND U. WINNER AT LACROSSE

New York U. Beaten, 10-1, in Debut of Old Line Twelve.

UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND'S lacross team opened its season with an easy win, 10 to 1, over New York University Stickmen yesterday at College Park.

For a little more than fifteen minutes of the first half the Violet offered the Old Liners stern opposition, but then Maryland got the range of the enemy goal and quickly swept to a commanding lead, which it maintained

Experience of the Maryland twelve was a big factor in its victory. In the Old Line starting combination were eight players who held forth with the championship team of a season ago when Maryland was ranked at the top along with Johns Hopkins, Navy and Rutgers. On the other hand, New York University took the field with a line-up that contained eight freshmen.

Roberts Scores First Goal After 7 Minutes of Play.

Holloway, with three goals, and Smink and Evans, with two apiece, were the aces of the Old Line attack. Degan, out home, counted the Violet's lone goal. Lichtman, 250-pound goalie, also played well for the visitors, stopping many Old Line goal thrusts.

It was Augie Roberts who scored Maryland's first goal after seven minutes of play around the New York net. Roberts, on the edge of the crease, received a pass from Evans and slammed the ball into the net. The Violets promptly tied the score when Degan got loose and shot the ball into the basket on a 10-yard heave. Maryland, at the intermission, was in the van, 4 to 1.

In the final half it was all Maryland.

Capital Youths Nucleus Of Old Line Cubs' Nine

The University of Maryland's Freshmen Baseball Team will open its season next Monday against Business High at College Park with hardly any preparation, as most of the members of the squad have been indulging in spring football practice.

Washington boys, as is as rule, will play a big part in the Maryland line-up. Bob Wilson, formerly of Western, is slated to catch; Charlie May, ex-Business athlete, is to hold down first; Bozey Berger, Tech product, will be on third, while Ralph Sterling, catcher, and Bill Luney and Bob Fuchs, all from Western, will see reserve duty.

Shorty Chalmers, who came from Tome, is due to perform at short; Tom Schleigh, from Hagerstown, is the leading keystone aspirant; while Buck Miller, from Baltimore City College; Norman Cronin, from Charlotte Hall Academy, and Ed Ronkin, from Bayonne, N. J., are expected to comprise the outfield.

Arthur Hauver, of Middletown, Md., is the most promising hurler, with Russell Krout, of Cockeysville, Md., and John Roth, of College Park, as good prospects.

It is pitching that offers a problem for Coach Bunt Watkins.

Cleveland Wins Title In Pro Court League

Fort Wayne, Ind., April 1 (A.P.).—The Cleveland Rosenblums won the world's professional basket ball championship here tonight, defeating the Fort Wayne Hoosiers, 30 to 22. The title was won by the Cleveland team with four straight victories, the first two at Cleveland and the last two at Fort Wayne.

entry showed better and faster punching than on his previous visits here.

He had trouble catching Weiner, who showed a burst of speed in reverse from the beginning, but did manage to land a couple of light lefts. This added to Weiner's speed until he backed into the ropes and was stopped momentarily. The District heavy then let fly with his right and Weiner lost interest in the proceedings as he went to the floor, under the ropes.

In the six-round semifinal, Eddie Bowling, of Washington, was awarded the decision over Buck Zebline.

NATS RATE TEAM BETTER THAN IN PENNANT YEARS

Flag Chances Of Club Held Bright

Optimism Is Based on Improvement in All Departments.

Yankees and Athletics Figured Weaker Than in 1928.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

TAMPA, Fla., April 1.—While none of the Nationals has been bold enough to proclaim publicly a 1929 American League pennant triumph, the bees are buzzing around the bonnets of several and this is no April fool joke, either. Neither Manager Walter Johnson nor any of his men are willing to be quoted to this effect, but several have told the writer confidentially that they believe the team has a good chance of winning.

Of course, in an eight-horse race, it is difficult to pick a winner without knowing the strength of the other seven entrants, but based on conditions which obtained at the close of last season's race and what has been heard about the way the other clubs are shaping up, practically all of the Nationals feel that they must be reckoned with seriously.

Their optimism is based on several things among them being the fact that every department including utility, looks good, the fine condition of every man as compared with last year's poor start, the apparent return to throwing form of Goose Goslin, and a favorable comparison of this year's team with the pennant winning ones of 1924 and 1925.

Players Believe Team Better Than Championship Club of 1924.

As the players see things, two of the most important handicaps of 1928 already have been eliminated. Every member of the squad is now in tip-top condition and will be ready to start at top speed. Last year, it will be remembered, Harris' team dropped out of contention during the first month because it was not properly trained. Regarding Goslin's arm, his injury cost the team any number of games, but he is beginning to peg in his old time, style and will not be defensive deadwood this season.

A man-for-man comparison of the world's champions of 1924 with the present aggregation gives the latter the edge, the players believe. The infield as it has been workin,' this spring looks to be the best the Nationals ever had, as it has an air-tight defense, a batting punch and plenty of speed. Experts here are rating Bluege as a better all-round short stop than was Peckinpaugh and believe that Myer and Hayes, both brilliant fielders, add more punch than Peckinpaugh and Harris had, with Buddie's base stealing ability and speed an added quantity.

Catching Staff and Outfield Looms as Best in Years.

Ruel, Tate and Spencer give the Nats a better balanced catching staff than they had in their pennant years, while Sam West and Emile Barnes are rated better than Early McNeeley and Sam Rice. Goslin, who was with the 1924 outfit, is regarded as a better fielder than he was five years ago, while just as good a hitter. McNeeley was a good fielder, but West looks to be a better one, while he also is a harder hitter and a great thrower. Rice appears to be just about as good as he ever was, but, as Barnes is getting the call, Manager Johnson must rate the redhead as Sam's superior.

Fred Marberry, relieving veteran pitchers almost daily, represented the Nats' mound strength in their halycon days, and the players dope the present staff much the better. Marberry is on it as a regular starter, with Jones, Braxton, Hadley and Liska completing a big five which shows promise. Campbell, Burke and Brown loom as likely relief men, who will only start in emergencies.

Yankees and Macks Figured Not as Strong as in 1928.

In the other features which figured in the victories of 1924 and 1925, spirit and morale, Johnson's team has both and in large quantities. And it has coasted through the Grapefruit League season, outclassing all comers and the athletes not only think they're good but frankly admit it.

The dope indicates that the Yankees and Athletics will be the teams that the Nats have to beat and, judging from reports from the camps of these teams and their showings in exhibition games, Washington players figure that neither Huggins nor Mack will have as strong clubs this season as they had last.

Of coure, this dope may be "all wet" but that's the Nats' story and they are sticking to it.

The Tampa Smokers will be met again here tomorrow afternoon and in the evening the Regulars will board a rattler for Daytona Beach for a "Walter Johnson Day" contest there with the Montreal Royals. Johnson, with Catcher Roy Spencer, will motor there tomorrow, leaving Clyde Milan in charge of the team here. Garland Braxton and Ferd Marberry will be used against the International Leaguers Wednesday. The flingers to be used here tomorrow and Wednesday have not yet been named as the Nats are not taking these contests seriously.

CAMPBELL AND LISKA ALLOW ONLY 2 HITS

ing high lights, Cronin at second, went over toward short for a brilliant stop and underhand throw, while falling, while Stewart at third, ended the game with a brilliant one-hand catch and throw. Smith robbed the Nats of three hits with as many spectacular catches.

Joe Cronin's Appearance at Second Unexplained.

Although Manager Johnson declined to give any reason for using Joe Cronin at second base today, intimating that he merely wanted to give Hayes a rest, nevertheless it is more than likely that he wants to get a line on how well the young shortstop can perform at this seek, as Stewart the regular second base understudy, was available and anxious to play.

Cronin has been hitting the ball so hard and timely that his work has been attracting general attention here. At the beginning of the season, there was a rumor that Bluege might be shifted to the middle cushion to make room for Cronin at short. Johnson denied this in view of Bluege's fine work in the territory between second and third, but today's move indicated that the Nat's leader may be considering giving Cronin a chance at second in case Hayes' stick work does not improve.

Umpire Van Graffan handled today's game alone and did a good job. It has been a long time since big leaguers have seen games handled by the arbiter from behind the pitcher when men were on the bases.

Glenn Wright Holding Key To Success of Robins With No Pennants Being Claimed

Brooklyn is depending on these four players to help keep the hapless Dodgers from the yawning depths of the National League. Outfielder Herman and First Baseman Bissonette, 1928 holdovers, and Outfielder Rosenfeld, a rookie, are supplying most of the team's punch.

By MURRAY TYNAN
(Baseball Expert New York Herald Tribune).

CLEARWATER, Fla., April 1.—As usual, there are a number of "ifs" which must be eliminated before Wilbert Robinson and his Robins from Brooklyn can figure themselves as a possibility in the National League pennant race. Every club, of course, has similar troubles along these lines, but this year it seems as though the Robins have more than their share.

First of all Glenn Wright, star shortstop of the Pirates who was traded to Brooklyn for Jess Petty during the winter, must show that he is able to play ball before the Robins can lay claim to anything save a berth in the cellar. If Wright can play, the Brooklyn prospects will be brighter than they have been in years, but if the sore arm which has bothered him now fails to respond fully to treatment, all may be lost.

Wright, a good fielder and a great hitter especially in the pinch, ran into a wall while playing handball last November. He injured his shoulder so badly that as yet he has been unable to throw a ball with all his old time speed and skill. Bonesetters have been working feverishly on him, and by the time the season opens they may have him in shape. It is Uncle Robbie's fervent wish that they will not fail in their task.

Best Attack Since 1924 Seen With Wright in Line-Up.

With Wright in the game the Robins will have their strongest attack since 1924, the year they finished second. Which in itself will be something of a novelty for Brooklyn fans, for the past few years their team has boasted of one of the best pitching staffs in the game, but had nothing with which to back up the grand hurling.

Dazzy Vance, considered by many the greatest pitcher in the game today, naturally is the ace of the team. He will be aided by Douglas McWeeny, a good right-hander who has been improving for the past two years. William Watson Clark and Big Jim Elliott, two left-handers of more than passing ability, will also be starters. Win Ballou, former American Leaguer, seems to be the most promising man in the rest of the crowd, which is made up of Ray Moss, Lou Koupal, Rube Ehrhardt, the Marberry of the National League, Jim Richardson and Clise Dudley, two newcomers.

Catching and Pitching Worries Of Robinson Are Few.

It isn't a great pitching staff on paper but it has possibilities. With a much weaker team last year Vance won 22 games, a remarkable performance. McWeeny, Elliott and Clark should have better years, and Ballou has shown much promise. If Wyn pitches up to the games he worked in spring training, Robbie will have no pitching worries.

The catching staff, made up of Hank DeBerry, "Butch" Henline and Johnny DeBerry, is reasonably good. DeBerry, Gooch, is reasonably good. DeBerry, Vance's battery mate, is a smart backstop, whose specialty is handling young pitchers. Henline and Gooch are not the best catchers in the game, not by a long shot, but they can hit.

If Wright plays, the Robins will have a strong infield. Del Bissonette, on first, is a good fielder and a slugger of some note. Jake Flowers lets few get past him at second, and also can hit well. Wright's ability is known. Wally Gilbert at third base is a beautiful fielder, but has yet to show that he can hit major league pitching. If Wright is unable to play Dave Bancroft will fill in at short, which will not weaken the defense, but will take a lot away from the attack.

Center Field Berth Open With Sluggers in Other Posts.

The Brooklyn outfield is fairly strong. Rube Bressler in left is a veteran who can catch flies and hit. Babe Herman, in right, is a poor fielder, but one of the best hitters in the game. Center field is wide open, and Johnny Frederick, Memphis rookie, and Nick Cullop, formerly of the Yanks, Indians and Nats, seem to have the inside track.

As we remarked at the start, if everything clicks on this Brooklyn Ball Club, it will make a lot of trouble for some one. But if Wright, or Vance, or one of the outfielders fails to come through with a good year, then all the trouble will be piled up on the Brooklyn doorstep. Uncle Robbie is not claiming any pennant this year.

Dallas, Tex., April 1 (U.P.).—The Chicago White Sox recuperated today from the severe drubbing handed them Sunday by the New York Giants by taking a long workout. SCHOOL GOLF STARS MEET FOR TITLE

High School Players to Play Thursday at East Potomac.

THE budding golf stars of Washington's Public High Schools will tee off at 9 o'clock Thursday morning at East Potomac links in quest of the individual schoolboy championship. More than a dozen of the most promising golfers to be found in scholastic ranks have entered the event. Low score for 36 holes of medal play will determine the champion.

While Robert Hurd, winner of the 1928 title is unable to defend his title, a number of entrants seem qualified to succeed him. Hurd is now prepping for entrance to the Naval Academy and is not eligible to compete. All entrants must be eligible scholastically to compete for the title.

J. Monro Hunter, Jr., to Compete for Central.

Among the chief contestants to succeed Hurd is J. Munro Hunter, jr., son of the Indian Spring pro, who will represent Central. F. Horton is another of Central's leading competitors. Edwin Burr looks like the most formidable contender entered from Tech, while Tommy Wells and Don Wren are considered Western's strongest contenders.

The individual championship will mark the opening of the high school golf season. The team championship series is scheduled to open April 13. A complete schedule for the series will be announced later this week.

Three College Baseball Games Here Tomorrow

Today is the only off-day on the week's program for local college baseball teams. Activity will be resumed tomorrow with three games being played.

Maryland and Gallaudet nines will inaugurate their campaigns tomorrow, the former entertaining the University of Pennsylvania at College Park and the latter acting as host to Sid Lodge's Maryland All-Stars from Poolesville, Md., at Kendall Green. Morton Wilner, formerly of Central High School, will captain the Pennsylvania nine and will play second base.

Tomorrow will bring Georgetown the first of four games in as many days. Boston College, an old athletic rival of the Hilltop, will be the opponent. Following in order on the next three days, the Blue and Gray will meet Princeton, Cornell and Holy Cross.

Catholic University will play Boston College Friday and Vermont on Saturday. Vermont clashes with Maryland Thursday. Cornell will meet the College Park nine Friday.

Departmental Golfers Name R. S. Collins Head

At the annual meeting of the Inter-Departmental Golf League last night, held in the board room of the Interstate Commerce Commission, Randolph S. Collins, of the Department of Justice, was elected president to succeed Homer S. Pope, who declined reelection. M. A. Shipley, Department of State, was chosen vice president, and Ralph A. Shepard, Treasury Department, who has served for two years as secretary, was unanimously reelected to that position. John T. Harris, War Department, was retained as treasurer.

It was decided to hold the annual tournament for the Mellon trophy on the first or second Monday in June on a course to be selected and reports from the representatives of the various departments present at the meeting indicated that at least 40 teams will participate in the competition. The naming of the course and other details were left to the decision of the executive committee.

Florida U. Nine Will Meet Boston Braves

Gainesville, Fla., April 1.—Florida University turns her thoughts in a baseball way to the visit of the Boston Braves to the campus tomorrow. The clash with the Braves, however, is but the start of a busy week for the proteges of Coach Joe Bedenk. Georgia Tech's hard hitting nine will be in Gatorland Friday and Saturday to open the conference season at home for the Orange and Blue.

followed the intercity rivals broke even, each club making good on five tries. The game was almost ten minutes old before J. Kane made the first field goal. From that point on St. Peter's was in the lead. At the half the score stood 18-10.

St. Peter's defense tightened with the opening of the second half and the ultimate champions drew away to a 24-11 score with ten minutes remaining to play. Both teams began losing players on personal fouls at this stage.

Hickey and Cohn, Centers, Out on Personal Fouls.

Hickey and Cohn, rival centers, were first to go, and when Silver and Lerner, of the Reliance Team, had had their allotment of fouls, the Baltimore club was left with four players.

However, St. Peter's had put the game beyond reach of their rivals before that time. The Reliances made their threat with four minutes to go, pulling up to within three points of the Saints, 24-21. A field goal from the middle of the floor by McVean and another neat pot shot by J. Kane, halted the Baltimore rally and clinched the game.

It would be unfair to the St. Peter's players to pick out a star. The Kane brothers, McVean, Hickey, Schlegel, Robey and McQuillan played their best basket ball and St. Peter's was rewarded with a championship after two other tries in The Post's tournaments.

Cohn, the Baltimore center, and Silver, a fast forward, were the outstanding players for the Reliance Five.

Baltimore J. E. A. Team Takes 100-Pound Title.

The Jewish Educational Alliance Quintet of Baltimore, won the 100-pound championship when it defeated the Jewish Community Center Five. The final score was 21 to 16.

The game was closely contested throughout. In the first quarter the Baltimoreans collected a 5 to 1 advantage, but this was held only momentarily as the J. C. C.'s narrowed the margin to 9 to 6 by half time.

Midway in the third quarter the J. C. C.'s trailed only 12 to 11, but at the whistle the Baltimoreans had a lead of 15 to 11. Good work by Goldsher and Satisky enabled the visitors to clinch the game in the final quarter.

Lewis was the best performer for the J. C. C.'s. Lewis counted twice from the floor and twice from the foul line for 6 points.

Hyattsville Girls No Match For Baltimore A. C.

The local aspirants for the girls' junior South Atlantic title, Hyattsville High School, were no match for the smooth-working Baltimore A. C. sextet, which scored a 28-to-2 triumph. The Monumental City tossers played a clean, fast game, having but three fouls called on them throughout the contest, while a total of 28 were charged to the vanquished six.

Fortunately for the Hyattsville girls, who were attempting in the late minutes of the game to keep the score as low as possible, the visitors were not overaccurate from the free toss line, converting but seven of their foul shot efforts into scores.

The Baltimore lassies did not get going at top speed until the second quarter, the first eight minutes of play ending 3 to 2 in favor of the visitors. In the second period, Eva Magdurakos, stellar forward, found the basket and began an assault on the rung that netted her 9 points before the final whistle.

At half time the score stood 11 to 2, and at the three-quarter mark the winners had picked up 6 more points. The final period found the Baltimore combination playing its best passing game, with Miss Kral leading the scorers with 10 points for the period.

75 CARD WINS MEDAL FOR COLLETT

National Champion Is Far Best of North-South Field.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 1 (A.P.).—Glenna Collett, national woman's champion, whose golf this winter has been just so-so, snapped back into form today to win the qualifying round of the North and South woman's tournament here.

The Providence girl showed a pair of slippered heels to one of the largest and classiest fields the event has ever attracted by traveling around the rugged championship course in 35-40—75 for the eighteen holes.

All of the favorites made the first division. Miss Martha Parker, of New York, medalist in the mid-South event at Southern Pines last week, was runner-up to Miss Collett with a 42-40—82, seven strokes behind the champion.

Defending Champion Shares Third Place With Trio.

Mrs. C. S. Hill, of Kansas City, defending champion, finished in a four-cornered tie for third place with Miss Louise Fordyce, of Youngstown, Ohio; Miss Marion Turpie, of New Orleans, Southern titleholder, and Miss Virginia Van Wie, of Chicago, mid-South winner. Each of this quartet polled an 84.

Two strokes behind them, with 86, came Miss Maureen Orcutt, of Englewood, N. J., and trailing in order were Helen Hicks, of Long Island, sensation of the winter tournaments in Florida, with an 87; Virginia Holzderber, of Baltimore, 88; Edith Quier, Reading, Pa., 89, and Virginia Wilson, trim little Chicago girl, who turned in a 91.

Pairings for the first round tomorrow follow:

Miss Collett vs. Miss Holzderber.
Miss Hicks vs. Mrs. Baker.
Miss Wattles vs. Miss Fordyce.
Miss Quier vs. Mrs. Hill.
Miss Wilson vs. Miss Parker.
Mrs. Jones vs. Miss Van Wie.
Mrs. Chapman vs. Miss Orcutt.
Miss Turpie vs. Mrs. Barlow.

The largest gallery of the day watched Miss Collett hang up what is believed to be a record for women on the No. 2 course by negotiating the first nine holes in 35, or one under par.

Capital Amateurs Bid For Ring Titles Today

Between fifteen and twenty Washington boxers are expected to enter the first rounds of bouts of the South Atlantic A. A. U. boxing championships tonight in the 104th Medical Regiment Armory, in Baltimore. Strong teams have been entered by the City Club and the Jewish Community Center, while several other individuals will represent the Capital.

Baltimore's Y. M. C. A. Team of State champions has been picked to figure prominently, but local fans confidently expect a goodly portion of the honors to be returned by home-town battlers.

Of the Washington contingent those whose past performances stamp them formidable contenders for the championships are Mike Tardugno, Jewish Community Center, featherweight; Jocko Miller, J. C. C., and Al Satryb, City Club, lightweights, and Bob Simon, J. C. C., and Kenneth Bryan, City Club, middleweights.

Titles in eight weight divisions will be contested. None of the 1928 champions are returning. The new champions will be sent by the South Atlantic Association to the national senior A. A. U. bouts in Boston on April 8, 9 and 10.

Shift of High School Series To Eastern Field Popular

Rightfielders No Longer Assistant Second Basemen; Eastern and Central Menace to Tech's Reign on Track.

By MIKE KELLEY.
(Eastern High School Coach.)

THE decision of the faculty advisors to make the Eastern Stadium the scene of the interhigh baseball series this season was a welcome one to all the local diamond squads as well as to followers of the schoolboys from outside the schools, since all concerned feel that the new grounds will help to take away the element of chance that existed at Central by reason of the extremely short right field there.

The same field at Eastern, while not affording complete freedom from short hits to that sector, requires a hefty clout to clear its barrier and makes of the right-fielder more than an assistant second baseman, such as he was in the Central stadium when he regularly retired men on first who had hit cleanly to right field.

Tech, Central and Eastern Track Squads Busy.

This shifting of the series to Eastern certainly makes the Capitol Hill enclosure a busy spot this season. In addition to its own baseball and track squads that are working out daily, the school is acting as host to the Tech track squad and to the Maryland cinder path aspirants, thus giving the field the look of a busy college layout with about 200 athletes in training. Tech will probably have the use of its new stadium by next year, while Maryland's squad has been forced to train here because of renovations in the Byrd Stadium that necessitated tearing up the cinder track.

Track squads of Tech, Central and Eastern are down to serious training these days in preparation for the outdoor season that begins the week following the Easter recess. Tech is due for a dual meet with Episcopal at Alexandria on Thursday, April 11, while Eastern gets its first taste of competition the preceding day, engaging the freshman squad of Maryland at the Eastern field. Central's first appearance will be in the Devitt games on April 20 at Georgetown and this meet will no doubt draw a full entry list from these three schools.

While it is a trifle early to figure the annual interscholastic meet this year Tech's five-year supremacy in this sport may be overcome by either Central or Eastern. Should Tech's points in the dashes and quarter be cut into by Central or Eastern, toppling the Manual Trainers from their track glory would not be impossible this year.

However, finding any boys capable of taking Fountain or Edwards in the dashes remains a task that isn't an easy one by any means, but preventing a total cleanup by Tech in these events would go a long way toward making the competition in this year's meet the closest in a long while between the three schools.

With baseball and track booming after the holidays, as well as tennis and golf it won't be very long now before the doings of the local school boys in athletics are occupying their accustomed places on the sport pages.

Marine Nine Scores Shutout Over Vermont

Special to The Washington Post.

Quantico, Va., April 1.—The Marine Baseball Team defeated the University of Vermont in the opening of their two-game series on the Parade Ground this afternoon, 3 to 0. Kidd was sent to the slab for the Devil Dogs and pitched a great game of ball despite the unfavorable weather conditions and the howling wind that blew all afternoon. The star Devil Dog hurler started right in where he left off last season for the Marines and turned the Vermonters back with three scattered hits and struck out twelve batters. At all times he had the situation well in hand and Vermont never had a man to reach the second sack.

Levy, as usual, shone in his only two chances at short, and Gatewood contributed a wonderful diving catch in left field in the eighth inning that shut off a Vermont hit and a possible chance for a rally. Almond, the Marine new first sacker drove in the first two runs for the Sea Soldiers and, all in all, played a good game at the first sack. Gorman, with three hits out of four times up led the Marine attack all through the afternoon.

Vermont played a good steady game and fielded well and shut off many promising Marine rallies. Kendrick pitched a good steady game and Traynor at second played a beautiful game of ball in the field accepting several difficult chances.

NO SENTIMENT For Bunioneers IN JERSEY

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.
Special to The Washington Post.

TRENTON, N. J., April 1.—The limping bunioneers of C. C. Pyle's transcontinental footrace, the dancing girls of C. C. Pyle's cross-country follies and Mr. C. C. Pyle himself, halted on the Pennsylvania bank of the Delaware River this evening about the spot where George Washington once shoved off through the floe ice for a surprise visit to Trenton. Mr. Pyle and his company also had found the State of New Jersey most inhospitable, and the resilient genius of the goofy pilgrimage stated that if he ever found himself in Trenton again the surprise would be on him, not Trenton.

The Pennsylvania shore was the end of the second stage of the second bunion derby, which started from Columbus Circle, New York, on Easter Sunday afternoon, amid confusion that seemed appropriate to the mental state of those who go in for bunioneering. Elizabeth, N. J., had been the first stop, and they had all set off this morning on a 46-mile route to the farther outskirts of Trenton, which proved to be a way of sorrow and trial.

Town Officials Insensible to Artistic Appeal of Race.

The officials of the municipalities along the line of march had shown themselves to be completely insensible to the athletic and artistic appeal of Mr. Pyle's runners and of his dancing debutantes from refined home surroundings. He had wished to give a performance in Elizabeth on Sunday evening, but had been restrained by the chief of police, who even forbade Mr. Pyle's gentlemanly agents to pass among the citizens selling handsomely illustrated programs for the nominal price of 25 cents per copy.

Mr. Pyle claimed discrimination, pointing out that the saloons of Elizabeth were open on Sunday, but the chief of police only implied that if Mr. Pyle wished to open a saloon he might do so upon presentation of the customary petition signed by the required number of property holders.

Bunioneers in All Tints of Lingerie Drenched by Pitiless Rain.

Consequently, Mr. Pyle's gross receipts for the first day of the tour were, in round numbers, approximately nothing at all, and his net receipts a trifle less athan that. Setting off from Elizabeth this morning with the 21 dancing debutantes jouncing on the cushions of Mr. Pyle's road yacht and batting their eyes at the unfamiliar brightness of the morning sun, the caravan soon encountered rain.

The unfortunate bunioners, running in all the known types and tints of male lingerie, were drenched and the ladies of the entertainment climbed down off the sun deck of the yacht, pulling their coats about them.

Presently the rain ceased the sun came out and a strong, hot wind began to blow dust clouds across the road. The runners dried out as they plodded along through the mean towns of the suburban murder district, and all was rolling smoothly when one of the baggage wagons, containing the maintop in which the debutantes will do their dancing, subject to local ordinances, rolled on its side in a field.

Train Moves on Toward Trenton With Help of Grid Star.

Mr. Pyle was greatly upset, but Mr. Owen, the professional football player who is entering his second season as the Ned Wayburn of the theatrical department of the C. C. Pyle enterprises, lost none of his poise.

"Everybody out," Mr. Owen cried heartily, halting the caravan. "Get those damn newspaper men out, too, and everybody give a hoist."

So in half an hour, with Mr. Owen underneath the chassis of the truck and shoving upward, as in a professional football game, the truck was heaved back onto the right of way and the train moved on toward Trenton and tribulations beyond Mr. Pyle's direst expectations.

Encounters First Writ of 1929 Derby Rolling Through Trenton.

As Mr. Pyle rolled through Trenton he received the first writ of attachment served on him in the course of the 1929 bunion derby. He was asked to pay the sum of $800 on the complaint of a townsman engaged in the manufacture of circus seats, who said Mr. Pyle owed him just that much.

"But, officer," Mr. Pyle exclaimed, "the seats were no good and I sent them back."

In the meantime he had dismounted from his car and it had rolled on across the river into Pennsylvania. Now all his cars were in Pennsylvania.

"Nevertheless," said the officer, "I must serve the attachment on your property."

"Well, ha, ha, officer," Mr. Pyle replied, laughingly. "That will be perfectly all right with me as I have no property in New Jersey now."

And just then along came Mr. Andy Payne, a bright boy in some respects, the winner of last year's race and a patrol judge of this one, driving another of Mr. Pyle's automobiles, a red car with Mr. Pyle's name painted large on the sides.

Pyle Reasoning With Officer at Late Hour Last Night.

At a late hour this evening, Mr. Pyle was still endeavoring to reason with the officer, the car was in escrow, and young Mr. Payne was in disfavor with the management of the bunion derby.

Before this happened, the city commissioners of Trenton had decided that the Pyle enterprise was not of a character to improve the character of their town and had refused to permit him to camp here.

And, finally at evening, another storm sprang up, bellying the dome of the main top, driving off the loitering crowd of impecunious town boys, and the second annual bunion derby was well away on a characteristic career of difficulty and frustration.

YOUR BOY—YOUR GIRL

By ARTHUR DEAN, SC. D.
The Parent Counselor.

The New Freedom.

A DISTINGUISHED sociologist, discussing the relationships and practices of young people of the opposite sex in "undergraduates"—a study of what is going on in our colleges which has been mentioned in this column and which started us on this study of boys and girls of high school age—said: "Parents are soggy these days. The new freedom gets away with them. They don't like it, but they don't know what to do.

"I charge a great deal to the movies. You can not fill the minds of boys and girls with such strenuous sex interest, taking off the bedroom doors, and presenting pictures of excessive affection, without great danger of bringing them to maturity, with reference to sex matters, earlier than they should. They see the kissing and clinching and these predispose their minds dangerously. Then, too, the dancing, as now practiced, is exciting, the jazz music is exciting. The modern bathing suits are scant. I feel that we are beginning to get the legitimate harvest in all these things of the breakdown of the home. We simply can not go to the basis of the South Sea Islands. The girls, however, so far as I am able to judge by their demeanor in the classroom and where I see them elsewhere, have not been damaged. Their public appearance is certainly all smooth and gentle as could be."

This student of youthful life combines intimate acquaintances with student life in colleges with an insight of high order. He certainly gives a rather decent mark to the girls of his community.

Now for continuing the questionnaires regarding boys and girls of high school age. Remember, no name need be signed nor any S. A. S. E. inclosed. Just write "Yes" or "No," clip and forward. The results will be published, but absolutely no quotations from letters unless the sender gives permission.

Father Has Tantrums.

Father is a good soul but he is a great hand to be full of misery all the time. He is sort of embittered on things in general and takes it out in whining. If he could he would have us all whining too. What is the trouble? SEEKING SON.

Answer—A child has tantrums when he can not get his own way because he can have about as much fun in having his tantrums as he can in having his own way. Your father is having a lot of fun whining. Instead of using courage to fight the bitter things which have come into life he uses whining salve. It gives him a lot of satisfaction. When he sees this he will be angry. And that will do him good. Anything to get him out of his fool's paradise which he has created for himself.

He may be ill or worrying about something. If so, cheer him up after he has told you about it. Confession is good for the soul.

COVERS A WIDE FIELD.

E. N. F., M. D., writes: I accidentally discovered that a case of hiccough was stopped by coughing. I have not met any cases of hiccough of the severe type, such as those that result in death. But I have met with the milder varieties, where, in some cases, the attack had continued for upward of half an hour, and some that had lasted only a few minutes.

I have always advised those sufferers to start coughing and to keep it up for a minute or two. I have not found an instance in which the hiccough did not stop. If the hiccup returns after several minutes, it is necessary to cough again. Another spell seldom returns.

Reply: I think the method you are using should have a rather wide field. If it has been used by any one else, has been written about in the books or journals, or has been tagged with the name of any one, I have not heard or read of it. However, some one may descend on us with proof that it was long ago tagged, labled and perhaps patented.

As you know, hiccup is due to a spasmodic contraction of the diaphragm. This ensues generally because of some irritation in the diaphragm or some nearby structure. The irritation may be in the esophagus, stomach or upper part of the small intestines, spleen, in the diaphragmatic pleura, or in the mediastinum, or in the great nerve of the district, the pneumogastric. In some instances the irritation is in the brain, the impulse to the diaphragm muscle traveling by way of the nerve. For instance, hiccup is one symptom of lethargic encephalitis, or sleeping sickness.

The spasmodic disorder is right on the border line of voluntary control. As a rule, we hiccup in spite of our effort or will to prevent. Yet the impulse lies so nearly the will level that mental power can control some cases. In some cases the will to stop cures. In the other case belong the various attention-arresting procedures, such as holding the tips of the two fingers together but just short of touching. Your method comes in here.

In coughing there is a violent muscular contraction of the diaphragm. When you have your hiccuping patients cough they upset the periodicity of the hiccup jerk, and that is enough to cure many cases. It will not affect hiccuping due to central causes, but for most of the cases of other groups it should work.

Which is but a long-winded, roundabout line of reasoning for the fact which experience has proved.

BANK RED INK POISONOUS.

Deacon writes:

1. Is red ink poisonous?
2. Is it contagious?

My bank book is literally covered with it, and the president of the bank tells me the condition is serious. He says the name for it is overdraft.

3. What should I do?

REPLY.

1. Rank.
2. I have found it so.
3. What you should do has nothing to do with the case. You will do what the president tells you. How health officers and doctors do envy bank presidents!

EAT ALL THE TOMATOES.

S. S. wites: Last summer I canned some tomatoes in a new galvanized tin pail. Since then I have heard that anything cooked in a galvanized utensil is poisoned, and I am afraid to use the tomatoes. Will you please tell me if this is true.

REPLY.

There is no danger.

Go ahead and eat the tomatoes. You need them especially now.

TREATMENT OF CLUBFOOT.

E. M. writes: Will you please write on the cause and prevention (if there is any) of clubfoot, or let me know how I can get information about how it is inherited.

If Mr. and Mrs. A. have a child born clubfooted, what are the chances of A.'s brother having a child born with clubfeet?

REPLY.

Clubfoot is due to a congenital shortness of some of the tendons and ligaments of the ankle and foot. Associated with it is displacement of the bones and joints of the foot. In some cases there is deformity of the bones.

Treatment consists in cutting or stretching the short tendons and holding the foot in the proper position until the tendons have grown together and until all the parts are adjusted.

The cause is not known, any more than we know the cause of other congenital deformities. However, it is generally thought that inheritance is a cause in some cases.

In the case mentioned, I should say that on the evidence cited the children of A's brother would be born with straight feet.

INCREASE REVEALED IN CREDIT DEMANDS

February Trade Is Slack in Seasonal Slump, Says Hoxton.

BUSINESS FAILURES FALL

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

Credit demands in this territory increased moderately in February and March, according to the monthly review of business and agricultural conditions in the Fifth District, made public yesterday by William W. Hoxton, chairman and Federal Reserve agent for the Richmond area.

February is a relatively slack month in trade circles, coming as it does between the active winter and spring seasons. It was pointed out that during February this year, business followed seasonal trends, without any marked deviation either way. The credit demands increased chiefly to meet the needs of farmers and merchants for early agricultural operations and the discounting of bills for spring merchandise.

Hoxton's statement showed business failures in the Fifth District fewer in number and lower in liabilities than a year ago. Labor conditions were much better. Coal production held above the seasonal average, and the textile industry reported progress, some data indicating a considerably stronger demand for yarns and cloth than in recent months.

Building Permits Drop.

The value of building permits issued in the chief cities of the district was slightly below the value of those a year ago, but contracts actually awarded developed an increase of approximately 50 per cent over awards in February last year.

Cotton prices rose between the middle of February and the middle of March. Retail trade in department stores was about at seasonable levels, although total sales in February were 4 per cent below February, 1928, sales. Present conditions are said to be moderately favorable to agriculture.

April fools' market saw an upward trend, four stocks ascending on the Washington Stock Exchange, and the only noteworthy drop taking place in Peoples Drug Store preferred, three shares of which changed hands at 120. It last sold at 125.

Capital Traction Up.

The stocks moving upward were Capital Traction Co., which advanced an eighth of a point, yesterday's market seeing twenty shares exchanged at 98¾. Ten more went after call at 93⅜, and one at 98½.

Others in the ascendant were Columbia Sand & Gravel preferred, rising from 92 to 92½, 92¾, 92½ in lots of 20, 10 and 4, respectively. Belated trading also saw five shares of Washington Railway & Electric preferred, whose Thursday position was 97¼, transfer at 97½, and ten more at the same figure.

A $3,000 lot of Capital Traction 5s bonds sold at 99½, a quarter point off Thursday's figure and $100 Washington Gas 5s, series B, at 103, 2 points below the date of last trading.

Following daily trading, the entire membership of the exchange went into executive session, discussing behind closed doors the proposed admission of a new member, whose candidacy had been challenged because he is not a partner of the investment firm sponsoring his membership.

Board Elects Two.

The principal business before the body was the election of two members of the board of governors to take the places temporarily vacated by Y. E. Booker and Eugene Thompson, who, feeling that they were personally interested in the application for membership under discussion, offered to step down until the matter had been finally disposed of.

William W. Mackall, jr., manager of the Washington office of Stein Bros. & Boyce, and George Webber were elected to the offices thus made vacant. According to C. J. Gockeler, secretary of the exchange, no date has been set for the meeting of the board which will dispose of the application for membership under consideration. Due to the illness of Edward L. Hillyer and the absence of John Poole from the city, this session may be delayed several days, he stated.

Net revenues of the Washington Interurban Railway Co. showed a deficit of $141.72 in 1928, according to the company's annual report of operations filed yesterday with the Public Utilities Commission. This figure, however, was an improvement of $5,889.68 over the year preceding.

Income Deficit $1,969.

Railway operating income for the year amounted to $61,382.40, a gain of $5,481.76 over the twelve months prior, while operating expenses reached $61,-524.12, a falling off of $407.92 under the year preceding. Nonoperating income was reported at $1,333.28 and taxes assignable to operations at $3,160.88. Total operating income showed a deficit of $3,302.60, but, nevertheless, was $5,748.37 above last year's level. Gross income was in red ink to the extent of $1,969.32, showing an improvement of $7,081.65 over 1927. There was a deficit of $1,969.32 represented in the income balance.

The board of directors of the District National Securities Corporation has authorized the offering and sale of the remaining 1,341 shares of 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock of the authorized issue of $1,000,000. There are outstanding 8,659 shares, that have already been issued. This additional

$2,060,000,000 BANK FORMED BY MERGER

National City Institution Largest in Country by Consolidation.

GUARANTY TRUST SECOND

New York, April 1 (A.P.).—The National City Bank by the merger today with the $219,000,000 Farmers Loan & Trust Co. definitely assured itself of first place in what Wall street regards as a race of banks to become the largest in the United States. The consolidation will give the National City Bank capital and resources of approximately $2,060,000,000.

Guaranty Trust Co. held the lead for a short time after its nearly $2,000,000,000 merger with the National Bank of Commerce, and will now rank second. The Chase National, with total resources close to $1,500,000,000, is third.

National City's merger is unique in that the two organizations will maintain their separate corporate entities. The City Bank will turn its trust business to the Farmers Loan, which probably will be known as the City Bank Farmer Trust Co. The Farmers Loan will turn its commercial banking business over to National City.

The capital stock of the Farmers Loan will be placed in the hands of trustees to be held for the benefit of National City Bank shareholders in a manner similar to that which the capital stock of the National City Co., the bank's investment affiliate, is now held.

Farmers Loan stockholders will receive five shares of National City Bank stock for each share of stock in the trust company. This will result in an increase in City Bank's capital from $160,000,000 to $110,000,000. It is planned for the trust company to have a capital of $10,000,000 and a surplus of the same amount. Farmers Loan stock jumped $300 a share to $1,850 following the announcement.

Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City Bank, will become chairman of the City Bank, the National City Co. and the trust company. Eric P. Swenson, chairman of the City Bank board since 1921, will retire, but will continue as a director of the bank.

Today's merger is the fourth announced since the first of the year by Wall street banks. The Central Union Trust Co. was recently consolidated with the Hanover National Bank, and Blair & Co., international banking and investment house, was merged with Bank of America, controlled by A. P. Giannini's Transamerica Corporation.

California Man Weds Miss Dorothy Stewart

Special to the Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 1.—In the outstanding social event of the spring season here Miss Dorothy Boak Stewart, only daughter of Mrs. Elsie Boak Stewart, and Harrison Musgrave, jr., of Saginaw, Mich., and Los Angeles, Calif., were married at Trinity Episcopal Church here this evening by the Rev. John L. Oldham, in the presence of a large company. The bride's only attendant was Miss Ann Kemp, of Hagerstown and Frederick, Md.

Mr. Musgrave had as his best man William B. Boyd, of Saginaw, and there were four ushers—Jack Chigett, Knoxville, Md.; Jay Ester, Halltown, W. Va.; Siebert Lee Sefton, Waynesboro, Pa., and Morgan Martin, this city. Mr. and Mrs. Musgrave left this evening on a week's motoring trip. They will return to this city before going to their home in Los Angeles.

Similar Holding In Bridge Hands

Nashville, Tenn., April 1 (U.P.).—A set of four bridge hands dealt in Nashville rivals that reported recently from Hawaii where four players each held all the cards of one suit. Unique binding in a game played by Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Mosely and Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Gilbert prompted them to reveal their hands. Each was found to contain the same combination of cards in different suits. The combinations were ace, king, 9 and 5; queen, 8 and 4; jack, 7 and 3; and 10, 6 and 2.

It was decided to play the hands and Mr. Gilbert went down one trick on a bid of two spades.

Long-Haired Scientists Must Visit Barber

Detroit, April 1 (U.P.).—There are no long-haired scientists in one set of research laboratories here, and George M. Stockton is the reason. He just chalked up his 50,000th hair cut in his job of keeping science well trimmed.

Twenty years ago Stockton was called from a barber shop for missionary work among Parke-Davis research scientists. Now he has a list of 97 chemists, biologists and executives who have literally put their heads in his hands, for they leave it to him to telephone them at their test tubes or desks and tell them that it is time to get their hair cut.

Harness Maker, at 85, Continues in Harness

Marion, Ohio, April 1 (U.P.).—When Gottleig Eibling was 19 he became acquainted with the harness-maker's awl. He began as an apprentice in a shop operated by his brother-in-law.

Today at the age of 85 he continues at the same trade, conducting a little shop in the rear of his home. Morning after morning he opens the shop and hangs out a large horse collar. Each evening he takes it down and closes up.

And that comprises the major part of his obsolete business.

In the light of present-day drama, "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," which the National Theater Players brought out of the files last night, is almost too good to be true. What with one thing and another, synthetic gin, short skirts, reaching for this, that, and the other kind of smoke, instead of a sweet, the flapper of 1929 is far removed from the kind of girl Rebecca represented on the Sunnybrook Farm that was, in the beginning of the twentieth century. That was the time when little girls wore starched skirts; ribbons on their hair. Tempus fugit and times change.

All the world and her sister read the novel, "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" when it first came from the presses. It was written by Kate Douglas Wiggin. The book was akin to such literature as that exemplified by another novel, "Anne of Green Gables"—not the Green Gables, a roadhouse, now figuring in a Maryland murder story. Both tales had to do with little girls, of overcrowded families, whose homes had mortgages hovering over them; girls whose mothers, perforce, had to send their daughters to maiden aunts; and maiden aunts who were disciplinarians in the strictest sense of the word.

There you have Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm, who came to live with old Aunty Mirandy. In the billings—meaning the theater signboards, and nothing to do with coolings—there is a line describing this play as a New England idyll. It really is a curiosity of an earlier theater.

Like all plays of its kind, "Rebecca" breaks out, at many points, with character parts, and these are well taken care of by the National Theater Players, who do a marvelous piece of work in a play not overburdened with suspense. 'Tis a heavy production, too, requiring five different scenes, all charmingly painted and set forth by the theater studios, presided over by Mr. Charles Squires. In fact, the stage settings this time are almost as important as those who appear before them, and this means much since there are splendid portrayals by Mrs Hibbard, as the hard-boiled old aunt with whom Rebecca goes to live; by Miss Betty Kent, the engenue, who plays Rebecca; by Charles Hampden, as an old stage driver; by Freddie Sherman, a chore boy, and by Wilfred Lytell, the man in the case, the fellow who waits for Rebecca to grow up.

Robert Brister and Miss Helen Wallace have what might be termed the only heavy roles in the piece, a worthless husband and a faithful wife, and of these they make much, so that the gallery of stage pictures is complete—a hearking back to the olden days when idyls took the place of action, idyll meaning almost what its pronunciation denotes.

GAYETY

Still a bit ragged in spots, but full of pep, "The Jazz Regiment," all-colored musical comedy, goes into its second week at the Gayety. A few more weeks of polishing up may yet make this piece worthy to join the procession in the wake of "Shuffle Along" and other successes of color which clouded the theatrical horizon a few seasons ago and brought about an awakening to the possibilities of negro theatricals.

The piece is one of hills and intervening valleys. Prominent among the peaks are the Suwanee Four, a quartet which demonstrates the possibilities of the negro spirituals, even when produced in the uncongenial atmosphere of the musical comedy stage. Then there was a team of dancing youngsters who must remain unidentified because the management, presumably in the throes of post mortem Coolidgeconomy, neglected to distribute programs last night. The boys were good and it is too bad that their names were treated as confidential.

PRATT TAKES OATH AS HEAD OF POLICE TO SUCCEED HESSE

Brief Ceremony Yesterday in District Building Marks Change in Chiefs.

RETIRING OFFICIAL TO TAKE LONG AUTO TRIP

List of Promotions Prepared to Fill Vacancies May Be Acted On Today.

Inspector Henry G. Pratt, chief of the Detective Bureau, yesterday changed his title to major and superintendent of police and his job to supervision of the entire Police Department when he was formally inducted into office in the presence of the District Commissioners, police and other District officials and friends.

The new police chief was sworn in by his predecessor and friend, Edwin B. Hesse, who was until midnight Sunday, the major and superintendent of police.

When Hesse administered the oath of office to his friend and successor, who had climbed to the top of his profession from his first job pounding the bricks as a young copper a quarter of a century ago, he pinned on his breast the official badge.

Hesse Lingers at Office.

The swearing in of the new chief required but a brief time. There followed a period of congratulations, handshakes and the usual talk and aftermath of such an occasion, in the midst of which Hesse smiled as though he might be at his happiest moment. Nonetheless, the erstwhile chief found many trivial things to keep him at the office, things to talk about, stories to tell, friends to escort to the new chief, and possibly immaterial after thoughts to discuss with his successor and it was not until the afternoon that Hesse bade final farewell to the District Building.

He is thinking of buying a small automobile and taking a little tour. He is dreaming of a trip through the Valley of Virginia. With the use of a car he estimates he can make 40 or 50 miles a day and have a good time. Hesse, beloved by hundreds of friends, doesn't know how to play. He is trying to learn and friends are trying to help him. He went to work when he was a boy and now, an elderly man, he has found himself free from responsibility with plenty of time to do what he wishes, and is somewhat dubious. The efforts of Detective Sergt. Jacob Wolf, one-time driver of police headquarters emergency automobile, to teach Hesse to drive an automobile have become a daily subject of stories among police officials.

Pratt Takes Up Work.

Inspector Pratt grasped the reins of superintendency with no indecision. Immediately he transmitted to the District Commissioners a series of promotions necessary to complete the officer personnel of the department, due to his advancement.

Inspector E. W. Brown, chief of the Traffic Bureau, was named to be assistant superintendent of police. Brown will remain in charge of traffic.

Capt. T. R. Bean was named to be inspector.

Lieut. O. T. Davis was named to be captain to succeed Bean. Davis will be placed in command of the First Precinct, where Bean has been in command. Later there may be some shifts among the captains. Possibly Capt. Frank S. W. Burke, who was promoted to succeed Capt. Guy E. Burlingame and placed in charge of the Second Precinct, which Burlingame commanded, may be shifted to take charge of the First Precinct.

Sergt. J. E. Bobo, of the First Precinct, was named to be a lieutenant.

Private William P. Barnes, of the Tenth Precinct, was named for promotion to sergeant.

May Be Acted on Today.

These recommendations were expected. The District Commissioners are expected to act upon them at their regular board meeting today.

In a few days orders are expected detailing Inspector William S. Shelby, as administrative assistant superintendent of police in charge of the detective bureau. Shelby will command the bureau and retain general supervision of the personnel. Lieut. I. H. Edwards, who has been his assistant, will be placed in charge of the personnel records, with additional clerical help. Edwards is said to be slated for promotion in the near future. He has made a good record and a fine impression on officials and the public.

Pratt's office yesterday resembled a florist's shop. Flowers were sent him by the Policemen's Association, by leaders of Chinatown, and by various organizations and individuals.

Throughout the day he was kept busy welcoming well wishers and friends, of high and low degree, who came to shake his hand, wish him well, and say how glad they were that the Commissioners had named him police chief.

Deluged With Letters.

Joseph Hansen, his secretary, was deluged with hundreds of letters from men and women in all walks of life and would have been laboring indefinitely in sorting and trying to get answers had Pratt not called a halt late in the day and postponed the answering of most of the letters.

Pratt refused to make any statement for publication when he assumed office.

"I'm a new man on this job and I've got to have time to get my feet on the ground," he laughingly told reporters.

There is to be at this time, it was stated authoritatively, no general shake-up in the department. Pratt does not intend to seek notoriety by making any sensational changes. He has a well-thought-out course of action in mind and intends to adhere to it, but what that course of action is he refuses to divulge. Washington may rest assured, he said, that there will be no lessening of the efficiency of the department under his administration.

Wilbur Forrest Named Scribe's Group Head

Wilbur Forrest, formerly Paris correspondent for the New York Herald-Tribune, and now in its Washington office, was yesterday elected president of the White House Correspondents Association, defeating Ralph E. Collins, of the New York Sun, in the closest contest the organization ever had.

West, of the Associated Press, and Lawrence Sullivan, of the United Press, to be members of the executive committee. In addition to West and Sullivan the executive committee is also composed of the officers of the organization and the retiring president, A. Russell Young, of the Washington Star.

GRAND JURY CLEARS CAPT. BURLINGAME

Final Report Says No Basis Found for Action Against Former Commander.

INFORMER SYSTEM HIT

In its final report, submitted yesterday, the District grand jury declared there was no evidence on which criminal charges could be brought against Capt. Guy E. Burlingame, former commander of the Second Police Precinct, who has been under a cloud of suspicion since charges were brought against him several weeks ago by a local palmist. The grand jury's repudiation of the charges coincides with the verdict of the special police trial board which tried the captain and found him not guilty.

The jury included in its report a number of presentments among which was an attack on the informer system now used in the Police Department. The jury's final report was made to Justice Jennings Bailey in District Supreme Court.

The jurors lauded Capt. M. M. Barnard, superintendent of District penal institutions, and Maj. William L. Peak, superintendent of the District Jail, for their management of the institutions. Recommendations for appropriations for a resident physician at the jail and for a new laundry plant at the Lorton, Va., Reformatory were made in the report.

Action of the jurors wrote finis to the sensational Burlingame-Bialock case, which began last December when Mrs. Helen F. Bialock, former local palmist, made charges of misconduct against the police captain to Representative Ernest W. Gibson, of Vermont, in a secret interview at a Bethesda, Md., police station.

Language of Exoneration.

The report stated "as pertains to the charges made by Mrs. Helen F. Bialock against Capt. Guy E. Burlingame, member of the Metropolitan Police Department, and which charges were referred to this body by the United States attorney, make the following report: That no evidence upon which criminal charges could be predicated was found."

Following in the wake of the Burlingame case a number of letters charging virtually the entire police force with corruption were received by Senator Thaddeus H. Caraway, of Arkansas, and were turned over to the United States attorney's office.

Regarding these charges, the jury reported:

"The said grand jury further reports that there has been submitted by the United States attorney to the said grand jury for investigation and consideration certain correspondence which had been transmitted to the said United States attorney by the Hon. Thaddeus H. Caraway, United States senator from the State of Arkansas, and which correspondence suggested alleged corruption in the Metropolitan Police Department. The grand jury was unable to ascertain any real evidence because practically all this correspondence bore no signatures of the senders, who manifestly were writing of suspicion based on rumor. One letter which was signed apparently was a forgery as to signature.

"This body had before it certain witnesses suggested by this annonymous correspondence and obtained no evidence to support the charges made in these communications."

Informer System Assailed.

The system of paying police informers "per case" for work in liquor cases, which was denounced by officials last September, when an informer was arrested on a perjury charge, was assailed in the jury report.

"Our attention has been called to the method of employment of informers in various cases," the report stated. "It is the opinion of the grand jury that the method of payment of informers by fee per case should be changed and persons employed in this work should be placed on a salary basis and only persons employed of good reputation. The payment by fee, provided an arrest is made, has a tendency to influence and bring reflection on the evidence. We believe the change recommended would add to the value and credibility of the evidence."

The jury reported the following in connection with a survey of local penal institutions:

"Upon investigation we find that no provision has been made for a resident physician at the District Jail through the regular appropriations, but at present is provided for through the kindness of a private citizen. It is the opinion of the grand jury that in an institution of this kind and size, where hundreds of prisoners are detained, a resident physician is an absolute necessity, and should be provided by the Government as a permanent position in the institution.

"At Lorton Reformatory and Occoquan, while everything possible is being done by those in charge with the funds at their disposal, the laundry conditions are deplorable. Sufficient funds should be secured to install an entirely new laundry equipment, the present antiquated equipment being a menace to the health of the inmates."

Army Transfer Ordered.

Capt. Harry W. Caygill, who is now on duty in the office of the chief of staff of the Army here, will be transferred after June 9 to Fort Douglas, Utah.

Brisco violation Harrison antinarcotic law; Irvine Hale, forgery of a Government check, and Northern Lilly and Joseph Makel, tampering with the mails.

Dr. James W. Hart, Capital physician, and Odell R. Seay, 17 years old, were exonerated on an abortion charge growing out of an alleged criminal operation on Bernice Carter, 17 years old. It was reported that the girl had received treatment from a colored woman in nearby Virginia before going to the local physician.

Other charges ignored were Nathaniel Flood, Lawrence Edwards, Artie Payne, Lillian Hicks, Raymond Aukard and Mary Lawson, gambling accusations; Tommy Williams, robbery; Joseph Bailey, false pretenses, and James Herbert, forgery and uttering.

MESSAGE OF HOOVER ASKS CIVIC LEADERS' AID IN ENFORCEMENT

Heads of National Clubs Are Greeted as Convention Opens in Capital.

INTERNATIONAL CHIEFS REPRESENTING 500,000

Many Executives Address Delegates at Luncheon Opening Meeting.

Five hundred thousand members of major civic clubs and organizations whose international heads were in session at the Mayflower Hotel here yesterday will be urged to support President Hoover in his campaign for "a united enforcement of our laws."

The message from President Hoover was conveyed to the international presidents of the organizations in a call at the White House before noon. It was relayed back to local members of the groups who paid honor to visiting executives at a luncheon in the Mayflower.

James Nelson MacLean, of New York City, president of Civitsm International, sponsored the meeting here for a discussion of mutual problems affecting the civic groups.

The words of President Hoover were quoted to the gathering by Ben A. Ruffin, of Richmond, Va., president of Lions International. The President stressed the importance played by the civic organizations in molding public opinion, Ruffin said.

Backing of Business Men Urged.

The President was of the opinion that a growing disregard of law observance could be remedied to a large extent through the joint action of America's many organizations of business and professional men, Ruffin continued. He quoted the President as declaring that the eighteenth amendment was not the only law that he felt was being disregarded by the American people.

This message of the President, enthusiastically received by the gathering, struck the keynote of the luncheon meeting. Some 250 men and women, members of the local groups, applauded the plea of MacLean that the words of the President be heeded in all the branches of the several organizations represented.

Short speeches also were given by the following executives of the civic groups present:

A building occupant holding a tenancy by the month in the absence of a lease must be given the customary 30 days' notice to vacate even after expiration of a lease waiving the notice, the District Court of Appeals yesterday ruled. The opinion affirmed action of the District Municipal Court in the case of Pauline V. Beyer, trading as the Portland Hotel, against Harold H. Smith.

The plaintiff brought suit to recover premises occupied by Smith, who refused to vacate on the ground that he had not been given proper notice.

Fairest Woman's Balky Car Causes Circle Traffic Jam

Stream of Vehicles Jammed for 20 Minutes Before It Is Discovered Comely One Had Forgotten to Turn Ignition Switch of New Motor.

The combination of "the prettiest woman in Washington," a brand new automobile, the Christmas tree of traffic lights in full bloom at Dupont Circle, an extremely courteous policeman and a stiff wind proved too much for traffic at the circle about 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

It gave up and expired temporarily for about 20 minutes. Some fifteen street cars and an undetermined number of automobiles were tied up while amateur mechanics investigated the department of the interior of the new car and tried to determine the "how cum" it wouldn't run. Meantime the prettiest woman in Washington waxed wroth and kept up a fast-running comment upon the Christmas tree clusters of lights.

But to unscramble the story and traffic jam——

The prettiest woman in Washington, according to Traffic Officer E. S. Guptill, stationed at the circle, drove down Connecticut avenue and, upon reaching the circle, was halted by a red light just as her automobile came astride the street car tracks. She obediently stopped.

When the green signal flashed on for her to proceed the new car wouldn't budge. She had been driving another make and this was her first day with the new car, the officer said.

While trying to get the car started, street cars began to tie up behind, and likewise automobiles.

Seeing the young woman in trouble, Officer Guptill gallantly rushed to her assistance. He couldn't get the car started, either. Drivers of nearby cars behind came to her assistance.

They tinkered and offered advcie, but the car wouldn't start. Some fifteen street cars were halted, and a great line of automobiles.

"It's all the fault of these Christmas tree lights. If that old red light hadn't stopped me I'd still be going; these are the most ridiculous lights I ever saw; they slay me," the young woman declared heatedly as the amateurs searched the carburetor and other possible causes of trouble, handicapped by dust blown on a stiff wind.

Officer Guptill swallowed his civic pride and said soothing things to the young woman. Meantime the jam was increasing, and horns honking.

And then somebody discovered the ignition switch was turned off!

"Of all the dumbbells!" the young woman was heard to exclaim as the switch was switched on.

She drove off in a swirl of dust as the amateurs grinned and Officer Guptill sighed, "There goes the prettiest woman in Washington—if not the maddest one."

And that's the only identity the Police Department has of the young woman who tied up traffic for 20 minutes at one of the most important points because her switch was turned off.

Workman's Widow Loses Court Action

Employer Not Liable in Fall From Scaffold, Court Rules in Suit.

Employers of a workman who performs labors on a scaffold constructed by himself and who injures himself in the pursuance of such duties on the scaffold, are not liable to damages, according to a ruling handed down yesterday by the District Court of Appeals. In the case upon which the rule was predicated, a workman was killed under such circumstances.

The appellate court's action sustained a decision of the District Supreme Court, which refused to award damages to Mrs. Laura Martin, administratrix of the estate of her husband, Elmer Martin, who was killed in the course of construction labors for Robert E. Morrison.

Workmen were employed in the building of a coal bunker for Morrison, and Martin, with coworkers, built a scaffold to be used in applying steel sheeting to the construction. While working, the scaffold broke and Martin fell to his death. The appellate court held that the nature of the work embodied hazards, of which Martin was cognizant, and that he entered upon his duties fully aware of the dangers.

TAXI LIABILITY LAW URGED IN CHAMBER TO PROTECT PUBLIC

Resolution Would Compel All to Post Insurance Bond Covering Accidents.

REPEATED VISION TEST FOR DRIVERS IS SOUGHT

Law Committee Will Inspect Alleged Insanitary Police and Fire Stations.

Passage of a resolution instructing the law and legislation committee of the Washington Chamber of Commerce to work out provisions of a bill making all taxicabs in the city liable in accidents was adopted yesterday by the committee on fire, police and public safety at a meeting in the chamber offices.

Speakers on the resolution pointed out that under existing legislation all taxicabs are not classed as common carriers and therefore are not liable. The resolution passed by the committee makes it imperative that all taxicabs post bond or insurance policy covering liability.

Another matter relating to automobiles also was disposed of in resolutions, the committee going on record as against the issuance or renewal of licenses to drivers until eyesight tests have been successfully passed. Speakers on this resolution pointed out that when a person obtained an original license they were subjected to eyesight tests but that in seeking renewals no tests were required.

The committee also reiterated formally its advocacy of periodic inspection of automobile brakes and headlights, and urged that a regulation be made requiring all motorists within a specificed time to have brakes and lights tested and carry a certificate to this effect.

Attention was called by the chairman of the committee, Charles W. Darr, who is also president, to the dilapidated and insanitary conditions existing in certain police and fire stations in which men sleep. It was voted that several subcommittees be appointed to inspect all such stations in the District with a view to a report on present conditions with a recommendation for such improvement as may be necessary.

Other resolutions passed by the committee included praise for the administration of Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, as superintendent of police, pledges of cooperation with the administration of Maj. Henry G. Pratt, the new superintendent, and belief that lieutenants of police assigned to precincts should not be required to work more than eight hours a day.

Judge Can Fix Order In Trial, Court Rules

A judge in a divorce action is invested with the privilege of deciding what side of the case he shall hear first, according to a ruling made yesterday by the District Court of Appeals. The action was taken in the case of Mrs. Edna F. Coombs, who was awarded an absolute divorce decree from her husband, William L. Coombs, by the District Supreme Court. The judgment in the case was sustained.

The appeal was made on the ground that the trial magistrate ordered the defendant in the case to take the stand first or not at all. The higher court ruled that the trial judge might prescribe the order in which evidence should be presented.

Cherry Bloom Viewers Ride in 25,000 Autos

Twenty-five thousand automobiles, carrying sightseers to the cherry blossoms, entered Potomac Park Easter, it was announced yesterday by the United States Park Police, who tabulated each car as it passed over Inlet Bridge.

This was an increase of 2,084 machines over 1928, when 22,916 autos passed through the park. The tabulations were made between the hours of 9 o'clock in the morning and 6:45 o'clock in the afternoon. The police also reported that there were no serious accidents, nor any arrests to mar the day. It was estimated that about 100,000 machines traversed Highway Bridge Sunday.

Interurban Line Loses Fare Action

W., B. & A. Owes Washington Railway $143,171, Is Ruling of Court.

A decision holding the Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis Railroad Co. indebted $143,173.71 to the Washington Railway & Electric Co., for alleged failure of payment of fares collected within the District, was made yesterday by the District Court of Appeals.

The suit grew out of a disagreement between the companies over a contract whereby the interurban concern was to pay the local company 4¼ cents for each passenger transported in the District on tracks of the local company. The disagreement was aired before an arbitration board, but a settlement could not be reached.

Most of the fares petitioned in the suit were collected during the World War. In the District Supreme Court, where the suit was heard, a decision was given in favor of the local company and the case was taken to the appellate tribunal. In affirming the action of the lower court, the Court of Appeals denied interest payments on the judgment and held the appeal costs should be decided between the two companies.

District Court Reverses Conviction of Collector

Conviction of Neil A. Yeager, former collector for the Washington Railway & Electric Co., recently in the District Supreme Court on a charge of embezzling checks of his employers, which he had collected, was reversed yesterday by the District Court of Appeals, which held the crime involved was forgery and not embezzlement.
